END OF SUMMER

Everyone has their own memories of Freshmen Orientation, the first few days of your college career. I arrived early, all my worldly possessions in the car, my parents at my side, my heart in my throat. After helping me move into my closet-I-mean-room, my parents left, with my firm assurances that I would be fine and call soon. And that I wouldn't forget that my primary purpose for being here was to study.

Seven hours later, I found myself up on the hill, a beer in hand, dancing with my hallmates to "Mony, Mony" and loving life. Yes, Mom and Dad, I have my priorities straight.

And so began "Club Lehigh", three days of intensive - socializing. The prospects for ever getting any work done seemed dim, when there were so many other things to do.

Granted, times have changed since our freshmen year. But there's no need for concern. Members of the class of '94 assure me that yes, orientation is just as fun as it was August '86.

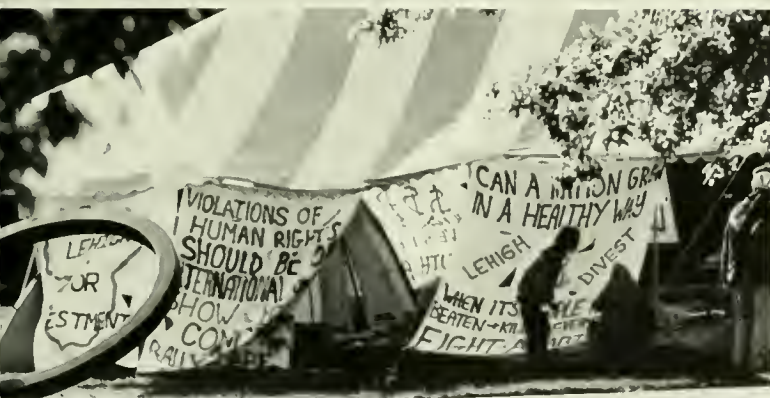

The 1989 fall semester at Lehigh University began with a lot of changes. Lehigh students were welcomed back to Lehigh with the implementation of a new and stringent parking code. Hartman and Gibson disappeared as the two new sororities settled in Saucon Valley. Delta Sig is back. Meanwhile, the Hill underwent quite an interesting - rearrangement. But on a more pleasant note, the new business center was being built at a dizzying speed from the ashes of Taylor Stadium.

Fall '89 marked the birth of the Umoja House, whose members participated with the rest of Warren Square for a memorable block party ("Be there and be Square"). Some students became artists for a week as their art was displayed campus-wide. To counter accusations of being politically ignorant and generally apathetic, several students participated in an anti-apartheid demonstration.

Naturally, all of us spent many productive hours in the library (often examining either the back of our eyelids or members of the opposite sex). Others resorted to the well-known cure for stress and favorite freshmen activity: abuse the Gryphon.

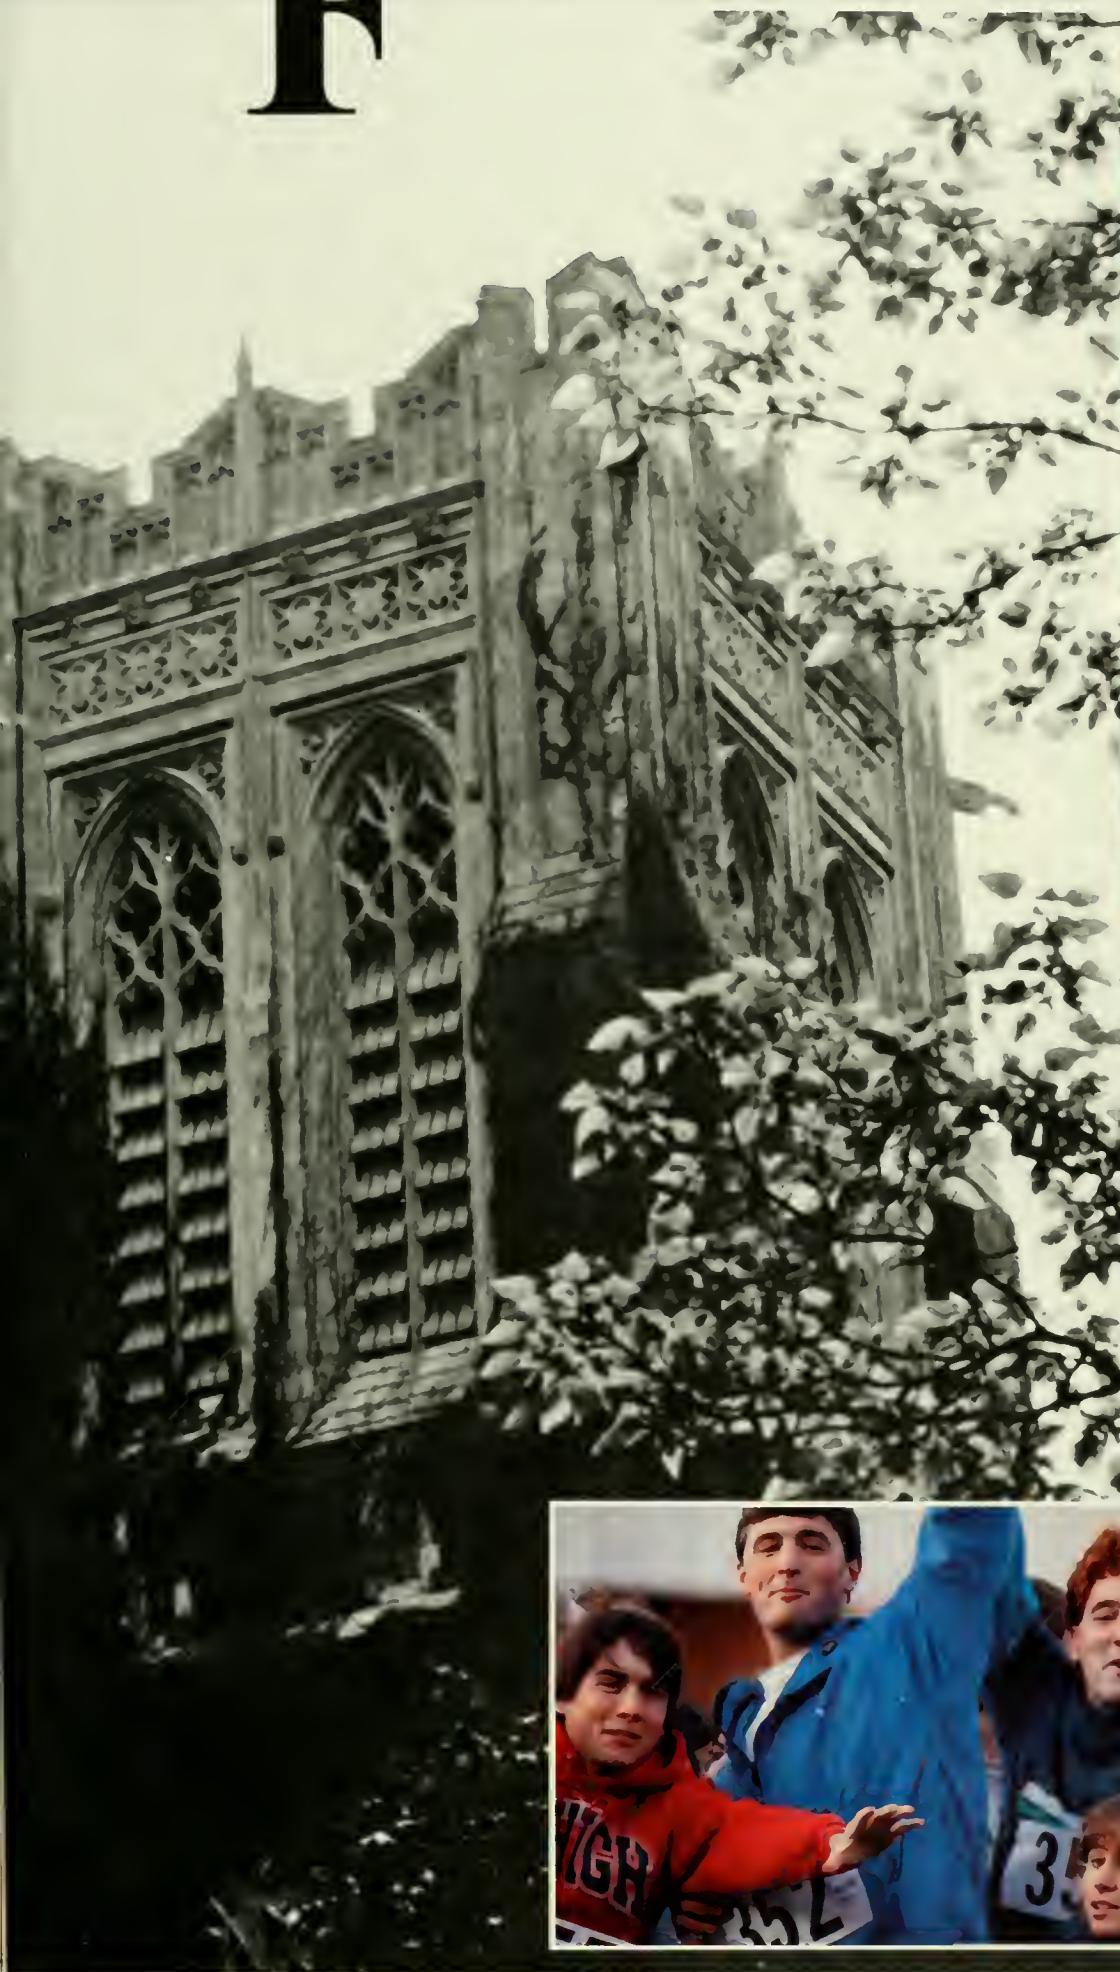

O N CAMPUS

Lehigh has a beautiful campus, and its beauty is certainly emphasized in the fall. Fall at Lehigh brings many images to mind—the old stone buildings shrouded in scarlet ivy; shortening days tinged with the first briskness of autumn; the fun and festivity of tailgating and watching Lehigh football games; the first round of four o'clock quizzes for the semester; hundreds of squirrels swarming all over campus collecting nuts; and fall would certainly not be complete at Lehigh without the men of Brickman heartily attacking every leaf that dares to fall with their leaf-busting blowers . . .

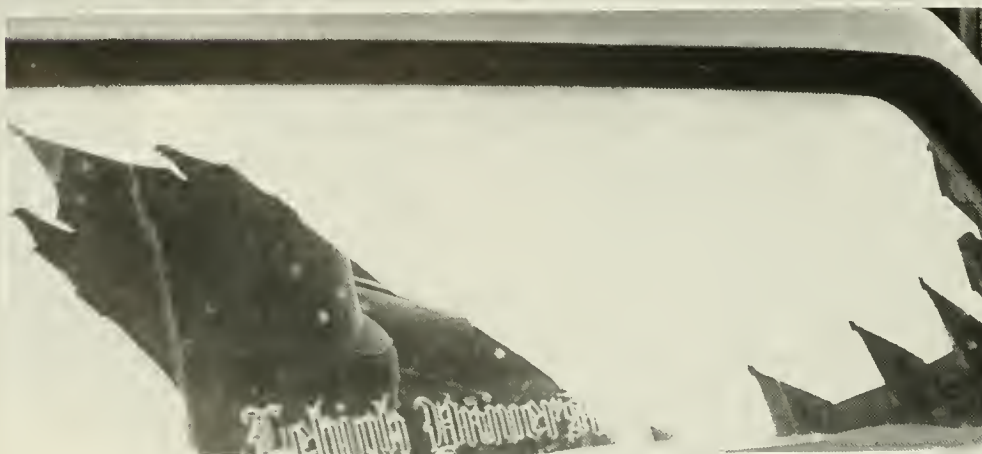

FALL AT LEHIGH

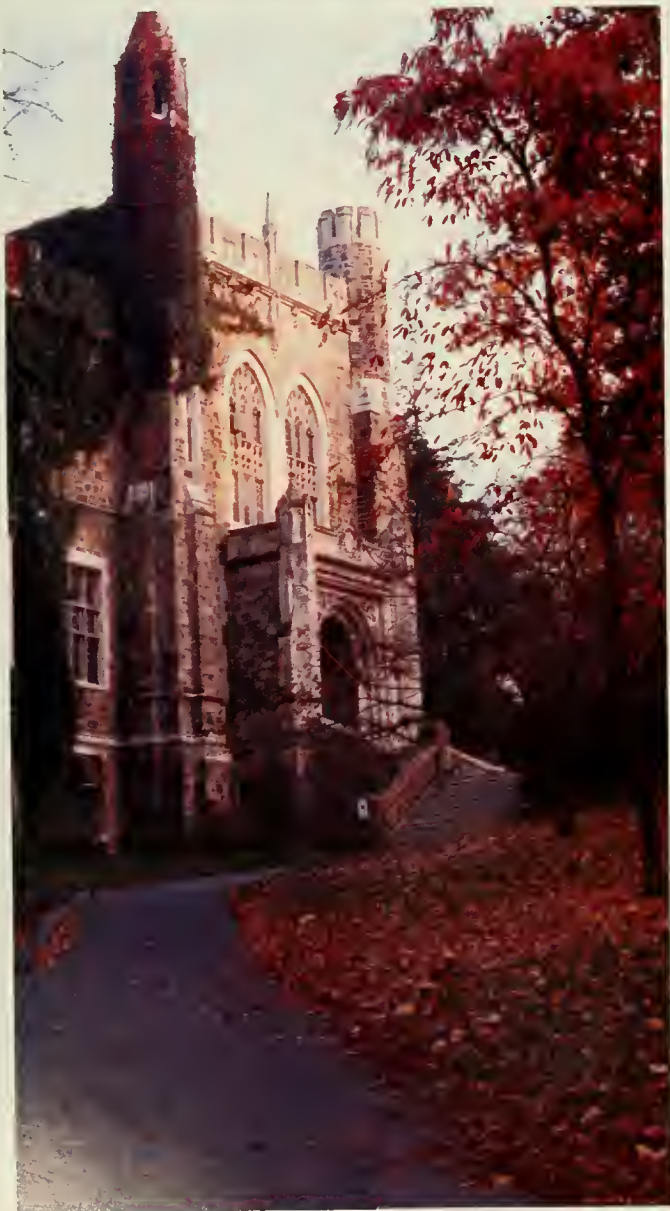

Fall semester at Lehigh always starts out slowly. Oh, those lazy days in September, after vacation and before the first round of 4:00 quizzes. The weather outside still says "summer", and it's so easy to ignore that pile of unopened books adorning your desk. It's too hot to study.

So sunbathe outside. If you really feel guilty, bring your books with you and "study". Play frisbee or volleyball. Watch other people playing frisbee or volleyball. Have a barbecue.

Go out late - it's a time for freshmen to discover the hill, and for seniors to rediscover the local haunts. Hang out with your hallmates, staying up all night, doing absolutely nothing constructive. And remember, if it's too noisy to sleep in your room, there's always the library.

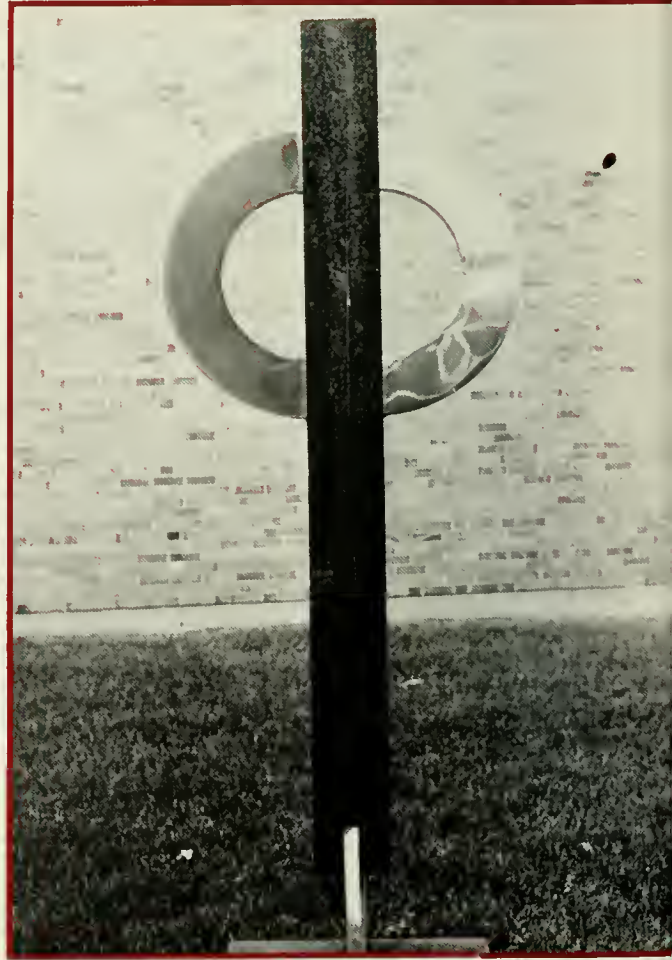

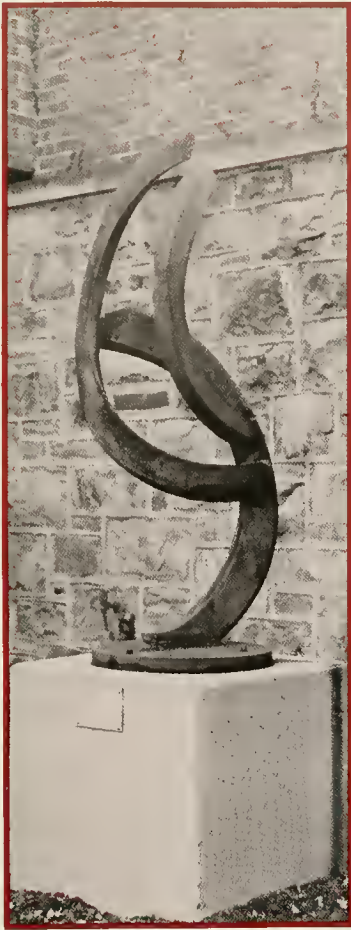

F ALL SCENES

ART ON CAMPUS

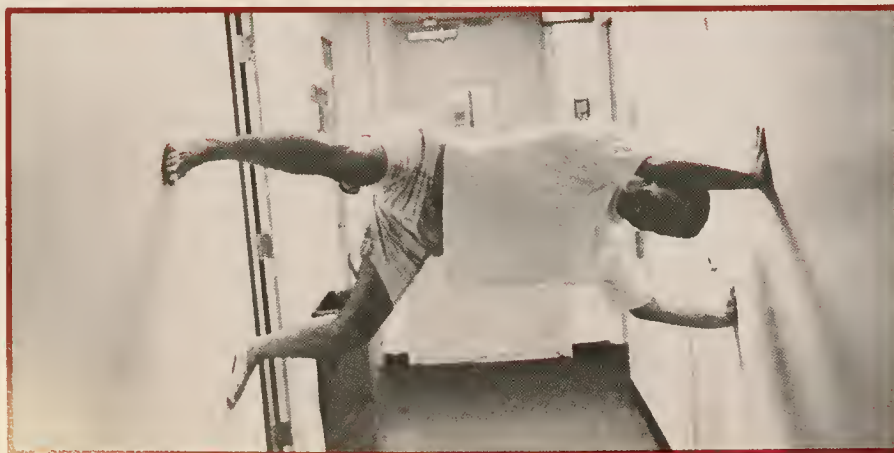

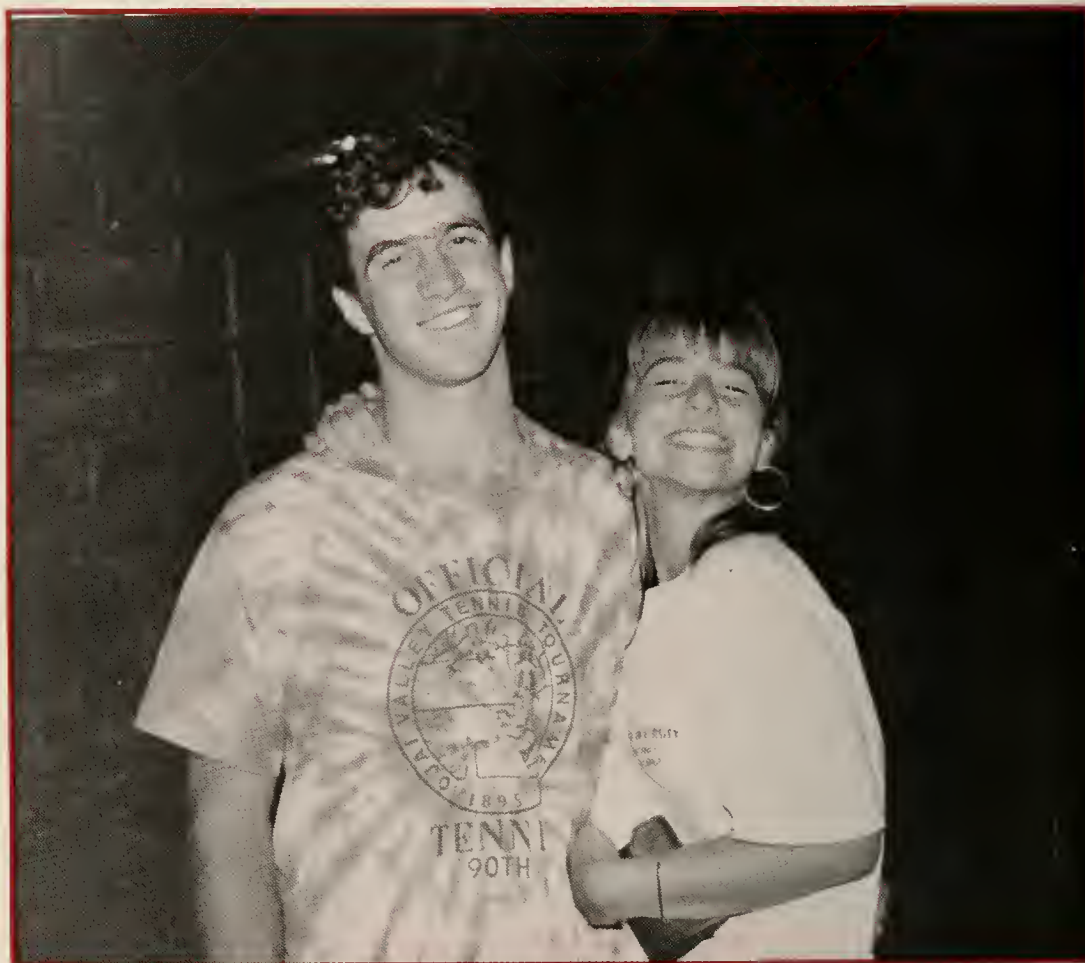

As the semester kicks in, so does the football season. Lehigh students make the trek over to the new stadium to cheer on the Engineers.

But watching the match itself is only half the fun. Outside the stadium walls one enters another dimension, one beyond sight and sound - the TAILGATING ZONE.

Lehigh students showed their talent this past year as the Mustard and Cheese Society put on a number of plays in the fall and spring semesters. The Lehigh community enjoyed "Aunt Dan and Lemon" in the fall and "The Caucasian Chalk Circle" and "Agnes of God" in the spring.

Lehigh senior John Krupa wrote "Rock Opera" which was also performed in the spring.

Excuses for failing

E

1. Just? What test?
2. Everyone else did.
3. I was sick.
4. I had three other tests that day.
5. It was impossible.
6. The professor hates me.
7. I couldn't understand the TA.
8. The books weren't in the bookstore the day before.
9. But I want to Mary to study.
10. Maybe I shouldn't be an engineer.

Pick-up lines

1. Want to come up to my room and see my exotic fish?
2. There's a very bear in my room.
3. Aren't you in one of my classes?
4. So, are you from New Jersey?
5. So, are you from Long Island?
6. Weren't you in the Mr. Lehigh contest?
7. Do you want to dance?
8. Can you walk me back to my dorm?
9. Did I meet you last night—I don't remember very much.
10. I can get you behind the bar.

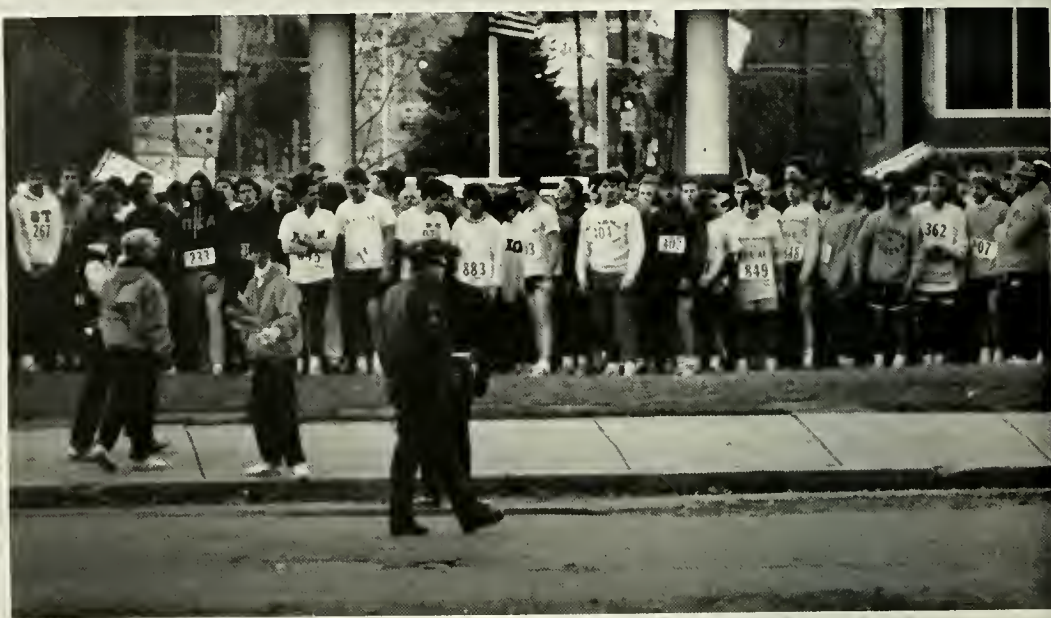

Professor's lies

1. I grade fairly.
2. The final will not be cumulative.
3. I will be available during my office hours.
4. I don't give you quizzes.
5. I'll have your exams back next week.
6. The exam shouldn't last the full three hours.
7. Feel free to call me at home.
8. It's no problem to use library.
9. The TA can help you with any questions that you might have.
10. All that you have to do is try to do well to be come to class and keep up.

As Lehigh/Lafayette weekend neared, many students fished their dust-covered sneakers out and began jogging in droves around campus. Were they getting in shape to go for the post? Well, not quite. Most were practicing for the annual Turkey Trot, a grueling 2.6 mile course up to the top of the Hill and back. This year's was held on a cold, windy 16th of November.

The usual crowd entered, consisting of undergraduates and graduates, students and faculty, athletes and athletic hopefuls. The course was harsh, but the runners were cheered on by beer-waving spectators who lined the course.

Graduate student Joseph McVeigh won the men's title, and Christine Gramlich finished first to earn the woman's title. But as everyone who ran the Turkey Trot knows, it didn't matter if you won or lost, whether you ran, jogged, walked, limped or crawled. What was important, was whether or not you finished.

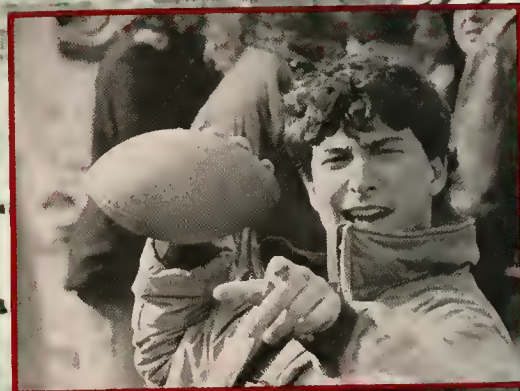

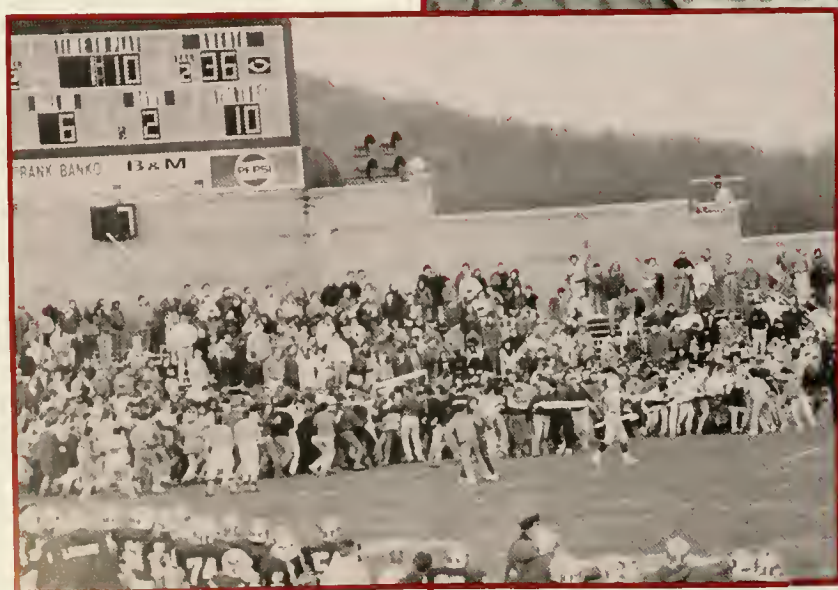

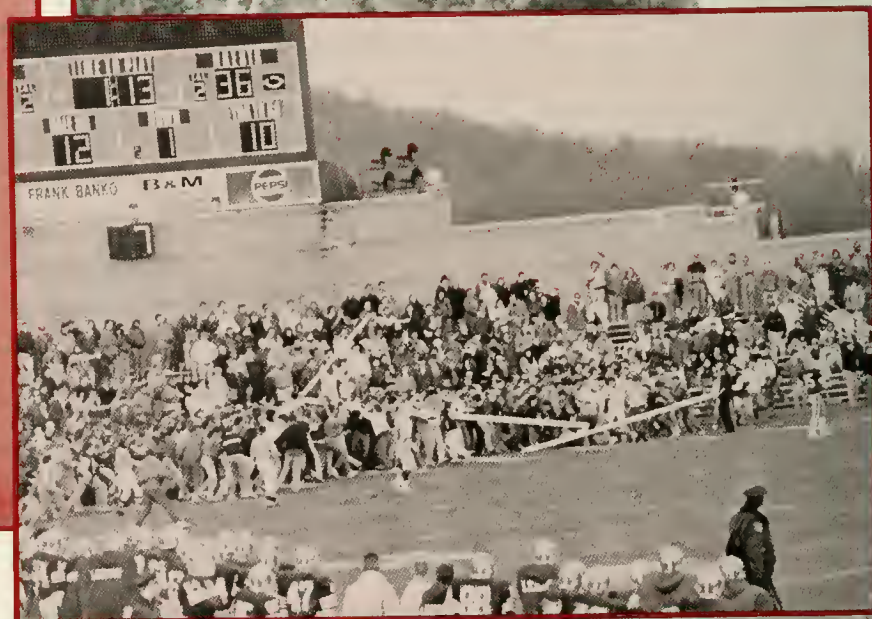

TURKEY TROT

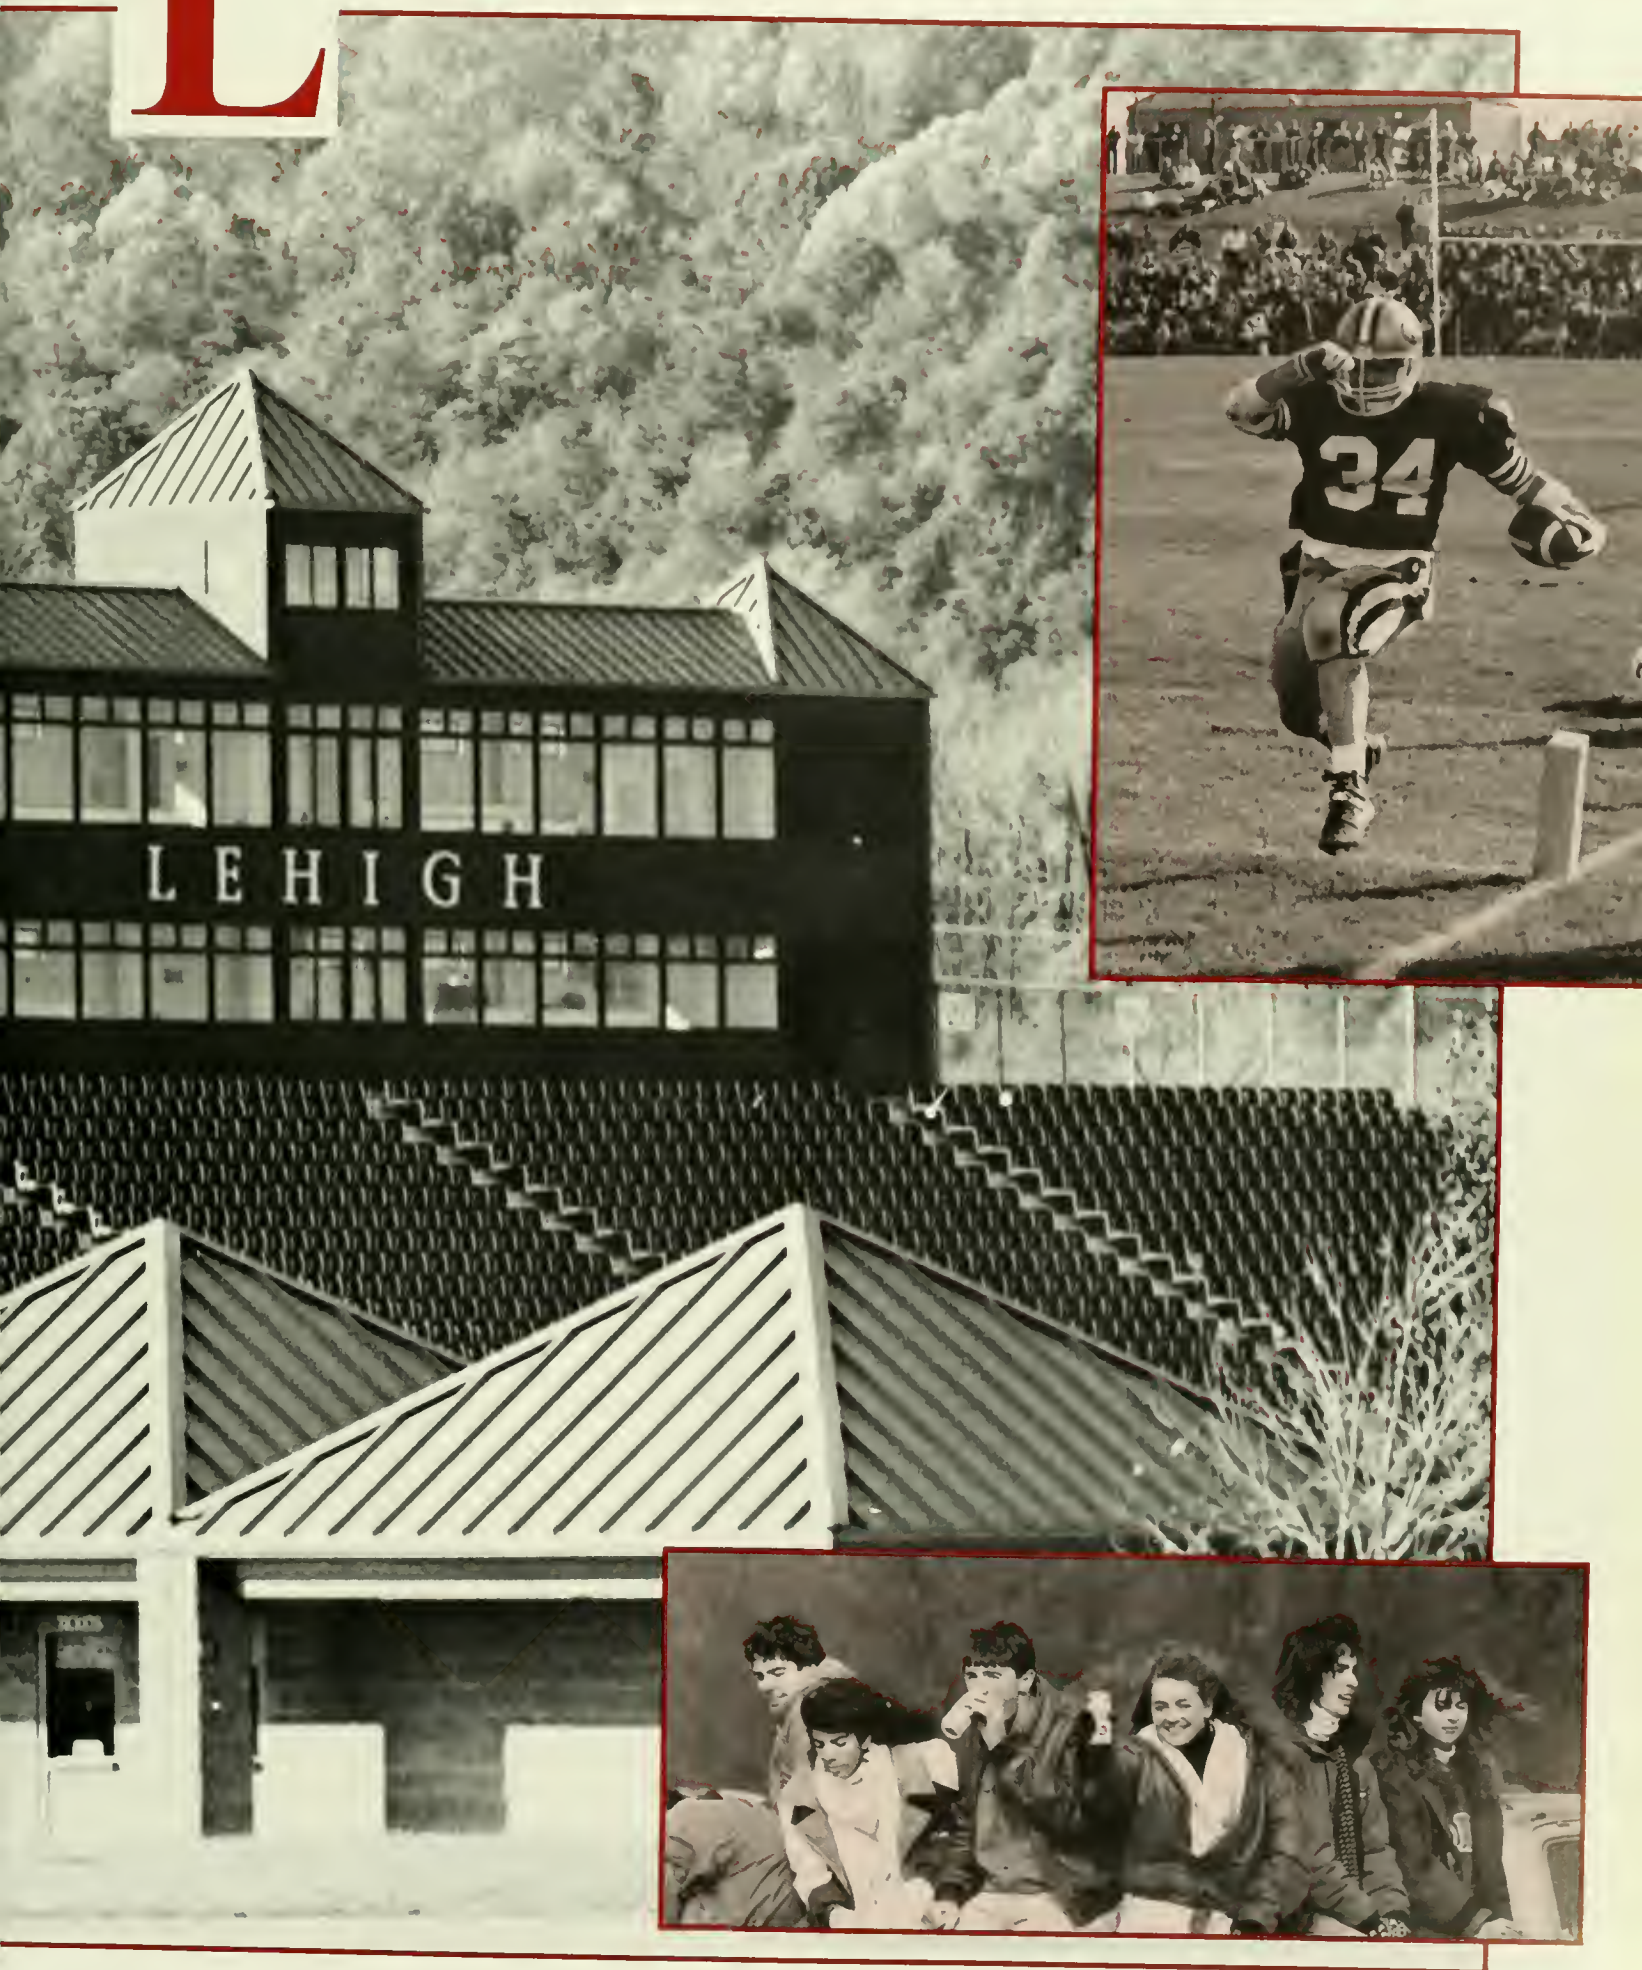

Lehigh is a school of many traditions; one of the most famous being the annual Lehigh/Lafayette football game. This year the two teams met for the 125th time, and Lehigh hosted the game. The Leopards challenged the Engineers for the first time in the new stadium in the valley, and the Goodman stadium proved to be the perfect setting for the long-term rivalry. Thousands of students, faculty, and alumni attended the game to cheer on the Engineers, but, unfortunately, Lehigh lost the game 36 to 21.

The Lehigh/Lafayette weekend is one of the biggest events of the year. The Student Activities Council sponsored comedians who performed during the week leading up to the game, and students also celebrated by attending the numerous parties on the Hill.

Other traditions surrounding the game are the tailgating parties and the annual race to get a piece of goalpost. The new stadium provided ample space for tailgating, and the parking lots were overflowing with a sea of fans enjoying themselves before (and during) the game. The game ended a few minutes early as eager fans burst through the barriers to rip down the wooden goalposts. These pieces take their places above fraternity bars as coveted souvenirs of the game.

WINTER

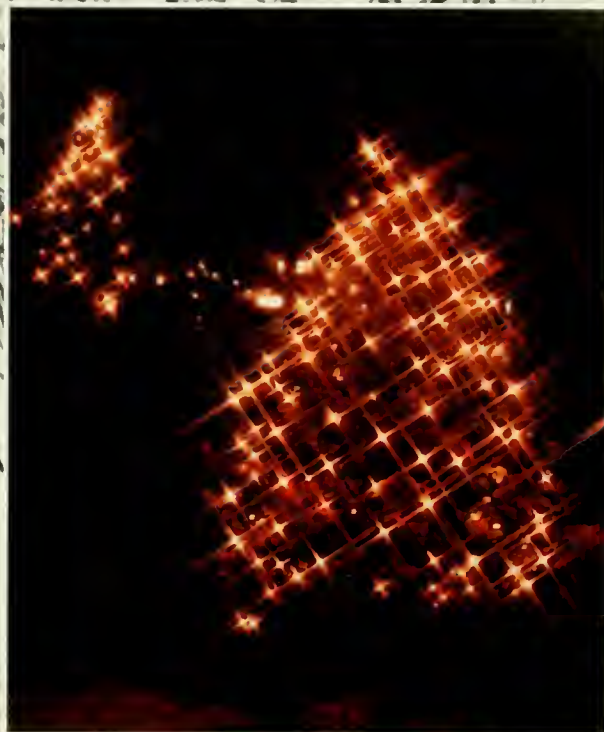

Come December, Bethlehem undergoes a transformation. By the first day of December Christmas trees and Moravian stars have made their yearly debut, and proliferate with dizzying speed as the month continues. Wreaths appear on almost every door, and sparkling lights decorate everything from trees to porches to shop windows.

One of the pleasures of going to Lehigh is attending a school in "Christmas City." The spirit radiating from Bethlehem brightens the Lehigh community and helps ease the tensions of finals.

CHRISTMAS CITY

In the fall of 1990 Lehigh's campus will see the completion of new Rauch Business Center on the old site of Taylor Stadium. Construction of the new building has been going on throughout the year, and the center is the source of much pride for the Lehigh Community. When the Rauch Center opens the College of Business and Economics will move out of Drown Hall and be consolidated in one space. The size of the Center will allow business professors and teaching assistants to be located in one area as opposed to being scattered around campus. In the next few years there will be much movement around campus as various departments utilize the space opening up in Drown Hall and elsewhere.

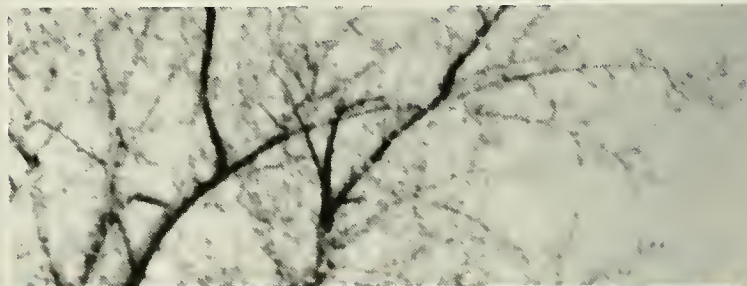

NEW BUSINESS CENTER —

Spring arrived late this year, suddenly, out of nowhere. It came just in time for Greek Week, after a winter which seemed to last for an eternity—complete with snow flurries in April. A week of non-stop rain, which transformed the campus into a giant mudslide, signaled the beginning of a late spring, as did the convention of red-breasted robins found on the Maginnes lawn early each morning. And then, once the rains subsided, a week of absolutely perfect weather. Spring was finally here.

All the usual signs of spring at Lehigh: people sun-bathing on the U.C. lawn; afternoon crowds of people outside Mart, having deserted their books because "it's just too nice outside to study"; music blasting from the dorms—and from almost every moving vehicle on campus; classes held outside (invariably half of the students are sound asleep); an invasion of prospective students and tour groups. As winter layers were shed, the number of joggers and people in the gym systematically doubled each week.

This spring was one characterized by cultural, political, and environmental awareness. France and its culture were highlighted one week in honor of the visit of former president Valerie Giscard. The following week was one of heightened consciousness toward our fragile environment, beginning with Earth Day on 22 April. Lehigh students joined with members of the Bethlehem community for the day at Sand Island, to help alert us to the dangers of pollution and advise us as to what we can do to stop the destruction of our earth. The campus was also visited by Isaac Asimov who echoed the ideas expressed during Earth Week as he talked about the importance of increasing Global Consciousness.

SPRING

Greek week fell in late April this year and coincided with the longest stretch of nice weather that Lehigh had seen all spring. Temperatures hovered in the 70-90 degree range all week, so many students took advantage of the warm weather to throw themselves whole-heartedly into the week's activities in lieu of dealing with schoolwork.

Fraternities and sororities subjected their pledges to the usual round of Greek week contests such as pie and greeker eating, tug-of-war, and air band, but there were other activities as well.

Students enjoyed numerous band parties including a reggae band which played in Sayre Park, and many houses hosted cook-outs. All in all Greek week proved to be a great way to end the semester.

GREEK WEEK

TOP TENS

Little Annoying Things At Lehigh

1. "Leaf Busters" that start work at 7 a.m. on Saturdays.
2. A snack bar that charges for hot water.
3. Uneven stairs that lead nowhere.
4. The question, "So what house are you in?"
5. Having to drive to Saucon Valley to go to a football game.
6. Hoards of "teenage mutant ninja" squirrels.
7. All offices are closed from 12-1, the time when most students are free.
8. TA's that don't speak English.
9. Totally tasteless modern "art" found around the campus.
10. Callbacks.

Things We Won't Admit

1. Read the police reports in the Brown and White.
2. Sneak food into the library.
3. Steal your boxmates magazines.
4. Walk of shame (women).
5. Used the "But we just talked" line (guys).
6. Lied about forgetting something because you were drunk.
7. Steal dishes, glasses, food from the U.C.
8. Go to the gym/library to scope.
9. Raid fraternity kitchens.
10. "Forget" to call someone.

Things To Do After Graduation

1. Write a Resume.
2. Start looking for a job.
3. When that doesn't work, start pulling family connections.
4. Contemplate grad school.
5. Go to work waiting tables at Bennigans.
6. Come back for Lehigh/Lafayette weekend and get arrested.
7. Ponder what you want to do with your life.
8. Go Eurail it through the Continent with Dad's American express.
9. Join the Marines, join the circus.
10. Fail and put off reality one more year.

CAMPUS

In less than a month, the class of 1990 will be packed into Stabler listening to Carl Sagan. As that day approaches with increasing velocity many seniors find themselves reflecting on the four years passed at Lehigh. College. Life on campus. So much has happened in four years—what are the most memorable? How will we perceive the faces peering out at us from a musty yearbook twenty years from now? As mere photos? Or will they truly bring back memories?

We will look back and remember our freshman hall and first roommates. Maybe of rush and pledging. A particularly interesting course or dynamic professor. Experimentation—with classes, with people, with our own limits. First love. First hangover. First job.

We have not gone to Lehigh to simply rush through our education or through four years of socializing. How has this place affected us? What is it about Lehigh, not just our college experience, that we will remember? How many of us have looked at the gargoyles and faces scattered across the facade of the Alumni Memorial Building, sketched Packer Chapel, or found ourselves up at the look-out—sometimes late at night, or morning, or dusk?

Will we miss Lehigh, or just being young, hopeful and in college? True, many of our memories will be shared by graduates of other universities, but there is a definite Lehigh experience—unique to each of us—whoever we are: Greek or independent, athlete or activist, party animal or serious student.

Who can forget Eco 1 with J.R., Tailgating at Lehigh/Lafayette, all-nighters in Packer Lab, the noon chaos in Grace Lounge, bed races, sunrise cocktails, the network, Gryphons—all of these are part of life at Lehigh.

The Lehigh experience is somewhat difficult to define, but it is something that we all share. Maybe it has something to do with going to school on the side of a mountain—we have learned to climb wherever we go, and it has given us a different perspective. We may have to walk up eighty steps to get to our rooms, but its worth it. We see things that many people don't get the opportunity to see. Being on the side of South Mountain gives us a clear view of the valley, but it gives us a lot more. Lets try to remember what Lehigh has taught us—to set our goals high and aim for the top.

A farewell message from the President

Another message from the president can't have a great deal of meaning in 1990, after four years of presidential exhortations that sometimes sound like sermons from "dear old dad." But you'll read this Epitome again in twenty years, or thirty or fifty, and then you will want to remember your president's parting words.

As the years go by, I want you to think increasingly seriously about the responsibilities that you carry away with your Lehigh degree. Most apparent now is the privilege that lies before you, the privilege to use your enhanced capacities freely in pursuit of objectives you define for yourself. As your goals are achieved, I want you to recognize that the success you earn is itself a gift, and with your acceptance of that gift comes the obligation to give in return.

You have received a gift from your parents, whether you felt their presence or not. Your friends have given generously to your development. Teachers and coaches have helped you in all of life's early stages. Your turn comes to be a parent, a friend, and a teacher. Be worthy of your Lehigh education, and meet these responsibilities well.

Sincerely,

Through the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps program, the Aerospace Department develops future Air Force officers from talented motivated students. The program combines challenging academic courses, a rigorous physical fitness program and Leadership Laboratory. Through this program, our students can meet the challenges of tomorrow's Air Force.

Two new members joined the staff this year. They were new assistant professor Major Patrick C. Keating and Admission Counselor Captain Jonathon N. Lohnaas. These new faces and the "old hands" provided an excellent mix of enthusiasm and experience to lead the cadet corps.

The cadet corps for the 1989-1990 academic year was 94 students strong. The cadets were very active. The corps held several functions honoring our veterans. In September, they sponsored a 24-hour Prisoner of War/Missing in Action freedom run. Opened to all members of the university and the local community, over 100 runners covered the two mile course throughout the vigil. On Veterans Day, the cadets conducted a flag raising ceremony at the University Center flagpole.

On the social scene, the cadets sponsored several activities. They conducted several pizza and volleyball nights. They also held receptions for both the freshmen and upper-classmen parents weekend. In the best military tradition, the corps' dining-out was the social event of the year.

The department's program is very demanding. The cadets' hard work make the program a success.

Art And Architecture

The Department of Art and Architecture was diminished by the departure of Nicholas Adams who left for Vassar and strengthened by the arrival of Tom Peters who is also director of the Center for High Rise Habitat. Richard Redd was on leave lecturing and exhibiting in China. Visiting professors were Christine Ussler-Trumbull in Architecture, Dr. Janet Smith in Art History and Berrisford Boothe in Art Studio. We also note the retirement of Mary Ellen Orben as department administrator who was the recipient of the Zirkel Award in 1989 going to an outstanding member of the staff.

Providing high quality officers to lead the soldiers of the United States is the mission of the Army ROTC. Army ROTC at Lehigh since September 1919 when Lehigh University was one of the first universities in the country to establish a ROTC unit on campus. The program has continued uninterrupted through to the present. This year Lehigh Army ROTC commissioned 26 new second lieutenants to maintain this proud tradition. The Lehigh ROTC program draws students from other colleges in the the Lehigh Valley and had an enrollment of 140 cadets this past year.

The training is designed to be both enjoyable and challenging and to develop leadership and managerial skills in the cadets. The instruction familiarizes cadets with the customs, traditions and history of the Army, and teaches them the basic skills that they will need to know as officers in the Army. The weekly leadership laboratories and weekend field training exercises give cadets the chance to do "hands on" training and apply and practice the concepts that they learn in the classroom. During the summer between their junior and senior years, cadets attend Advanced Camp at Fort Bragg, North Carolina along with cadets from other colleges and universities on the East Coast. During the six weeks of intensive and very physical training, the cadets are placed in various leadership positions and evaluated on their effectiveness as leaders, and their ability to accomplish the assigned mission. When they return from Advance Camp for their senior year they are prepared to assume their role as leaders of the cadet battalion.

However, Army ROTC is not all hard work and field and classroom instruction. Social events like the Military Ball in the spring and the Battalion Dining-In in the fall and the Freshmen Parents Reception provide the opportunity for cadets to have fun, share experiences and build long-lasting friendships while learning about the social aspects of the military. The cadets also organize and conduct Operation Santa Claus in December to help brighten the holidays for the underprivileged children of the area.

So the four years of Army ROTC have sped quickly by and hopefully all the training and hard work have paid off to make the ROTC class of 1990 better leaders and prepared them better for their future careers as officers in the Army. The Department of Military Science will remember the Army ROTC Class of 1990 as a hard working and dedicated group who set and attained high standards and who contributed immensely to making the Lehigh ROTC program better and to passing their knowledge and expertise along to the underclasses. Best wishes for a bright and prosperous future!

Lots of exciting things are happening in the Department of Biology.

For example:

*In May, 1989, Lehigh was notified by the Howard Hughes Medical Institute that we have been awarded $1,000,000 for a 5-year program to enhance undergraduate education in the biological sciences.

*The ecology program in the department was awarded a $300,000 grant from the Andrew Mellon Foundation for research on the aquatic biology of lake ecosystems in the Pocono Mountains.

*Several new large research grants in genetics were awarded, including one grant from the U.S. Department of Energy for the study of bacterial genes that could potentially be involved in cleaning coal biologically and another grant from the National Institute of Health on x-chromosome inactivation during mammalian development.

*A large-scale revamping of the undergraduate biology curriculum was introduced. The "old" introductory courses Biol. 21 and 28 were dropped, and a new set of three core courses became the foundation for all the major programs available in the department.

The new core courses are:

Environmental and Organismic Biology
Cell and Molecular Biology
Genetics

New 1-credit labs to accompany these three core courses will be introduced in 1990.

*Our graduates continue to do well. Many alumni from the department are now practicing physicians in a wide range of specialties. Many others have obtained Ph.D.s and now have positions as professors and research directors. For example, you will find a Lehigh biology grad at the following places:

- on the faculty in Virology at Harvard
- directing a lab at the Center for Disease Control
- running a research program on yeast genetics at the Cold Spring harbor laboratory on Long Island

There are many other examples. Lehigh Biology is fully engaged in helping educate life science professionals for helping us face the biological and global challenges of the next century.

During the past year Professor John W. Larson was named Chairman of the Department of Chemistry. Joining the faculty was professor Gregory Ferguson whose interests broadly span synthetic inorganic, polymer and materials chemistry. Professors Thomas E. Young and Henry Leidheiser, Jr., who served on Lehigh's faculty since 1958 and 1968, respectively, became professors emeriti. Professor Michael J. Behe was on leave to collaborate in protein structure at the Milton Hershey Medical School.

Upperclasspersons may recall the large periodic table with elemental symbols laboriously lettered in Old English on the wall in Neville I. That table has been "updated" to a more nearly conventional form, but more than one student noted that the "e" was missing from the symbol for Cerium. Professors Klier and Foster lectured in Chem 21 with students at times taking data 'live' during class demonstrations which concerned the spot certain textbook values of key properties.

Move of several biochemistry faculty from the Mudd Building to the Mountaintop Campus has produced the best of both worlds. Unavoidably added to the time budgets of Professors Alhadeff, Behe, Lowe-Krentz and Schray are shuttle trips to meet classes and to confer with students thereafter. The basic biochemistry laboratory courses are now given in Mountaintop laboratories; students also shuttle but can be near special facilities.

The Keck Computer Laboratory set up in the previous year by Professor Kraihanzel was ever more heavily used by undergraduates, graduate students and faculty. Professor Lovejoy regularly held workshop sessions in Chem 341. Chemical Engineering juniors were camped out in the Keck Lab much of the time with double-barreled assignments from Professor Simmons in Chem 189 and from Professors Roberts, Sturm and Zeroka in Chem 192. The several PCs are now interconnected by an ethernet LAN to augment the lab's scope.

Some twenty-two juniors (mostly) from eighteen different institutions spent the summer of 1989 participating in research projects and also attended a "Frontiers in Chemistry" seminar series. All branches of the University and the local community were invited to programs highlighting the importance of chemistry in society as part of National Chemistry Week.

Instrumentation added to the Department's facilities spanned both instruction and research capabilities. In one moderately-fast reaction kinetics experiment a recent data acquisition and digestion system replaced the older process of measuring oscilloscope traces. New instrumentation for biochemistry majors includes a Beckman refrigerated table-top centrifuge as a core facility. A major surface science electron spectrometer (ESCA) instrument was delivered during the year. It is the most sensitive in the world with regard to both energy and spatial resolution.

International Relations

The department assists students who wish to study abroad. There are established programs in London, Paris, Geneva and Vienna.

An exciting feature is the Cohen International Lecture Series which brings distinguished speakers to the campus each year. Previous speakers have included former National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski and former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Professor Rajan Menon, who is on a two-year leave of absence, completed his first year as a fellow at the grant awarded by The New York Council on Foreign Relations, working with Congressman Steven Solarz in Washington.

Professor Bruce E. Moon has been awarded the Class of 1961 Professorship, which recognizes the teaching and scholarly activities of a newly-promoted associate professor.

The Common Denominator Mathematics Club, for undergraduate students interested in Mathematics and Statistics, has been active this year. The members, along with their advisor, Professor Gregory McAllister, sponsored a lecture by Professor Jerry King titled "The Magical Art of Mathematics." The club also arranged for Professor Albert Wilansky to speak on "How to Pass Exams Without Actually Cheating." The club will also participate in Moravian College's mathematics Symposium. The club brought several speakers from government agencies and industry to the University to address interested students about career opportunities. The Common Denominator has also been instrumental in recruiting new Mathematics and Statistics majors by participating in the "Majors Fair" at Lehigh. They also hosted numerous departmental social events.

David Sanchez, Lehigh's provost and a member of the Mathematics Department, has been on leave to head the Mathematical and Physical Sciences Directorate at the National Science Foundation in Washington, D.C. Dr. Sanchez joined Lehigh in 1986.

Donald Davis was on leave for the fall semester at the Mathematics Science Research Institute in Berkeley. Lee Stanley also attended the MSRI during the fall semester. While at MSRI, Professors Davis and Stanley survived the 1989 earthquake. Don was awarded the Joseph Libsch award for research in 1989. Professor Davis also presented a Fractal Art Mathematics Exhibit. The exhibit consisted of original photographs of computer-generated images of mathematical sets that have the "fractal" property, in which small portions mirror the whole.

Each year the Mathematics Department hosts a prominent mathematician to speak at the Everett Pitcher Lecture Series. This series honors Everett Pitcher, a Distinguished Professor Emeritus and also former Mathematics Department chairman. This year's speaker was Professor Stephen Smale from the University of California at Berkeley.

Professor Susan Szczepanski has been promoted to Associate Professor with tenure at Lehigh. Susan will be a recipient of NSF funding to pursue research in singularity theory. Several other members of the Mathematics Department currently hold research grants from the National Science Foundation and other sources.

In December of 1989 the "Midatlantic Logic Seminar" will be meeting at Lehigh. This seminar is funded by NSF and run by Professor Lee Stanley. Professor Donald Davis also conducted a Geometry and Topology Festival sponsored by the Journal of Differential Geometry and Lehigh.

Professor George McCluskey, the sole member of the Division of Astronomy, has kept busy this year. He gave a public lecture on Voyager II and a televised interview on Voyager II. He also holds a National Aeronautics and Space Administration grant to study Binary Beta Lyrae.

During the 1989-90 academic year, the Mathematics Department is experimenting with the College of Engineering in video lectures. The Linear Methods lectures of Jay Wood, a visiting professor from Bowdoin College in Maine, are being transmitted via two-way television to students at York College. This process allows students viewing the lecture to be active class participants asking questions or taking part in discussions.

New in the Mathematics Department this year is the C.C. Hsiung Fund for the Advancement of Mathematics. Professor Hsiung is a Professor Emeritus and also the founding editor of the Journal of Differential Geometry which is housed at Lehigh University.

The graduate program in the Department was honored in 1989 by an extremely successful celebration of the 50th anniversary of the awarding of the first Lehigh Ph.D. in mathematics. The first mathematics Ph.D., Professor Edward Kennedy of Princeton, N.J., spoke at the event, and more than one-third of our 129 Ph.D.s, returned to participate. The graduate students currently in the department have initiated their own colloquium series.

Modern Foreign Languages

The Department of Modern Foreign Languages has had a banner year.

We are in the first year of a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) to improve and promote Russian and Chinese courses, and we have signed a contract with the Hokkaido Foundation to begin offering Japanese courses this fall.

The new language requirement has kept us very busy, and students are beginning to realize that foreign language skills are essential in an era of globalization. We have seen a tremendous increase in enrollment with many more majors and minors, particularly in French and Spanish.

We have acquired two new faculty members in the department in Chinese, Assistant Professor Connie Cook, and in Russian, Assistant Professor of Russian Mary Nicholas will assist in expanding overseas studies to include a summer stay in the Soviet Union. New course offerings will cover Russian literature from the Middle Ages to the modern period.

Assistant Professor of French Marie-Sophie

Armstrong received a grant to write an article about Camus in the summer of 1989. She also presented a paper at the University of New Hampshire on Zola and on Camus in Toronto. She also attended a conference in Colorado and on Computer Aided Language Instruction.

Assistant Professor Antonio Prieto (Spanish) read two papers dealing with Cuban exile literature and published an interview with the Argentine novelist Jose Bianco. He is active on the Latin American Studies Committee and is organizing a Latin American film series.

Assistant Professor Peter Musolf was a Visiting Fellow at Cornell in the summer of 1989, studying at the invitation of the German Exchange Service.

Visiting Assistant Professor of French Marie-Helene Chabut is a specialist in Eighteenth-Century French literature. She has had an article accepted for publication recently in Diderot.

Adjunct lecturer of Hebrew Harriet Parmet is on the Academic Advisory Board of Jewish Studies of the Hillel Board. She teaches a Freshman

Seminar on the Israeli Short Story and a course on the Cultural Mosaic of Israel.

Professor of French Lenora D. Wolfgang is the first regional delegate to the Modern Language Association of America (MLA) to be elected from Lehigh. She has a book being published by the American Philosophical Society and gave a paper at their annual meeting in April.

Philosophy

Philosophy continues to flourish at Lehigh among faculty and undergraduates alike. The annual Reading Party was again held in a lovely old Connecticut country house. About a dozen students and several faculty examined some recent thoughts about art under the guidance of Hugh Silverman, a former Lehigh student (B.A. in French, M.A. in philosophy) who is now a professor of philosophy at SUNY, Stony Brook. The Philosophy Club continued meeting weekly to discuss topics from free will to fashion.

Our Selfridge Lecturer, Allison Jaggar, explored the role of emotion in the construction of knowledge and spoke on the Good, the True, and the Politically Correct.

The faculty revised the curriculum for introductory courses to provide for discussion groups of no more than twenty-five students, beginning in the fall of 1990. These will be led by full-time faculty members, and perhaps an adjunct or two.

Jesse Hobbs (philosophy of science and philosophy of religion) and Gregory Schalliol (ancient and modern philosophy) substituted for John Hare, who was on leave for the year.

And graduates in business and engineering have been coming back to tell us how much their philosophy courses continue to mean to them. They seem to agree with Socrates, who says, "The unexamined life is not worth living."

Physics is the search for the fundamental principles which allow us to think about the world of matter, energy and their interaction in a clear and simple manner. It is the foundation for the understanding of all natural phenomena. Education in physics enables the student to appreciate and understand the scientific achievements of the recent past and to actively participate in current research. Such training also equips the student to apply physical laws and experimental techniques to a wide range of applications.

Lehigh offers four undergraduate and two graduate degrees in physics: the B.A. and B.S. in physics in the College of Arts and Science; the B.S. in engineering physics and a five year, two B.S. in electrical engineering—engineering physics in the College of Engineering and Applied Science; and the M.S. and Ph.D. in physics.

The physics department currently has 21 full-time faculty, 2 postdoctoral research scientists, 52 full-time graduate students, and 26 declared undergraduate majors in the two colleges. Normally 60% of the graduating seniors proceed directly to graduate study in physics. A few continue their studies in areas outside physics such as engineering, law and medicine. Students who seek employment with a bachelor's degree will often be employed in an R & D section of a large company.

The physics faculty is committed to providing outstanding undergraduate and graduate programs, and our graduates have been very successful.

Greetings from our quaint outpost—Price Hall. It is from this well-appointed, luxurious structure that the faculty, staff and students of the Department of Social Relations venture forth seeking the truth about social behavior. Our computer lab hums, the word-processing room chatters, the coffee lounge bubbles and joint rocks, particularly in a high wind. The administration once again drafted one of our very own to be a dean; Dean Gatewood joins Deans Lasker and Frankel who have served beyond the call of duty. The rest of us remain ever vigilant on our own various watches. New faculty, Professors Spade and Tannenbaum have contributed dash and elan to our usual esprit de corps. Professor Campbell continues to enlist co-teachers in all of his seminars while Professors Rosenwein and Herrenkohl continue converting the great unwashed to social psychology. Professor McIntosh completing his ninth and last year as chairperson soon will be found grazing in the lea surrounding "Our Home at Lehigh!"

Lehigh's Psychology Department, which has the greatest number of majors and minors in the Arts and Science College, also has one of the fastest growing graduate programs in the College. Eleven dedicated faculty keep at the leading edge of their particular fields by conducting research, and presenting their work at major scientific conferences. A broad range of courses is offered in basic psychology as well as in the areas of biopsychology, cognition and learning, developmental, personality, experimental and abnormal psychology. Located in historical Chandler-Ullman Hall, we have ample space and state-of-the-art facilities for upperclass undergraduate students to acquire valuable firsthand experience in the Child Development Laboratory, the Cognitive Laboratory, the Biopsychology Research Facility, and the Phobia Research Program, etc. Also offered is a departmental honors program in which seniors can work on projects to allow in-depth psychological study beyond that permitted by normal coursework.

The BA in psychology provides preparation for a variety of different fields. In addition to serving as a preparational degree for further study in psychology, our program prepares graduates to go on to graduate studies in social work or special education, for example, or to medical, dental or law school. The minor in psychology is often used in conjunction with degrees in marketing, international relations and other fields. In summary, the Psychology Department faculty is committed to helping students achieve their full potential.

Science, Technology And Society

The Science, Technology and Society Program, which was originally established at Lehigh in 1972, is the product of a continuing intercollege effort to create a common ground from which to explore the relations between science, technology and society; between ideas, machines and values. The STS Program serves as a focal point for a wide range of courses that study the natures of science and of technology, and analyze their social and personal implications. It lends coherence and visibility to offerings otherwise dispersed throughout the catalog.

For many years the STS Program has offered a minor for students interested in complementing their more traditional disciplinary major with studies in some interdisciplinary aspect of the relationships between science, technology and society. Whether it was engineering students desirous of learning more about the social context within which they would be doing their work, liberal arts students interested in knowing about the technical background of political issues they might ultimately have to vote on some day, or business students anxious to understand more fully the value content of technical decision-making processes in the managerial world, STS has offered an opportunity to study these questions along with many more topical issues of the day. Then two years ago, the Program also made available for students a new interdisciplinary major in STS Studies, and this year Kenneth Frieze will graduate as the first Lehigh STS major. He is also double majoring in Economics.

The STS Program sponsors numerous public lectures, colloquia, and seminars throughout the course of the academic year. This year STS has co-sponsored semester-long weekly seminars with the Philosophy and History Departments on philosophy and history of technology respectively. The dynamics of interdepartmental and intercollegiate interaction for both faculty and students alike make for both a stimulating intellectual experience, but also provide a more realistic preparation for students entering into their professional adult careers where life is not arranged simply by academic disciplines.

Theatre

The 1989-90 academic year was a busy and creative one for Lehigh's newest department, which replaced the division of speech and theatre in July of 1988.

Interest in theatre is growing throughout Lehigh. With the help of adjunct assistant professors Daina Robins and Andrea Roney, we expanded our Introduction to Acting course from three sections to five—and turned away enough students to fill three more! Enrollment in Jeffrey Milet's design and technical classes also enjoyed an unprecedented boom. In all, more than 500 students from all three undergraduate colleges took a theatre class this year. We graduated four theatre majors and ten theatre minors from all over the University.

Besides the extensive practical experience it offers our students, our production program is becoming a valuable educational resource for other departments as well. Classes from the departments of modern foreign languages, philosophy and English, among others, used our productions as the basis of class assignments and discussions.

Our 1989-90 Lehigh University Theatre season opened with assistant professor Pam Pepper's stunning production of LIFE IS A DREAM. Visiting assistant professor Annamaria Pileggi and her students in Theatre 185, Production Seminar, worked as an ensemble to produce AUNT DAN AND LEMON in December. The spring semester began with Augustine Ripa's lively production of THE CAUCASIAN CHALK CIRCLE. The season closed with AGNES OF GOD, directed by Bryan McVeigh '90. Students in the advanced directing class presented their year-end one-act plays at the Lab Theatre in Coppee Hall.

Sold-out performances at Wilbur were common as attendance was over 95% of capacity for the season. Each production was entered in the American College Theatre Festival (ACTF), with a number of our students traveling to the Regional Festival at Penn State in January to participate in the Irene Ryan Acting Competition. Chairman Augustine Ripa and assistant professor Pam Pepper visited other schools throughout the year to adjudicate their productions for ACTF.

The Department of Accounting enjoyed a reputation as one of the strongest and largest programs for undergraduate majors on the campus. Approximately 100 students graduated with 60% or more entering public accounting. Accounting Alumni rose to the highest ranks within their chosen professions. Among the larger public accounting firms, Lehigh alums were partners in each of the well-known firms.

These alumni were also generous when it came to sharing their success with Lehigh. A trip through Drown Hall could find study lounges, classrooms and microcomputer laboratories furnished by graduates of the department.

Also worth mentioning was the recent national accreditation attained for the undergraduate program in accounting. The curriculum leading to a major in accounting was one of 60 nationally accredited programs. The accreditation process of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business was a rigorous examination of faculty, course content, students and resources which added additional luster to a program with a long history of success.

The field of finance is concerned with the transfer of funds from savers to users and the allocation of funds within an enterprise among competing demands for the funds. Attention is also focused on the institutions and instruments necessary to facilitate this transfer of funds. Hence, the Department of Finance offers courses and undertakes research in the areas of Business Finance, Investments, Security Analysis, Portfolio Management, Financial Flows and Markets, Bank Management, Financial Futures and Options and International Financial Management. In this way it has been able to prepare students for attractive careers in the finance function of intermediaries such as investment banking, financial analysis, institutional investors and national and international capital markets.

Economics

Joining the economics faculty this year were Professors James Deardon and Judith McDonald. Professor Deardon formerly taught at American University and Prof. McDonald is on leave from SUNY (Binghamton).

The interest shown in the economics major at Lehigh remains high, with approximately 20 students in the College of Business and Economics and the College of Arts and Science electing the major. The Economics Society is growing. Under the direction of Professor Colleen Callahan, the club provides an opportunity for students and economics faculty to meet informally on a regular basis and discuss current economic issues or aspects of the curriculum. It is also designed to provide improved channels of communication concerning job opportunities for economics majors. Student officers are Michael Mott, Karen Keane, Ken Frieze, Mike Loughran, Laura Mills and Pat McDonough.

The past year also saw new inductees into Omicron Delta Epsilon, the National Economics honor society. The students selected for ODE were Elizabeth Lawrence, William F. Rowley, Kenneth Holdsman, Susan M. Armento, Robert K. Varano, Karen B. Fischer, Lawrence R. Fink, James S. Batti, Tracey L. Rice, Allison W. Mack, Sanford J. Hodes, David E. Andrews, Julie A. Shapiro and Margaret Taulane. Professors Larry Taylor, Tony O'Brien and Allen Moran serve as advisors for the group.

The Economics Colloquium Series continued to bring in economists from around the world to speak to faculty and students on various topics. This year, the Colloquium Series presented talks by Dr. Andrew Jones, University of York (England); Dr. Daniel Raff, Harvard Business School; Dr. Frank Diebold, University of Pennsylvania; Dr. Ken French, University of Chicago; and Dr. John Abowd, Cornell University.

Law And Business

The faculty of the Department of Law and Business consists of Ifeanyi Achebe, who specializes in commercial law, law and international business; Brain Brockway, who specializes in commercial and tax law; George Nation, who specializes in corporate and commercial law; and Perry Zirkel who specializes in labor and education law. Brockway and Zirkel are senior faculty, both of whom are at the distinguished level of "university professor." Achebe and Nation are assistant professors, who add breadth and growth to the teaching, research and service activities of the department.

The department provides a range of courses, from the popular university-wide offering in Introduction to law to advanced graduate-level courses in Commercial Law.

In the research area, the faculty continue to increase their production of publications in national journals.

For the first time in several years, the Department of Management is staffed at its authorized level with a complement of ten full-time faculty. ALDEN BEAN, Kenan professor of management and technology, completed his seventh year as director of the Center for Innovation and Management Studies, a unique industry/university cooperative research center for the study of the relationships between technological innovation, management decision-making, industrial growth and productivity. In addition, Bean serves as program director of the nationally distinctive satellite-delivered master's degree program in management of technology, an academic program offered by the National Technological University based in Fort Collins, Colorado and delivered via satellite to graduate students around the nation. Closely associated with this NTU program is TED SCHLIE, newly arrived associate professor of management and technology from the Illinois Institute of Technology, who serves as director of the program's field projects. Prof. BEN LITT also works with NTU along with being deeply involved as a behavioralist and organization theory specialist in the Manufacturing System Engineering program, a graduate degree program designed to provide broad-based understanding of integrated manufacturing systems from both the engineering and management perspectives.

Professor JOHN BONGE is completing his twelfth year as director of the Small Business Development Center, an integral part of a statewide network that provides counseling to business clients in all counties surrounding the Lehigh Valley. Closely connected to SBDC is LUMAC, the undergraduate course that for 17 years has enabled hundreds of senior business majors to gain experience as management consultants to business organizations seeking assistance in specific functional areas. JOHN STEVENS, associate professor, serves as associate director of the center together with co-jointly administering the LUMAC course. Stevens, who served as chairman of the department from 1986 to 1989, also assisted as a member of the advance team to Poitiers, France in early 1989 to establish the College of Business and Economics student-faculty exchange program between Lehigh and the Ecole Supérieure de Commerce et d'Administration des Entreprises de Poitiers. Also working on this advance team were Dean RICHARD BARNES, professor of management, and JAMES HOBBS, Magee professor of business administration. Dean Barnes delivered several lectures at Poitiers in early 1990, followed by Hobbs who taught a two-week business policy/strategy module while on sabbatical during late Spring of 1990—in addition to completing the second edition of his Homophone-Homograph American Dictionary and a follow-on update of "Corporate Staying Power," a study focusing on attributes that account for the successful performance of the most consistently profitable large American publicly-held corporations over the past ten to 35 years.

SUSAN SHERER, assistant professor of management, accepted membership in the prestigious Society of Information Management, composed of top information executives in leading business and public sector enterprises and key academicians in the field of information technology and systems. In addition, Sherer presented a paper on assessing the risks of software failure to the equally prestigious 10th international conference on Information Systems in late 1989. MICHAEL KOLCHIN, associate professor of management, recently attained the Certified Purchasing Manager designation along with being elected director and trustee of the Center for Advanced Purchasing Studies and receiving two distinguished service awards from the National Association of Purchasing Management. PETER POOLE, newly arrived assistant professor of management from North Carolina, is a specialist in organization behavior embarked on a major research project analyzing the dynamics involved in transforming a particular military organization toward a mission redefinition. And AL BIRD is completing his doctoral dissertation at the University of Houston.

In short, various department faculty are deeply involved in projects ranging from instructing via geo-stationary satellite technology, managing complex technology and manufacturing systems engineering, coordinating undergraduates in management consulting activities, administering and participating in international programs, plus conducting research in information systems, computer logic, linguistics, purchasing and materials handling and identifying the attributes of success in highly profitable business enterprises—projects and activities that immediately and eventually weave their relevance into undergraduate coursework under the direction of the department's faculty.

Departmental progress continued at a hectic pace this past year. The faculty completed a long and complicated evaluation of the undergraduate curriculum and submitted their recommendations to the Engineering College for its approval. If all goes well, the new curriculum will be in place for the fall semester of 1990. Future students will receive basic training in the processing, properties and structure of ceramics, metals, polymers and electronic materials. Students with senior standing will then be able to select a minor within their MS & E major and focus on processing, characterization, specific materials (e.g., metals, ceramics, polymers or electronic materials), or the industrial and/or research options.

New laboratory equipment has been added to the undergraduate program. Four state of the art bench microscopes and a new metallograph have been made available to our students. Our graduate research activities continue with major developments being made in several areas, especially with regard to the ceramics and electron microscopy efforts. Funding for two new electron microscopes has been identified with deliveries due within the next 18 months.

With the departure of the Chem. Eng. Dept. to the new Mountaintop campus, we have been able to expand our facilities and restructure lab space to improve our teaching and research capacity. It has also been possible to open a student lounge which already serves as a focal point for casual meetings among the faculty and students and a place to convene to meet with alumni, parents and visitors.

The class of 1990 may represent a low point in student registration for our department with three-fold increases expected for the classes of 1991 and 1992, respectively. The senior class helped greatly to spread the word about the exciting career possibilities in the field of materials. Our faculty continues to receive awards for their outstanding contributions to the field. Last fall, Dean Pense, formerly Chairperson of MS & E was elected fellow of ASME.

We will be having a big party next year with the celebration of our 100th anniversary of the founding of the metallurgy Dept. at Lehigh. You're invited to come back and join in with the festivities.

The Computer Science and Electrical Engineering Department is the largest academic department at Lehigh with about 425 undergraduates (sophomore to senior) and 210 graduate students, of which 85 are full time. The CSEE curricula within the College of Engineering and Applied Science are accredited in Electrical Engineering, Computer Engineering and Computer Science. These disciplines are central to the national effort to deal with the issues of international competitiveness. They range from the fundamental design and theoretical aspects of engineering to computer and informational systems required to manage and transform major production or administratively orientated enterprises.

Active faculty review of the undergrate program assures timely response to meet the demands of the rapid progress in our disciplines. Equally important has been a recognition for the need to provide more opportunities for students to meet and work with faculty members in less formal settings. These include working with student organizations such as IEEE and ACM, students branches and an Artificial Intelligence student group. A faculty committee works actively to increase these interactions, with, for example, special orientation days for sophomore and with more activities of a similar nature.

Computer facilities have been expanding significantly by a recent AT&T award to strengthen our UNIX environment through a second 3B15 superminicomputer as well as sixteen graphics terminals. Beyond this are departmental Intel, Sun, Tektronix, Valid and Hewlett packard work stations for both instructional and research use. Opportunities exist for undergraduates to participate in these activities.

Research activities include extensive facilities and work in semiconductor devices including silicon processing facilities within Fairchild Laboratory, compound semiconductor materials growth, device characterization capabilities, broad electronic design including both VLSI and high frequency microwave circuits, error-correction coding theory, computer networking, parallel architectures, computer expert systems and artificial intelligence.

The Industrial Engineering Department is now settled in Mohler Laboratory at 200 West Packard. Our newest faculty member, Laura Burke, arrived in September. We deeply regret the loss of Professors Wallace Richardson and George Kane.

We have been doing a lot of planning in the Department, as well as in the College, with a view towards updating our direction for the upcoming years. This is particularly appropriate in light of the decline in enrollments, changing faculty and plans to strengthen out research and graduate programs. The present decline in engineering enrollments throughout the nation presents a threat to our ability to meet engineering demands for the next decade. Here at Lehigh we have experienced a reduction to a certain extent in the number of applications for admissions this past year but this has not affected the quality of our incoming Freshman class. In Industrial Engineering we are experiencing our proportionate share of the problem.

The profession continues to change through events, people and technology which makes it necessary for us to respond by making adjustments in our academic and research programs. Our curricula at both graduate and undergraduate levels are again being revised to include greater emphasis in computer integration, artificial intelligence and quantitative methods. Our direction for the next five years will proceed to: (1) expand the base of our enrollments from the traditional Northeastern Region to a national source; (2) strengthen our graduate programs along with expanding the research programs; and (3) enhance the growth and development of our young faculty.

Returning from leave of absence during the year were Professors Harlow, who was at the naval Postgraduate School, in Monterey, California, Professor Sih, who was on internal leave with considerable time spent in the Far East, and Professor Stephanoff at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York.

Professor Delph received one of the two best teacher awards given by the College of Engineering and Professor Johnson, the best ME teaching award given by Pi Tau Sigma, the honorary ME society. Professor Johnson also received the Ruth and Joel Spira Award for the outstanding teacher in Mechanical Engineering. Professor Rockwell was the co-recipient of the annual Eleanor and Joseph Libsch Award for outstanding research.

An additional distinction, not academically related but no less important, was enjoyed by Professor Stephanoff, who was married in September, 1989.

At the end of yet another school year, once again another Epitome has been produced. After much worrying, sweating, cursing, typing and cropping, the members of this year's Epitome staff saw the completion of their individual sections. We are as excited as everyone else to see the final product, another yearbook deemed worthy to be placed next to all those preceding it.

As we say goodbye to the Class of 1990, we also say goodbye to some very dedicated members of our staff. With ten of our twenty editors graduating, the staff will be looking for new editors to fill in the gaps. We hope that the hard work and dedication of those leaving will continue to be a part of the future Epitome staffs.

The style of the Epitome encompasses 8 different sections including opening candids, features, academics, activities, sports, living, seniors, and advertisements. Candids are placed throughout the book to bring light to the many aspects of Lehigh life. The features section tries to capture the special events unique to each year. Academics gives recognition to the various departments and offices throughout the campus and allows them to submit a blurb describing their changes or accomplishments from the past year. The activities section was designed to let the various clubs and organizations around the campus highlight their activities and recognize their members.

This year's sports section provides team photos and small capsules on various individual players. The living section is divided into three smaller sections: on-campus living, off-campus living, and greek life. It allows small groups of people living together to purchase space in the book for a photo and blurb about their living experiences. Fraternities and sororities are also recognized with their composite picture, a blurb, and various candids. The senior section provides senior portraits, individual college activity information (mini-resume), and parent messages.

Advertisements from campus and local groups are sought to help finance the book. The Epitome is not funded by the University and therefore must raise funds through book sales, photo sales, advertisements, and selling space to the clubs and living groups.

This year's Epitome ran across as many problems as the others did, and we complained just as much. We missed some deadlines and we misplaced a lot of photos, but we did a lot of work and we had a lot of fun. We hope you are as pleased with the 1990 Epitome as much as we are proud of it.

American Society Of Mechanical Engineers

The ASME is very active here at Lehigh, sponsoring several activities each semester. Some of the events held are strictly social, while others are interesting learning experiences. Each semester we take many trips to plants, such as Stroh's Brewery, Bethlehem Steel, Keebler, and Crayola. Through ASME, speakers come to Lehigh to give lectures on topics such as Bio-medicine, the job market and aerospace. Other activities are held to improve student-faculty relations. Our main objective is to get students excited about their major, by exposing them to experts and things that are not taught in class.

Society Of Women Engineers

This year, the Society of Women Engineers, an organization of the female engineering students across the country, accomplished many things. From sponsoring a "Tea with the Deans" to hosting prospective junior and senior high school students to introduce them to engineering, the Society has promoted the woman's place in the engineering world at Lehigh. Overall, the year has been a productive one, and the hard work will benefit female engineering students during their time at Lehigh.

This year's officers included: President, Erin Cummings; Co-vice President, Amy Cohen; Co-vice President Sandy Stelling; Treasurer, Evelyn Gebauer; Co-secretary, Holly Strey; Co-secretary, Maureen Wimmer; Career Day Chair, Linda Eickemeyer; Outreach Chair, Laura Gaffoglio; Outreach Chair, Vicki Ardent

Tau Beta Pi

This year marks Tau Beta Pi's 104th anniversary at Lehigh University. Tau Beta Pi, the national engineering honor society, was founded at Lehigh University in 1885, by Professor Edward H. Williams.

The Lehigh chapter was 50 strong coming into the 1989-1990 academic year, but after the fall initiation has 113 active members, consisting of the top junior and senior engineers in the school. The spring initiate class will be approximately 50, bringing the end-of-the-year total to 163 members.

This year's Tau Beta Pi is led by a fine class of officers: Kevin Klopfer, President; Minesh Shah, Vice President; Paul Hyde, Corresponding secretary; Jake Fotopoulos, Recording secretary; Joseph Haas, Treasurer; Doug Singer, Initiate coordinator. With the help of chief faculty advisor Walter Hahn, these officers will foster scholarship and integrity on the Lehigh engineering scene.

Eta Kappa Nu

The Chi chapter of Eta Kappa Nu was founded at Lehigh in the 1950's. Eta Kappa Nu is a national Electrical Engineering honor society. The society strives to improve faculty/student relations, both academically and extracurricularly. We have sponsored pub nights to allow students to socialize with their professors in a casual environment. Eta Kappa Nu also provides tutoring in ECE courses through the university's tutoring center. Trips to places of interest are also planned. The society has about 25 members. Juniors in the top quarter of their Electrical Engineering, Computer Engineering, or Computer Science classes, and Seniors in the top third of these classes are eligible for membership. Induction services and a dinner are held in the early spring. Elections for the following year's officers are held at the end of the spring semester.

The IFC serves as a forum where both fraternity members and non-fraternity members alike may come to introduce and address pertinent problems. Throughout the past year, the IFC has accomplished many things. Perhaps the most important of these was aiding in the further adjustment to the changes of Lehigh's social policy. A need for increasing cooperation among all fraternity men necessitated the introduction and signing of a Gentlemen's Agreement. Increasing communications between the IFC and both the administration and Panhellenic communities was a goal of the IFC. An enhanced image of Lehigh's fraternity system was established through the Southside Alive carnival and other community events.

We welcomed a new member to the Greek Community this past year: Rob Robeson will be an asset to the Lehigh Community. The IFC will remain an integral part of the Greek system here at Lehigh.

Tae Kwon Do

Tae Kwon Do is a Korean Martial Art which demands personal achievement. The goal in Martial Arts is to improve both the mind and body. Tae Kwon Do translates to mean "the way of life of the foot and hand."

The Lehigh University Tae Kwon Do Club has approximately 30 active members. The club meets to train 3 times per week. In addition, members often train on their own. Training consists of exercises to build strength, flexibility, and speed, forms to demonstrate power and technique, and sparring to practice controlled fighting.

The Tae Kwon Do Club is open to all University students and faculty.

Having begun in March of 1988, the Gymnastics Club is relatively new to Lehigh. The club has 40 coed members and practices in Taylor Gym on Tuesdays and Thursdays, 4-6 pm. Practices include stretching, conditioning, slow tumbling, and plenty of time to work on what you want.

Through our fundraisers, $15 dues per semester, and the budget, we have purchased over $3000.00 worth of new equipment. We plan on continuing to expand.

If the members wanted to compete, we could arrange meets. However, most members enjoy a relaxed atmosphere. The club was established so members could "stay fit - meet people - learn gymnastics."

PERFORMING ARTS

Mustard And Cheese Drama Society

The Drama Club, the Mustard & Cheese Drama Society, was established in 1884 because a bunch of guys wanted to dress up as women. Today we have the same spirit, but since women go to Lehigh, we don't bother cross-dressing (most of the time). What we do is a mystery, but it mainly concerns taking part in productions by Lehigh University Theatre. On occasion we get together and generally do theatre things, like going to NYC and seeing a show or even putting on our own shows or skits. We try to serve the Lehigh and surrounding communities by providing not only great entertainment but refreshments at Lehigh University Theatre productions. Members are chosen from those people who have given a sufficient contribution to two shows. Executive Board members: Tim Stephenson (President), Ted Nolan (Vice-president), Geoff Zink (Secretary), Amy Kantra (Treasurer), Bryan McVeigh (Historian).

Orchestra

Since 1973, the String Orchestra has graced Lehigh University with strains of old favorites like Boyce's Symphony #2 and Britten's Simple Symphony, as well as several hundred concerto grossos. With headquarters in Lamberton Hall, amidst the tropical tranquility of the Lehigh Music Department and Shooting Range, the orchestra boasts a membership of 18. According to the orchestra's superconductor, Jerry Bidlack (also known for his operatic abilities), the orchestra is a place for students to explore some interests outside of their studies.

So, if you're ever in the mood for some chocolate chip cookies, fluctuating tempos, or just have nothing to do on a Wednesday night, why not drop by Lamberton for a rehearsal?

Dancin'

Dancin' originated as Lehigh's dance club in 1982 as a ballet club bringing together both experienced and inexperienced ballet dancers. The club officers taught the students and led the ballet classes. The club has since expanded to include ballet, jazz, and modern dance students as well as professional choreography. Dancin's recent past has included trips to outside performances by visiting dancetroops and Lehigh performances on campus by the dance club.

Classes, which are held on a regular basis are taught by professionals from surrounding areas. Members of the club are of varied experience ranging from no experience in any type of dance to twelve years' experience in tap, jazz, ballet, and pointe. The classes are therefore divided into beginner and advanced groups and are taught at a pace appropriate to each group. Dancin' provides, for Lehigh students with years of dance experience, an opportunity to continue their interest in dance in a challenging, yet informal atmosphere. For the inexperienced, Dancin' offers a structured introduction to different types of dance and a basis to continue, as well as the enjoyment of staying in shape and meeting students with similar interests. Dancin' is led by President Linda Stone, Vice-President Beth DeMarte, and Treasurer Linda Micale.

Members: Lynda Stone, Beth DeMarte, Tuesday Thomas, Renee Medica, Scott Pilzer, Renee Vecere, Tanya Rodriguez, Jennine Rixon, Winnie Yeung, Linda Micale, Susanne Demsey, Margie Ross, Regina Acton, Julia Salinardi, Marisa Gesilippo

In 1989, Lehigh's "Finest in the East" was back to partake in yet another year of great marching, musicianship, and merriment, on and off the field.

On the field, we were celebrating great Engineer football, as always. This year was the 125th Lehigh-Lafayette Game and we were there. We were there at every other game too, with away trips to the Dust-Bowl at Fordham, the Monsoon-Bowl at Yale, the Sweat-Bowl at Bucknell, the Wind-Bowl at Harvard, and the Sub-Arctic Bowl at Colgate.

The Marching 97, however, was back this year, not only for the great Engineer football traditions, but for many great community traditions too. Dressed in halloween costumes (some more dressed than others) we were back as old favorites at the Hellertown Halloween Parade, and we were back as the premier band for the Bethlehem Halloween Parade. The 97 was so psyched this year that we even played in Bucknell's Homecoming Parade. This year, as every year, members of the band could be seen, and heard, playing Christmas carols at nearby senior citizen houses. Of course, we visited Pete Likins' house last.

The 97 is proud to be a part of Lehigh, and is proud to be a representative group for Lehigh in the community.

Marching 97 officers for the 1989 Season include: Manager, Ed Allen; Drum Major, Will Millhiser; Student Student Conductor, Mike Magyarics; Instruments and Uniforms, Bev Jones; Freshman Manager, John Scott; Senior Representative, Brian Exner; Staff Assistant, Tina Minor; Librarian, Peggy Ryan; Publicity Manager, Scott Tisdale; Director, C.J. Hamman

The Lehigh University Choir is proud to be a part of the growing Lehigh musical tradition. The group consists of sixty members, and is under the able direction of Dr. Steven Sametz. Dr. Sametz has led the choir in works by composers ranging from Bach and Mozart to Robert Moran and Benjamin Britten. The choir participates in four concerts a year on the campus, including the annual Upperclassman Parents' Weekend concert and the Christmas Vespers service. Having toured extensively, we have visited places such as Puerto Rico and the U.S. Islands. Our recent accomplishments include the world premiere of Robert Moran's "Hagaromo" for a live audience in New York's Merkin Hall and for a new music radio program heard around the world. This growing group is always looking for new challenges and new members. If you are interested, contact the Music Dept.

Lehigh Christian Fellowship

Lehigh Christian Fellowship (LCF) is a chapter of Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship, a non-denominational, national organization of Christian college students dedicated to serving and bringing Jesus Christ to their campuses. LCF stresses personal growth through discipleship, weekly small group Bible studies, worship and prayer. Fellowship is also found through missions projects (Haiti, Florida, Atlantic City), LCF dinners, road trips, pizza parties, beach-barbeques, volleyball, movie nights, hiking, canoeing, and many other activities.

Hillel Society

Lehigh Hillel Society aims to facilitate and enhance a viable Jewish community life on campus. Although students are away from home, they don't have to lose touch with their Jewish identity. This is where Hillel comes in. Hillel provides a variety of programs for its nearly 200 members. Some of our traditional events include: membership Bar-B-Q's, transportation to nearby synagogues for the holidays, Friday night services and dinners, holiday parties, and our popular bagel brunches. Hillel also sponsors several educational programs such as our monthly "coffee, cake, and chatter" sessions (CC & C), which are designed to gather students and faculty to discuss topics of interest and debate issues that affect the Jewish community in a non-political atmosphere. In the past, Hillel has sponsored and co-sponsored several distinguished lecturers such as Senator Joseph Biden, Isaac Bashevis Singer, Elie Wiesel, and Chaim Potok. Nearly every holiday has a Hillel-sponsored event such as Rosh Hashanah dinners, Sukkah and Purim parties, and Passover Seders. Students have the opportunity to attend the annual B'Nai B'rith Hillel Convention, where members convene from across the country to discuss important current Jewish topics and obtain new ideas from other students.

Hillel also gets involved with a variety of community service projects, such as going to local nursing homes. This year, interaction with other Hillels increased as a number of neighboring Hillels attended our events. Also this year, Hillel acquired a new director, Sharon Cohen. Our faculty advisor is Dr. Roger Simon. One of our goals this year has been to create an organization which is more dynamic, unified, and responsive to the needs of Jewish students on campus. This year, Hillel had a very dedicated group of board members. On behalf of this year's Hillel Board, I believe that we have fulfilled our goal beyond a doubt. Mazel Tov and Shalom!

Asian Students Association

The Asian Students Association was established to inform Lehigh University and the Lehigh Valley about the various Asian countries and cultures. The club tries to promote general awareness of unknown, exotic Asian cultures and traditions. We have introduced shows and dances such as the shadow puppet show from Java Indonesia and the tenikling bamboo dance from the Philippines. In addition, the club organizes lectures on topics often related to Asia's NICs (Newly Industrializing Countries). Due to the diversity of the different Asian cultures, the club is able to attract a wide spectrum of ethnic groups, as well as those interested in these fascinating cultures.

While almost everyone else is out in the parking lot tailgating at football games, there is a group of students who are already inside the stadium waiting for the pregame ceremony. The Lehigh University Color Guard spends many hours each week preparing for a multitude of ceremonies. Among these are football games, Graduation, parades, and other military and University events.

The Lehigh University Color Guard is a ceremonial honor guard sponsored by the University and affiliated with the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps. Although any student may join, the Color Guard is generally composed of eight to ten members of Army ROTC. A Color Sergeant is in charge of the group and is selected each year. This year's Color Sergeants were Terry Johnson and Lynn Zebrowski. There is also a unit of the Color Guard maintained at Kutztown University.

In the Spring Semester, the Color Guard sponsors its annual training trip to Washington, D.C. While in Washington, the Color Guard trains with the "Old Guard." The Old Guard is the Honor Guard for the President, and also guards the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery. It is considered a privilege and an honor to train with this highly proficient unit. Following training the Lehigh Color Guard tours Washington, D.C.

Association Of The United States Army

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) is a national organization formed 47 years ago as the "one voice" of the Total Army: the active, the retired, the Army Reserve, the Army National Guard, the Army civilian, and the soldier's family. AUSA has as its principle objectives the education of the public, liaison with industry, support for the people who serve in their country's uniform, and their professional development. The association is devoted to increasing awareness of matters concerning the Army and the landpower force in general. Members host activities that show the public what the Army offers and how our defense department operates to defend the nation. The association also sponsors field trips for members to military functions to increase their understanding of the Army. The AUSA's annual national meeting is the nation's leading defense forum. The AUSA has just completed its fifth year on campus here at Lehigh and maintains its charter with continued enthusiasm.

Members: Major E. Gromoff (Sponsor), Rex Schultz (President), Mark Chiaverini (Vice President), James Pelletier (treasurer), John Williams (Secretary), Christina Havas, Rachel Beck, Jennifer Biron, Edward Gliot, Christine Granda, Laura Owens, Maurice Sipos, Phillip Volpicelli, Robert Winkler, David Ockovic, Terry Crownover, Laura Farpour, Tobias Lewis, French Lewis, Gretchen Miller

The '89 football season started off strong with a big win at Fordham, unfortunately it ended with a loss to Lafayette. However, these two games somewhat typify the team's record this year. The Lehigh team ended its season, once again, with a nearly even win/loss record. The early victory over their new Colonial League opponent gave them an early boost of confidence. The next game, a home game against UMASS, provided another season highlight as Lehigh became the fourth team in college football history to play a 1000th game. They were also the first non-ivy school to reach this mark. The rest of Lehigh's season consisted of ups and downs. Victories were achieved against, in addition to Fordham, Towson State, Harvard, Bucknell and Northeastern. Lehigh saw quite a winning streak during the mid-season. Other home wins were achieved against Towson State and Northeastern. In keeping with tradition, the last game was against archrival, Lafayette. This year marked the 125th meeting of the rivalry. It was the first time the historic game was played in the new Goodman Stadium. It was the largest crowd ever in the stadium. The game drew 18,623 spectators.

In addition to viewing the record of the team as a whole, many outstanding performances were turned in by individual players. Seniors contributed much to this year's team. Notably, Quarterback Todd Brunner, who finally started for Lehigh this year, had an outstanding season; exceeding the expectations of many who hadn't gotten the chance to see him play much until this year. Number one tight end Vance Cassel and Rob Varano, who established a new single season receiving record, also completed their final year of football for Lehigh. However, the team also had strong support from players who will return next year. This year junior running back Erick Torain passed the 3000 yard mark, despite plaguing injuries. Although the team finished the season with a 5 win 6 loss record, they played well and retain depth for the Lehigh football future.

The Lehigh Cheerleaders celebrate another score by the Engineer's potent offense. The cheerleaders did a tremendous job motivating the fans and supporting the football team this year. They had much to celebrate and were seen pounding the ground in the endzone quite often as a result of Lehigh's high scoring offense. This dedicated group faced arctic like temperatures, yet still maintained enthusiastic for the benefit of the fans.

Lehigh's Kevin Costello, #34 has just completed a play against Northeastern. Jarrod Johnson #55 is signalling to the coach to show him how much yardage is needed by the Engineers to get a first down.

"The success of our season depends on our confidence, our togetherness, our will to win. How badly do you want the win? Whoever said winning isn't everything probably didn't win too often."

Lehigh's Walter Somol weaves his way through heavy traffic on his way to the goal during an Engineer soccer game. While playing primarily at the halfback position, Somol helped Lehigh to its 8-8-1 record during the '89 season.

A member of the Lehigh women's volleyball team soars high above the net in anxious anticipation of a spike. The Lady Engineers spiked their way to a 6-28 record during the 1989 campaign.

Freshman Amy Carley: a strong, hard working, devoted new member of the field hockey team. Carley began her Lehigh career after the first few games of the season. Playing center back she is an excellent defensive player. Her teammates describe her as a "small girl packed with power". This season she displayed excellent dexterity and stick work. Amy Carley will definitely be an important asset to the team in the next few years.

The Lehigh girls tennis team reached for the sky in a season that took them to a 6-3 record (6-0 in ECC). With seven returning letterwinners, they won the East Coast Conference tournament for the fifth time in eight years. Giving the team a positive outlook for next year is the dazzling play of freshman Maria Clemente.

An explosive, record-shattering attack featuring senior quarterback Todd Brunner kept Lehigh University statisticians and rival defenses working overtime during the 1989 football season.

Brunner, son of Minnesota Vikings backfield coach John Brunner and brother of former NFL quarterback Scott Brunner, finally got his chance to start. After having thrown the ball only 30 times over the last three seasons, Todd enjoyed a remarkable season unequalled in Lehigh history. He threw for 3,516 yards and 26 touchdowns. His total yardage of 3,639 ranked him third nationally in I-AA total offense. This barrage enabled him to re-write Lehigh's passing and total offense records as he set 13 marks and tied another. The only marks escaping him were interceptions in a game and in a season.

Lehigh's rugby team came back from a rough start this year to eventually win the Mid Atlantic championship, placing themselves among the top 16 rugby teams in the nation. The team was led by seniors Charley Barth, John Lee, Erich Able, Chris Hanson, Eric Wertz, and Kevin Luer. Bath cited junior John Clark's performance this year. "He was probably our MVP, a very physical player." Said Clark, "I was really pleased with this year. I had anticipated this as a great season from my freshman year." He said this was due to the experience that the players had gained since three seasons ago, and the fact the all the forwards were returning starters. He had been apprehensive about the performance of the backs, who had only one returning starter, but said they did quite well.

Clark's main concern now is recruiting, as he would like to be able to field A, B, and C teams which the players were unable to do this year. "Maybe we can offer them more beer or something," he said jokingly. But he was extremely pleased with the season as a whole. "We're really happy that our team gained the recognition it deserved."

Barth was also pleased with this year's performance of the team as a whole. "This season was a bit of a shock. I thought this would be a rebuilding year with so many of our string players having graduated, but we wound up with a great team that came up big."

"If Andrea is into the game, then undoubtedly everybody is into the game," said junior midfielder Caroline Kurz about senior Andrea Lauer, the Engineer's field hockey goalie. Lauer, one of the tri-captains, played a vital role in the team's success this season. Graduate student Ruth Ervin stated, "Andrea is a major contributing factor to this year's success because her intensity can easily control the tempo of the game, and in whole, the season." As a result of her great athletic ability, Lauer was named Outstanding Athlete of the Year. Lauer has been an outstanding member of the team since her freshman year when she was on the 1986 championship squad. During that year Lauer helped the team win the championship by carrying a save percentage of 76.9%. In her award winning year, she gave up an average of only 1.6 goals per game. Since then there has been no turning back for Lauer.

(Above) Junior Kevin Costello was able to elude a Northeastern defender and go on for a further gain on the play. The game ended in a victory for the Lehigh Engineers. (Below) The high powered Lehigh offense breaks out of the huddle after Todd Brunner calls the play. They are led by junior Jarrod Johnson, who has been named to the second team All League as a center. Other important players include: grad student Rob Varano, who set the all time Lehigh record for receptions in the season. Rich Windish stepped in to replace Keith Petzel who was injured this season. Reserve tail back Chris Menet proved to be a hard runner, and was a good fill in for star tail back Erik Terrain when he needed a rest. Mike Hendricks is an All League senior who anchored the offensive line.

"There's no one out there to help me. No coach. No teammates to look to. Standing 100 feet away is someone who doesn't give a damn if I'm tired. It's just me and her. That's what it's all about."

John Lee poses for the camera during a break in a game against Bucknell. Lee played 2nd row scrum (forward) for Lehigh's ruggers and was a co-captain this year. Lee started playing rugby his senior year in high school.

"I liked it, and decided to play rugby here, because it didn't place the same constraints on my time that football would have."

Lee expressed satisfaction with this past season. "This was our most successful season since I've been here. We had lost our coach, so me and Eric Able were basically the coaches - that made it really gratifying to see us win." He attributed the team's success to simple strategy, executed very well, and hoped that "the idiots don't run the team into the ground once we [the seniors] leave, but they'll do really well next year."

The Lehigh University volleyball team showed high spirit and determination throughout the season. Here, a netter gets ready to match the ball over the net during a game. During the season, the team grew together. Their victories were brought on by their hard work. Together with team spirit and dedication, the volleyball team had a quite successful season.

Seven bows added with a forward role is how the Lehigh cheerleaders show that the football team has just scored their first touchdown of a game. The cheerleaders spirit and enthusiasm spurred the football team to victories throughout the season and helped keep the crowds psyched to see our home team win.

The men's soccer team avenged last year's 1-0 loss to Moravian by pounding the Greyhounds 4-1 in the 10th annual Mayor's Trophy game. This game was the first soccer game ever played in the Murray H. Goodman Stadium. The Engineer's 4-1 victory was the second largest scoring margin of the decade long series in which Lehigh leads at this time, 6-3-1.

Lehigh soccer fans saw a new rising star with the emergence of freshman Evan Stein. Stein scored more than seven goals including a hat trick against cross-town rival Moravian in the Mayor's Trophy game.

time." Lehigh hopes that he will continue to find the right place as he did in this game. Stein gave the fans, as well as his teammates, a glimpse of what is sure to be a promising career.

the young forward. "In pre-camp, I was pretty nervous," Stein confessed. "I wasn't playing like I thought I could," he said.

Stein is just one of the nine freshmen on the Engi-my in Newtown, PA. "He was a good high school player. I knew he could play well at this level," McCloskey added.

"He's a quick player," Cameron said. "He's swift, changes direction well with the ball. He's going to be the marked man next year and he is going to have to do the job."

Off the field, Stein has also adapted well to life at Lehigh. He feels soccer has helped him balance his schedule to best deal with the pressure of college.

It takes a lot of hard work and dedication to be a part of any sport. Whether it's team sports or individual sports, each take a lot of devotion. Football is probably one of the most demanding. Here, Todd Brunner (#77) holds the ball as Eric Bird (#1) tries for a field goal. Hard work, determination, skill, and good sportsmanship were all factors that made the Lehigh Engineer football team a great team. Even though the scoreboard didn't always show it, they were a team of winners.

Junior fullback Kevin Costello had a great season in 1989. Although Lehigh ended the year with an almost even record, Kevin's work on the field added much to the progress they made and helped contribute to their nationally ranked offense. Against Towson State, for example, in the second home game of the season, he had his best game as a starter. He scored two touchdowns and rushed for 92 yards. Against Yale, he gained important yardage. Against Colgate, he gained important yardage as well as scoring on a 5 yard touchdown pass from quarterback Todd Brunner. Kevin will certainly be an integral part of the 1990 Lehigh squad.

Lehigh's rugby team, an organization not meant for the weak of heart. A sport which takes skill, strength, and most of all, endurance. All of the men pictured here are required to possess these traits. Here, Lehigh and the opposing team take a quick breather as they assemble to begin the next battle.

Co-captain Alisa Edelson completes a serve during one of the team's games. Edelson and other co-captain, Nancy Walker both played in their last games in the East Coast Conference. Throughout the ECC's, Edelson stated, "If we put it together, I'm confident we will win and be on our way." With the confidence and positive attitudes of both co-captains this year's volleyball team was one to be proud of.

The Lehigh University tennis team was strong, tough, and determined. The girls felt that the year was exciting and a surprising year for them. They all prepared themselves physically and mentally to play their best. The team showed a lot of confidence and poise. Here, Elizabeth Tursi and Sandy Friedberg take a break from the match to cheer on their teammates.

Chris Cameron, Evan Stein, and Kyle Boschen paced Lehigh University's soccer team in scoring during the 1989 season and goalkeeper Scott Evans was a defensive mainstay as the Engineers compiled an 8-8-1 record in their sixth campaign under coach John McCloskey.

Cameron, a senior from Melville, NY, led the shooters with 22 points. He completed his four year varsity career with 28 goals, 23 assists, and 79 points.

Evans, a senior from Pittsburgh, PA, was solid in goal with a save percentage of .819 while giving up only 1.4 markers per game. He had four shutouts and six contests in which the opposition could score only once.

The Engineers, coming off a season in which they set a school mark for victories, began what McCloskey called a "frustrating season" 4-0-1, but then went on to lose six straight. Triumphs in their last two starts enabled them to reach .500 and avoid a losing record.

Defensive player Donee VanFleet struggles for control of a loose ball in the competitive game against Lafayette. VanFleet, a senior, is a great stick handler and extremely agile. The Lehigh field hockey team as a whole had a very exciting season. They successfully worked together to make third place in the East Coast Conference under the leadership of tri-captains Andrea Lauer, Maggie Quinn, and Kim Brower. They kept the team together through "team unity and friendly, positive attitudes." The two new coaches Jackie Keeley and Jill Johnson fit right in. Keeley had been the assistant coach for the past few years so she took no getting used to.

Also impressive on this year's team were Carol Gibson, who received All ECC honors for the fourth consecutive year, and Lauer, who won ECC Top Goalie honors.

"Maggie Quinn - always on the ball." That's how the field hockey team describes this senior tri-captain. Quinn started her successful career at Lehigh freshman year, playing left halfback. She is a very strong defensive player and always knows where to place the ball. Quinn is also a talented offensive player. For this reason she is a key player on the team. Her versatility has made her "super strategic" and is only equalled by her "will to win".

Andy Udell makes an aggressive tackle as he attempts to take the ball from a challenger midfielder. Lehigh went on to win this close battle against a tough Bucknell team. The Engineer's 8-8-1 season featured wins over Moravian, West Chester, Monmouth, Hofstra, Delaware, St. Joes, and Lafayette. The scoring leaders for the team were Chris Cameron, Evan Stein, Kyle Boschen, and Mike Skalski. Next season's team will lose only five players from this years .500 season.

Lehigh split end Rob Varano makes a catch on the opponent's fifteen yard line during an Engineer football game. During his three years as the starting split end for the Engineers, Varano amassed 152 career reception, a Colonial League record. As a senior, he was second in receptions in the nation in division I-AA with 78. Those 78 receptions, however, were good enough to break Rennie Benn's school record for receptions in a season, as well as tying him for the Colonial League record. His accomplishments as a senior earned him the distinctions of first team All-Colonial League, 2nd team Academic All American, and 3rd team AP All American. He was further rewarded when he received the first ever Colonial League Scholar Athlete Award.

Lehigh's forwards (left) stand next to Bucknell's forwards during a "line out". The two teams stand a yard apart, and the out of bounds ball is thrown between them. The forwards then fight for possession of the ball, and attempt to pass it to the backs who will carry it up to the goal.

A capacity crowd at Murray Goodman stadium await another soon to be highlight. This season's attendance at the football games were near record numbers. Withstanding bitter cold, rain, and occasionally snow, the fans filled with stands on a weekly basis, providing support for the team. The fan had much to cheer about as Lehigh's offense was one of the highest scoring offenses in the nation. The team offers it's thanks to the die-hard fans who supported them.

Team captain Mike Mott dribbles up the field during an East Coast Conference soccer matchup. Mott, a mainstay at the left fullback position, was instrumental in leading the Engineers to an 8-8-1 record during the 1989 season.

"I couldn't have asked for a better effort. They left their hearts out there. It was our best team effort of the season," said coach Mike Krause excitedly about the superb efforts of the volleyball team in their best and final game of the season against Lafayette. Krause said, "the whole team played above themselves and played as one unit, everything just came together."

The netters showed a strong sense of unity. "It was a difficult year, especially with all the injuries," Krause said. Top players such as Donna Gaugler, Cara McGrath, Barb Metaxas, Shannon Swallow, and Adrianna Suarez were plagued with injuries throughout the season.

Behind the leadership of co-captains Nancy Walker and Alisa Edelson, the team played an exciting game. Walker played very well at the net blocking while Edelson set up the middle hitters strategically to keep the defense off guard. Starters Walker, Swallow, Gaugler, Metaxas, McGrath, and Edelson brought the team to it's first victory of the match. The Leopards came back to win games two and three. The Lady Engineers increased their intensity and forced a fifth game by their stunning 16-14 win in game four. The exciting fifth game was marked by some controversial calls. However, the Leopards prevailed 15-10. It was an extremely competitive game. Lafayette coach Barbara Young predicted such a battle with Lehigh. "Every time we play Lehigh it is a battle."

Earlier in the season Donna Bejsovec stated, "The team can beat any team on any day if they play together." The efforts and unity exemplified by the volleyball team should make us all proud.

The doubles tennis match, where communication and teamwork are absolutely essential for success, was a strong point of the girl's tennis season. Concentration is a key element in singles, and in doubles it is more so. You not only have to know yourself, but your partner as well. Here the number 3 doubles team of Pia Clemente and Sandi Freidberg are pleased with the success of their match. Their record together is 8-3.

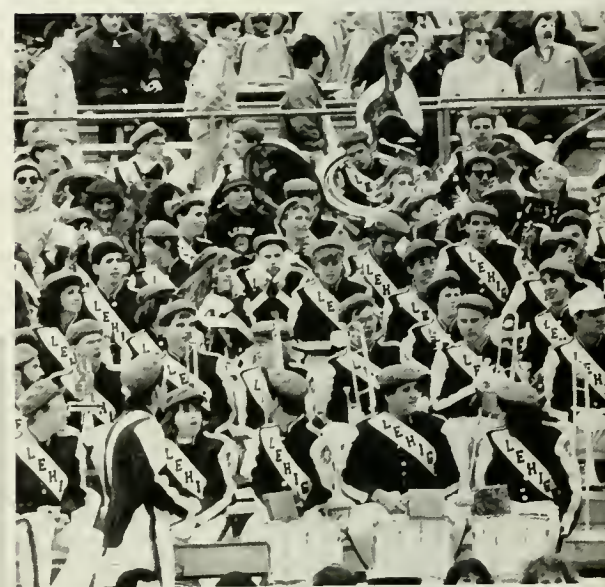

The women's tennis team had a very successful season during the 1989 fall semester. Early in the season, the women captured several victories in the league tournament. Paula Gross won the number four singles championship, and the doubles teams of Paula Gross and Marty Milicia, Liz Tursi and Jen Jacobson, and Pia Clemente and Sandi Freidberg also took victories in the tourney. The hopes of the team were stated well by Patti Denman, "We hope that our win in the tournament and our record to date will help put us in the spotlight of Lehigh athletics." The win certainly did help, but the team did not stop there.

The team went on to take six of the nine titles in the East Coast Conference Championship. This makes it the team's fifth ECC championship win during Karen Adams' tour as coach. Of the season, Adams said, "It was my goal to win both tournaments, and my kids came through." The team did a good job in making Adams' goal a reality.

The new freshman on the team, Pia Clemente, had an excellent season. She had an 8-5 record at #6 singles and she was undefeated at five ECC matches. Pia also played #3 doubles with Freidberg at which their record was 8-3. When asked about the adjustment from high school to college, Pia said that it is hard but the coach has helped tremendously.

The fall season was Adams' last as the head coach of the team. She had been coach for eight years, when asked about her coaching career she said, "It has been an exceptional eight years." Adams is leaving her position as coach to assume the position of associate director of athletics. She concludes the season quite well by having said, "The only way to go out is being a winner."

Phil Pringle, nicknamed "Tex" by his teammates, leaps in an attempt to head a ball and gain control. Lehigh had a strong offense this year en route to a .500 season led by a balance of seniors and freshmen.

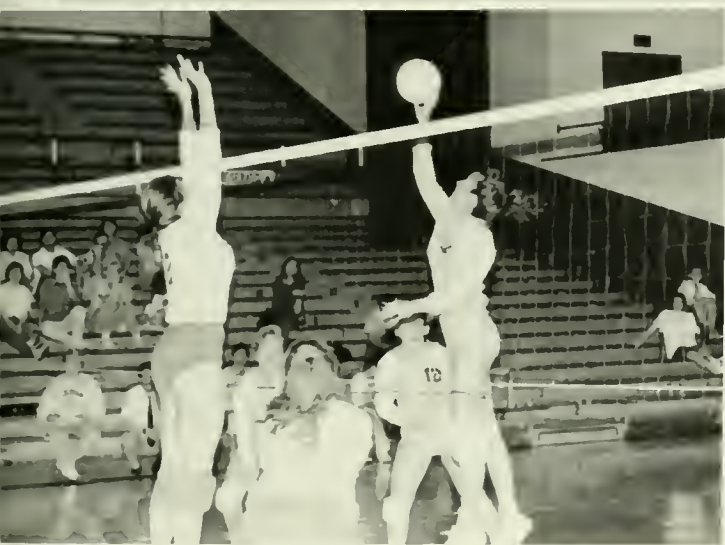

Strike up the band!!! Lehigh's band enjoys the game before striking up a tune to get the fans into the action. The band braved the elements to support the Engineers.

Brian Hensel (#59) and Mike Hendricks (#74) come together during an Engineer football game to discuss a call made by the referee during an important moment of the game.

The offensive prowess of the girls volleyball squad jump in the air in an attempt to spike the ball down on the opposing team. The girls volleyball team was stronger than their record, as they finished with an overall 6-28-0 record. These numbers do not do the team justice. The volleyball has a strong foundation that they hope can help them improve as they look forward to next year. In recent years, the girls team has not had strong turnouts, but this year's attendance was greatly improved. The team is strong on the basics, and are in top shape, as their practices include a lot of stretching and warm-up exercises. Injuries have plagued them in the past, but they were determined not to let them hinder them this season. The squad will look forward to a strong team next year, due to the fact that most of their players are returning. Their rookies got a lot of valuable experience. Next season look forward to a stronger, faster team which could well end up being the team that is left standing when the dust settles.

As we have plainly seen, Lehigh's football team suffered many injuries in '89. Offensively, their main loss was Keith Petzold, who was injured at the Bucknell game. Defensively, however, there were numerous injuries including sophomores Pete Sczerbinski and Ben Taylor, junior Razi Howe, and senior Dave Rosen. Injuries certainly had a negative impact on the season, but the reserves played strongly and Lehigh's season continued on track.

With a final record of 7-11-2, the Lehigh University Field Hockey team also played better than their record shows. As a team that is comprised of players that need to work together, they did a very good job of showing just how important leadership can be.

Maggie Quinn ('90), above, is shown giving her usual 110%. Maggie was one of the top players when it comes to dedication to the team, spirit, leadership, and all the qualities needed to be a strong, consistent, well-rounded, team player.

With support from the fans on the sidelines and players on the bench, the Field Hockey team was a team to admire for it's teamwork and grit.

Ron Katzman looks on and awaits the struggle as Phil Pringle stays on his man. Ron and Phil are both sophomores this year. Ron is a half-back and a future starter. He even started some games this year. Phil is a full back.

The team had a disappointing season, going 8-8-1, missing the conference playoffs. One bright spot were the freshman. There were five of them starting by the end of the season. The six graduating seniors are Chris Cameron, Mike Skalski, Scott Evans, Mike Mott, Tim McWilliams, and Kyle Boschen. Kyle was named to the All American team as a junior, in addition to being named to the All Region 3 times, All ECC 3 times, and the first team 2 years in a row.

Preparing themselves physically and mentally for the challenging meets held during the season, the men's cross-country team worked hard to do the best they could. Set and determined, senior co-captains Paul VanWagenen and Robert Craig led the men's squad. Other leading veterans used their experience and leadership to help guide the new talent of the upcoming freshman.

Into their 68th season, the men's cross-country team had three meets that Coach Covert thought were their best run of their season. The Paul Short Memorial Run, the Colonial League Tournament, and the dual meet verse Lafayette.

In the Paul Short Memorial Run, Lehigh placed 10th out of 25 of some of the best teams in the country. The top finishers in this race were seniors Paul VanWagenen and Jim Gross, sophomore Drew Vanderbrul, and freshman Pete Bennitt.

During the Colonial League Tournament held at Bucknell, Lehigh faced some tough competition from Bucknell who dominated the race, Lafayette and Colgate. They finished strongly in second place.

One of the most exciting victories in a dual meet that the team accomplished was when the team continued their victory over the Lafayette Leopards. They won with a score of 32-25.

The men's cross-country team took fourth place overall in the East Coast Conference. Lehigh's top runner in the ECC's was senior Paul VanWagenen who finished 15th to lead the men. Paul ran with a nagging injury during the race but in turn finished very well.

Lehigh will be looking forward to the future seasons due to the rising talent of the current underclassmen. The underclassmen helped fill in the links needed to carry the team through because of all the injuries that the top runners received this season.

Paul VanWagenen was quoted saying, "With underclassmen performing like they have been, it's an excellent sign for the future." The underclassmen gained a lot of experience this past season which shows Coach Covert that they have a bright future.

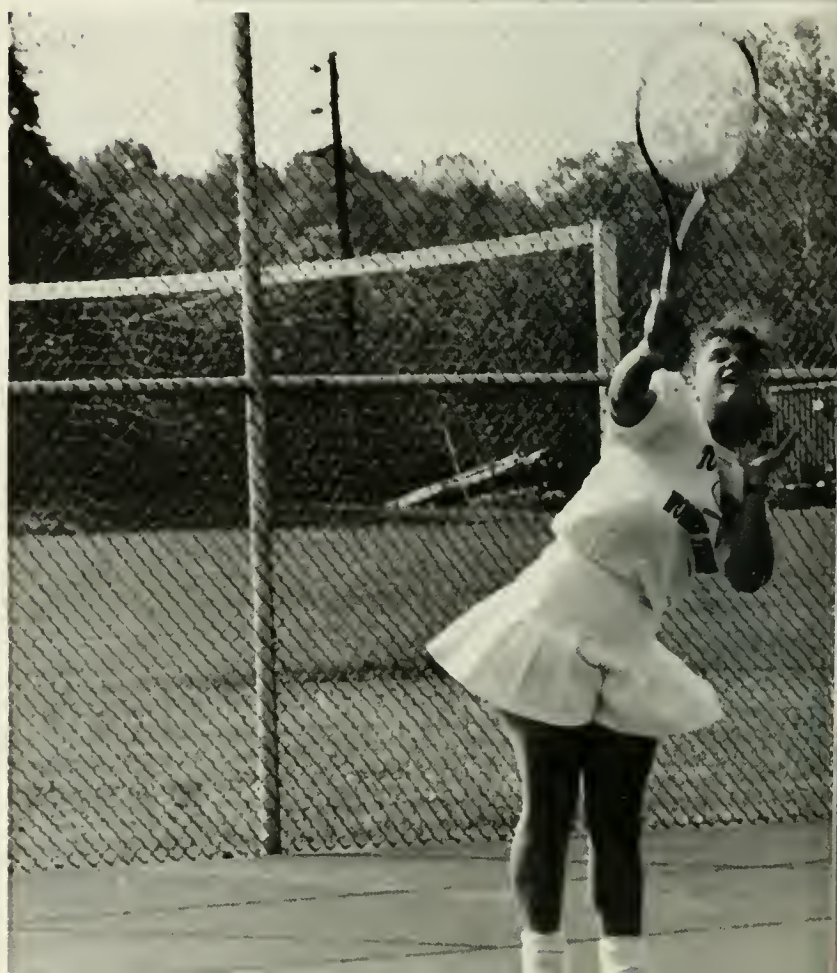

Quoted in the Brown and White, Coach Covert had said, "Cross-country is like any other individual sport. Different people rise to their peak at different times. All season long, we've had only 2 or 3 men run good races in meets which spells out mediocrity for the team." Cross-country is a sport in which you need 4 runners to have a team qualify.

To finish off a rough season, the cross-country team was invited to participate in an international cross-country race held in Bermuda. It was good experience and a well deserved break.

The Lehigh Engineers are always quick on their feet. Lawrence Arico, number 32, and Horace Hamm, number 5, pictured here, use their experienced ball-handling to return a kickoff.

Fancy footwork, such as this, helped the team succeed in many games.

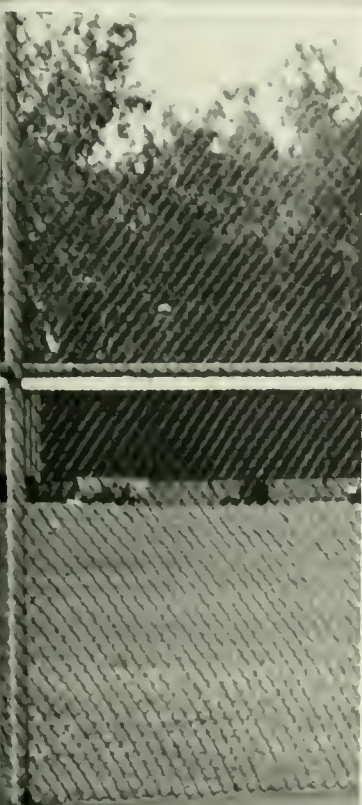

Donne VanFleet, a senior four year starter positions herself for a shot in this photo. Voted Most Consistent Player by her fellow teammates, VanFleet enjoyed a very good personal season. The team's overall record was 8-14-1 after a very tough season. The season began with a head coach leaving during the summer but was lifted through some very emotional wins including Delaware twice and a great game against nationally ranked Temple University.

Barb Metaxas gets down for a low shot in a valiant attempt to save the point. Metaxas, a freshman, enjoyed a great season personally although the team as a whole was plagued with many injuries.

Jen Jacobson reaches for a serve during a match this fall. The Lehigh women's tennis team enjoyed considerable success during the 1989 season with a 6-4 record. Because the team switched from the ECC to the Patriot League, they were able to play in, and win, both the ECC Championships and the Patriot League tournament. Coach Patti Smith said, "The girls really took off and started rolling this year." The team was led by Jacobson, the captain (shown), and Paula Gross. This record of success is a tradition for the squad which has won the ECC title five of the last eight years.

The women's cross country team came back from a rough beginning to perform quite well due to the efforts of such senior leaders as captains Nancy Sayre and Laurie Parton, Hope Goldhaber, and grad student Ayres Boswell.

Some of the season's highlights included a strong third place finish in the Colonial League tournament, victory at the Trenton State Invitational, and Ayres Boswell's first place finish in the ECC championships. This was the second year a Lehigh runner claimed the title, Hope Goldhaber having done so last year.

Boswell described her victory in the ECC's as "an incredible dream of mine." This victory was the pinnacle of her final season as a Lehigh runner. Boswell had run track in high school and began running cross country as a sophomore here at Lehigh, allowing her to compete this season.

"I came to graduate school here partially because of a desire to run track for Lehigh." This season was a culmination of her ambitions as a runner. "I thought I could do it [running the ECC's], but I was not sure. I was really hoping to finish off with a bang." She cited the memory of her father, who had supported her running very strongly, as a huge aid in her running. "I really did it in his memory. It was an inspiration for my running throughout the season."

Coach John Covert was also very pleased with the season. "I thought it was really great. We had lost some of our head performers, but we're only in our fifth season and I am very pleased with the team."

On Saturday, February 24 at Stabler Arena, everyone at the Lehigh women's basketball game was keeping a close eye on Sherie Androlewicz, counting her every point.

So when the senior point guard from New Jersey hit a 10 foot jumper near the end of the first half against Drexel, almost everyone knew that she had just become the all-time leading scorer in Lehigh women's basketball history.

The only person who didn't know was Sherie Androlewicz. "I wasn't really keeping track of my points because it was such a big game with Drexel," she said. "When I made that shot, I really didn't know until I heard the crowd cheering extra loud and Jen hugged me. That was when I knew I had done it."

Androlewicz surpassed Shawn Steward's record of 1,638 points and, with 17 points on the night, currently has 1,646 points in an Engineer uniform. She is also Lehigh's all-time assists leader with 562 at this point.

"I've been trying to keep calm about it, because the whole team has just played with great effort this year," Androlewicz said. "It's definitely a great feeling, though, and something I'll always remember."

Though the team didn't really need any extra incentive in the Drexel game against a team that had won sixteen straight. Lehigh won 73-51.

As many people know by now, Sherie A., a finance major in Lehigh's College of Business and Economics, doesn't put much emphasis on her personal statistics. Yet everyone had been mentioning the forthcoming record lately, and in a sense, she's glad the hype is over.

"At the beginning of the season, it was a question mark and I really didn't think about it, but the points started coming and a lot of people were talking about it . . . I'm glad I got to do it in front of the home crowd."

Lehigh University ski team member Peter Cherichetti slices through the final gate of this run in an attempt to lead the Engineers to victory. Cherichetti, a freshman, will be returning next season.

A member of the Lehigh University men's swim team strokes his way to the finish line in hopes of an Engineer victory. The swim team capped the 1989-90 campaign with a 9-2 mark.

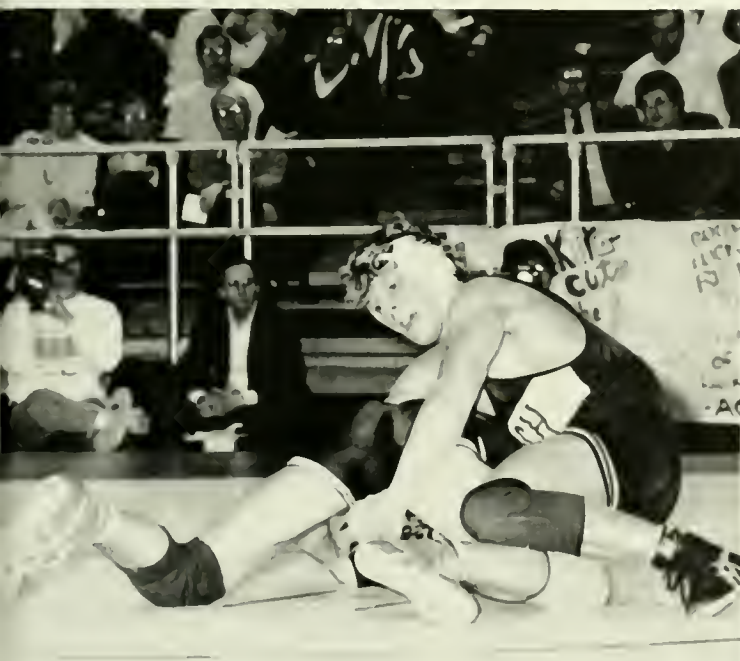

At the beginning of the men's basketball season, coach David Duke found himself in the unenviable position of leading a team picked for seventh in the ECC.

"Getting picked seventh was a motivational thing for me," he said.

That was the beginning of the season. Since then, Duke led the Engineers to a 16-11 record, a tie for first in the ECC, and the conference title game, all in just his second year as head coach. This effort was good enough to earn him top coach honors in the ECC. The award was given by the same people who regarded the Engineers so lightly in November.

Senior guard and four year starter, tri-captain Scott Layer accredited Duke with the team's success. "He's up front. He'll tell you things you don't want to hear . . . he treats us like equals."

One thing is for sure: nobody will underestimate Duke in the future.

The 1989-90 season saw Lehigh move into undisputed possession of fifth place in NCAA wrestling titles with Matt Ruppel's NCAA victory. Eighteen of the Engineers have taken 24 crowns, a figure topped only by Oklahoma St., Oklahoma, Iowa St., and Iowa.

Sophomore Jennifer Canavan led the Lehigh women's swimming team during the 1989-90 campaign with 13 individual victories and a spot on eight winning relay teams.

John Epperly was one of six Engineer wrestlers to post a winning record in the 1989-90 campaign. The senior lightweight finished 19-6. However his quest for a third EIWA crown was halted after one bout because of a knee injury.

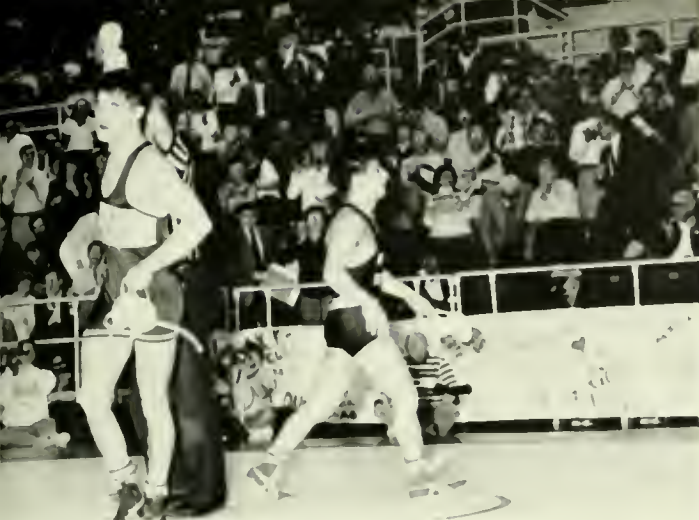

Susan Jindra, Nancy Sayre, and Jenny Lee led the Lehigh University women's indoor track squad during the 1989-90 competition. Jindra, a junior, gained a second straight ECC championship while winning five times in the long jump. Lee, a freshman, took four triple jumps and one 60 yard dash. Sayre, a senior, was first twice in the 880 and once in the 1000 and on three winning relay units. The Engineers finished the season with a 2-2 mark.

Freshman Tara Gould drives baseline for the hoop. Gould was a starter this year for the Engineer's girls basketball team. She was named to the conference All-Rookie team this season.

Men's swimming finished a banner season with the annual East Coast Conference championships at Lafayette. Placing fourth with 336 points, Lehigh had strong individual performances.

The season as a whole was a success for the team. According to Junior Paul Littlefield, "It was a great season!"

Lehigh men's diving challenged their opponents in many meets including one at East Stroudsburg University. This event was especially exciting for Sophomore Dean Manning.

He broke both the team record and his personal record with a score of 275.40.

The 1989-1990 Lehigh Engineer's basketball season was a new beginning for most of the team and their coach, David Duke. Duke stared out leading an 0-3 team (who was picked to finish seventh in a preseason poll of the East Coast Conference), to many well deserved victories.

The team's added depth over the year was a major factor in the Engineers' turnaround. The leadership of Senior tri-captains Scott Layer, Neal Fenton and Peter Rudman is the reason for this depth.

In the four years that the three players have been on the team, the Engineers have had the most wins in Lehigh history. In their sophomore year they guided their team to a 21-10 record, the Engineers best record. The second best record, of 18 wins, came this year to the captains.

Scott Layer, a four year starter and two-time captain had been Lehigh's playmaker and defensive stopper. In a league packed with top-caliber guards, Layer has always relished the challenge of stopping them.

He has proven himself up to the task, especially this year. He has held 20-point-per-game scorers, Mike Joseph and Kirk Lee, to four and fifteen points, respectively, on a combined six-for-thirty shooting.

Reflecting back on Senior Night, Layer stated, "I guess I was a little sad. It was my last time playing in Stabler. It's been four years with many peaks and valleys."

The same holds true for Senior point guard Neal Fenton, who transferred to Lehigh from Navy three years ago. A part-time starter and sixth man last year, Fenton has become one of the best sixth men in the league this season.

He set the Stabler Center assist record of 12 against Delaware and is among the team's leaders in shooting, free-throw shooting, steals and assists.

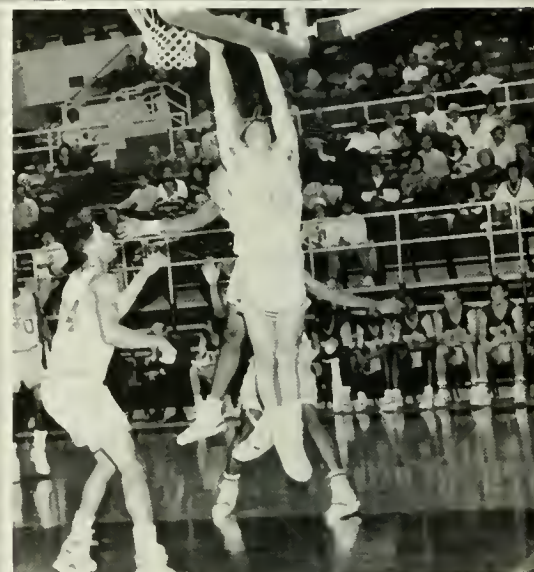

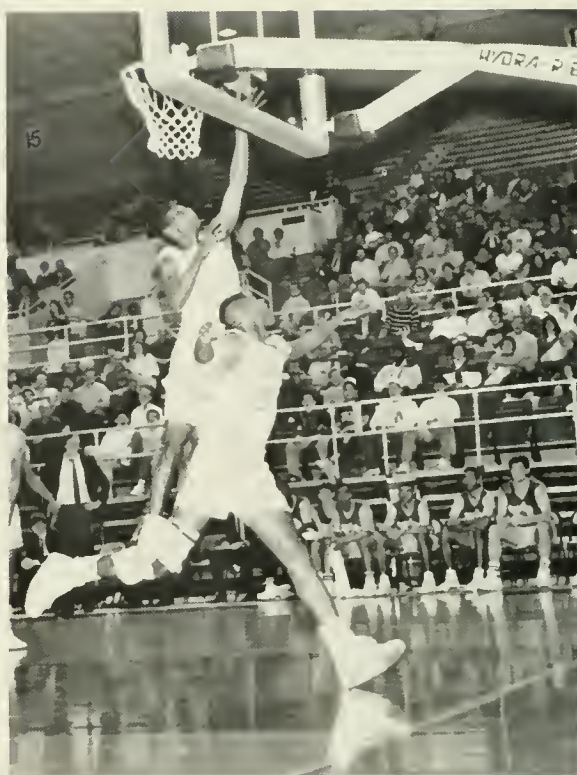

"These few years have been great," Fenton said. "Having the opportunity to be a part of bringing the program back to the success it had enjoyed in years past, is what it's all about." Like Fenton, Senior reserve guard Peter Rudman has become a valuable contributor off the bench. A three-point bomber with unlimited range, he had especially started to come along recently.

He was 7-8 from three in his last four games and has been a key contributor to Lehigh's 3-1 record in that span.

Coach Duke stated, "The great chemistry of these three guys combined with their outstanding leadership skills and wonderful personality, has developed a strong team."

Matt Ruppel is this year's leading contender for the NCAA's 190 pound class. Ruppel is undefeated this season with one tie, that coming against Iowa State. Ruppel is ranked number one in the nation and currently a junior in the Business School. Ruppel hails from Deerlodge, Montana, where he started wrestling at the age of seven. In high school he lettered in Football and wrestling and was an honor student. While in high school he went to the junior world freestyle wrestling championships in Schiff Ferstadt, West Germany, and took second place in the world. Ruppel finished highest on the American team. Ruppel finished high school as a four time state finalist. Recruited by such schools as Iowa, Ohio State, Oklahoma, and Wisconsin, Ruppel chose Lehigh. This is Ruppel's third year wrestling at Lehigh, but his first being ranked first in the nation. He has an undefeated season in which he is very pleased with. Ruppel considers his best match of the year to be against Joe Stafford of Oklahoma at the All-Star meet. Currently, Ruppel is training himself for the NCAA's, which to him is everything. According to Ruppel, a wrestler can have a good or bad season, but winning the NCAA's says it all. Ruppel enjoys travelling and exploring during his free time, whether it is a trip to a foreign country, or backpacking in the mountains. He considers himself a very diverse person, switching gears between his wrestling mode and his academic mode. He is a student-athlete who has been able to keep his GPA above 3.5 while still being a number one ranked wrestler.

Ruppel is a responsible, mature young man with many plans for the future. Ruppel owes his responsibility to his mother, who gave him the freedom to go in his own direction. Ruppel guides his life "to respecting everyone, and fearing no one."

Led by coach David Duke, the Lehigh Engineer basketball team advanced to the finals of the East Conference men's basketball tournament with a final record of 16-11 overall and 8-6 in the ECC. In the finals, the Engineers met the tournament host, the Towson State Tigers for the second time in three years. Towson State stole the NCAA bid from a determined Lehigh squad. Two of the heroes on the team were sophomore Bob Krizansky (above) and senior captain Scott Layer. Krizansky scored 45 points in the first two games of the tourney and led us to victory in both games. Layer hit the winning shot in the waning seconds of the quarterfinal game against Drexel.

The Lehigh University women's swim team set three school records in spite of a sixth place finish at the ECC championships. The relay team set the school records in the 400 yard medley relay, and the 400 and 800 freestyle relay. Co-captain juniors Sharon Rietz and Suzie Johnson, along with their teammates, were very pleased with their performance. As freshmen Megan Eves said, "The sixth place finish is misleading because we all did well and had a lot of personal bests."

Dean Manning prepares to do a forward two and a half pike. Dean has broken Lehigh records for the 1 and 3 meter boards. "I owe a lot of my success to Coach Frank Donnelly. He really pushed me to do my best." Other team members include Mike Reph, Carl Sumi and Alyssa Lasko.

The success of a team depends upon the ability and drive of the players. School support, however, adds a lot to the game. Cheerleaders have been and continue to be, an important part of raising spirit. "Down, Down, Down the Floor. Raise, raise, raise the score. Down the floor, raise the score, we want more!" Cheers like this, helped to rev up the crowd at Lehigh University basketball games this season. The Lehigh cheerleaders are a highly talented team. With their spirit and spunk they brought down the house. The basketball team, depended on the spirit that the cheerleaders spread throughout the crowds especially when things got rough. The Lehigh cheerleading squad had a fun year with Senior co-captains Renee Rizzo and Tom Mostek anchoring the group of highly talented cheerleaders. This year's squad included: Gary Sadavage, Greg Titus, Cynthia Roccaforte, plus seven freshmen, including Jessica Edwards, Christina Gullo, Sarah Klinge, Kathy Mitchell, Rosalie Torrea, Sonny Rutkowski, and Greg Saunders. Three cheers for the '89-'90 Lehigh University cheerleaders.

Sandy Hume powers up from underneath in the victorious home game against Delaware. Sandy is a senior, but will be playing again next year. She was out for two and a half years after having two knee surgeries, but is back this year and is having a great season. Sandy was named to the first team All Conference. In addition, Sandy is one of the team captains, along with seniors Sherie Androlewicz, and Jeanne Mooney. These three have been nicknamed the three musketeers, and are all big scorers. Other starters include junior Jen Siemaszko and freshman Tara Gould, who was named to the All Rookie team. Hope Pelicane, Lori Lynch, Wendy Taylor, and Stacy Viotto are all players who were strong contributors off the bench. The girls squad has had a successful season this year. Their record is 21-7, which is a great improvement over last years 7-21. The team finished second in the ECC and lost in the semi-finals of the conference tournament to Delaware.

All over campus, you can hear people making excuses for not participating in a varsity sport. "There is no time," they say. According to Robert Wainwright, participating in a varsity sport has increased the valuability of his time and has increased his interests in all Lehigh has to offer.

Bob Wainwright, a senior bio major, has been a pole vaulter since his freshman year of high school. Since then he has learned to budget his time carefully. Bob has found time for academics, athletics, and time to be a gryphon, as he was last year. The opportunity to pursue challenges, both academic and athletic, is what led him here to Lehigh.

As a sophomore Bob placed second in the East Coast Conference championships, a feat he has yet to equal. Back injuries hindered him as a freshman and as a junior.

During the spring of 1989, Bob was awarded the Most Valuable Field Event Trophy for receiving the most points during a meet. This trophy meant the most to him because it meant that he had been recognized as a valuable member of the team. It also meant pressure to perform at this level for the rest of his career. Bob says he thrives on that pressure, it is what keeps him out there.

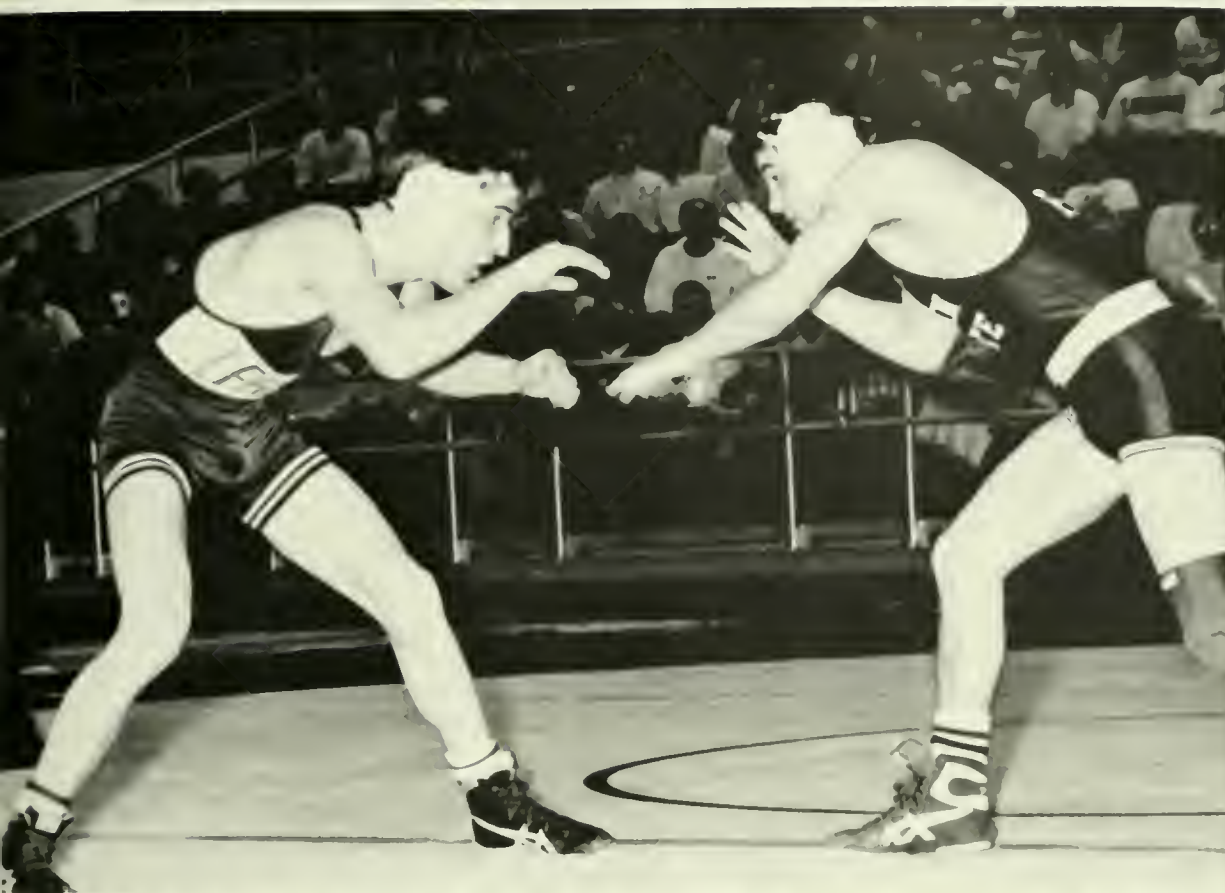

This season, Wainwright, who lives in Brielle, N.J., placed second on the team in individual victories with three in the pole vault. He capped off his Lehigh career with a strong showing.

While here at Lehigh, Bob has been an active member in the theater department and has continued his interests in playing the saxophone, photography, and skiing. Bob has certainly proved the critics wrong. Lehigh has a lot more to offer than people think. Bob has gotten the most out of his tuition, in athletics as well as academics.

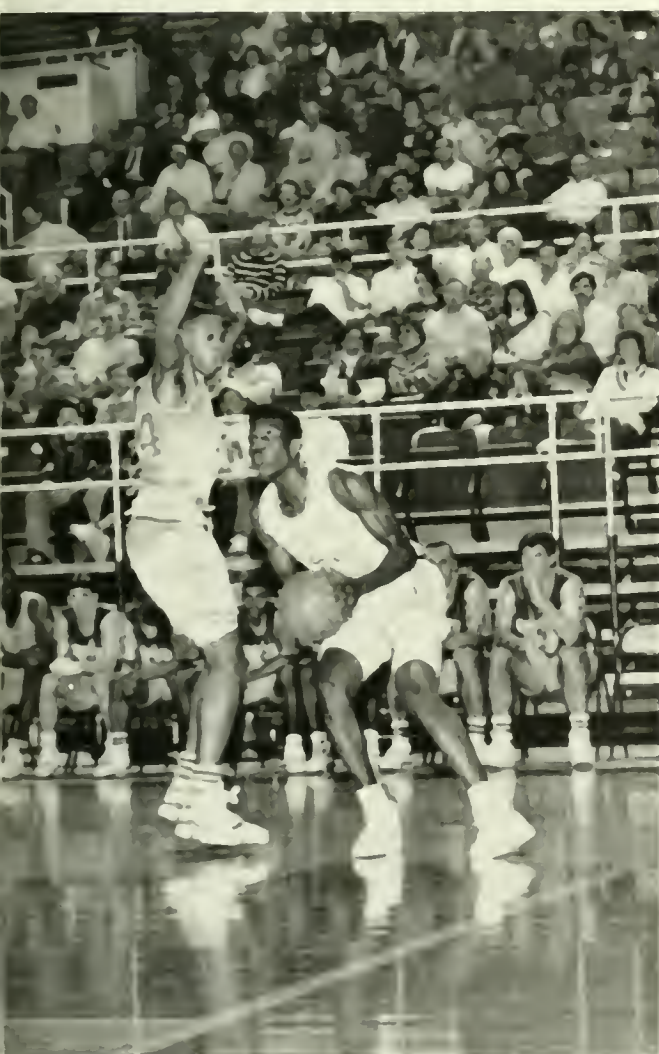

A Lehigh swimmer ascends to the surface during a practice at Taylor Gym. The Engineers relied on their team dedication and rigorous work ethic to take them to a successful season in 1989-90.

Racing down the course, a Lehigh Skier cuts through the gate in hopes of a good time. The Engineer ski team practiced at Blue Mountain during the season.

This year's wrestling season had it's ups and downs. The team competed in fifteen dual meets having mixed success. Pictured here is sophomore Len Combs, who wrestled at 118 lbs. This year Combs was a placewinner in the Trenton State tournament. He captured fourth in this event. Other results: Rick Hartman, 126 (fifth); John Epperly, 134 (first); Jim Benson, 177 (third); Matt Ruppel, 190 (first); and John Morris, hwt (first).

Lehigh men's basketball team had a strong season in 1989-90. Pictured here is sophomore Jay Hipps, the team's sixth man. Hipps is hoping to become a starter next season.

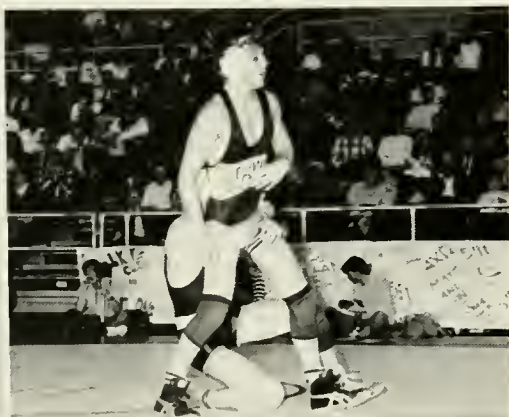

This year's women's basketball team had another highly successful season. Pictured above is senior forward Sandy Hume, she was a returning letter winner and co-captain of this year's team.

Becoming good friends during the season, Senior and Captain Bill Mueller and freshman Shane Guenes show that even the hard work required to win a race can include a little bit of fun. Congratulations to the Lehigh Engineer team for finishing up with a great season.

A Lehigh Engineer wrestler avoids a pin by trying to escape from the grasps of his opponent during a match. This wrestler shows the main ingredient of wrestling here: determination.

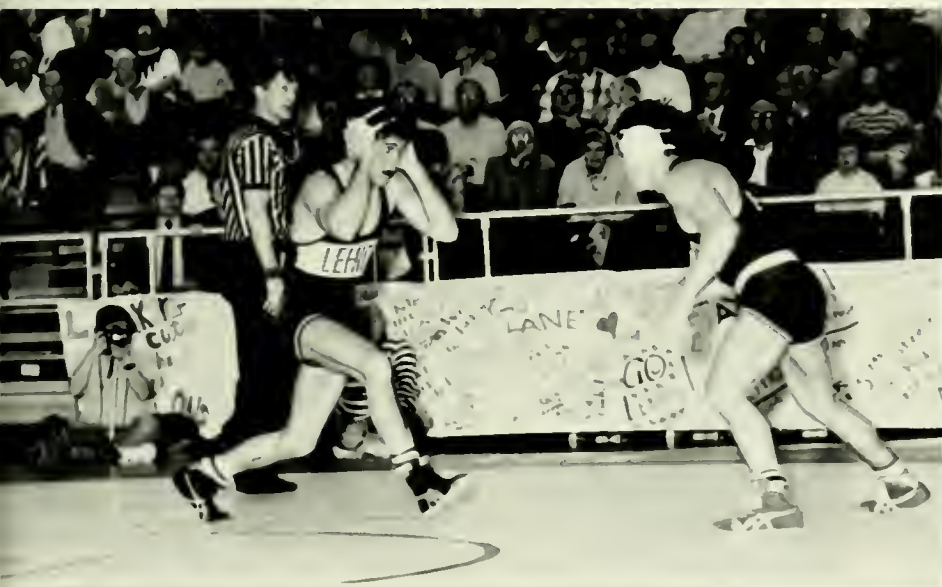

Sophomore Dozie Mbonu goes up for two points in a big game against Delaware University. Mbonu helped lead the Engineer's basketball team to the East Coast Conference Championships.

Physically reaching the heights of motivation, the Lehigh Engineer Cheerleaders proved they could cheer with one-hundred percent spirit. As the enthusiasm in the cheerleaders increases, you could feel the spirit in the crowd do the same. Here, the cheerleaders prepared themselves for a pyramid used during many of the routines performed during the basketball games. These cheers helped lead the Engineer's to a victorious season.

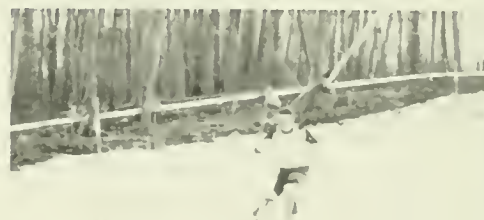

Jennifer Siemaszko, a junior from Spring Lake Heights, NJ, stands tall here on defense. Siemaszko, is an even 6 feet tall and a very valuable player on the squad. Jen starts at center and is a very strong rebounder on the team. The women's basketball team enjoyed a strong season with very few injuries and made an impressive showing in the ECC's.

Here, John Epperly, a Lehigh grad student fixes his head gear as he focuses intently on his opponent. He enjoyed an excellent season finishing 19-5. The end of his season was plagued with injuries as he tore a ligament in his knee. Next year look for John as an assistant coach on the squad.

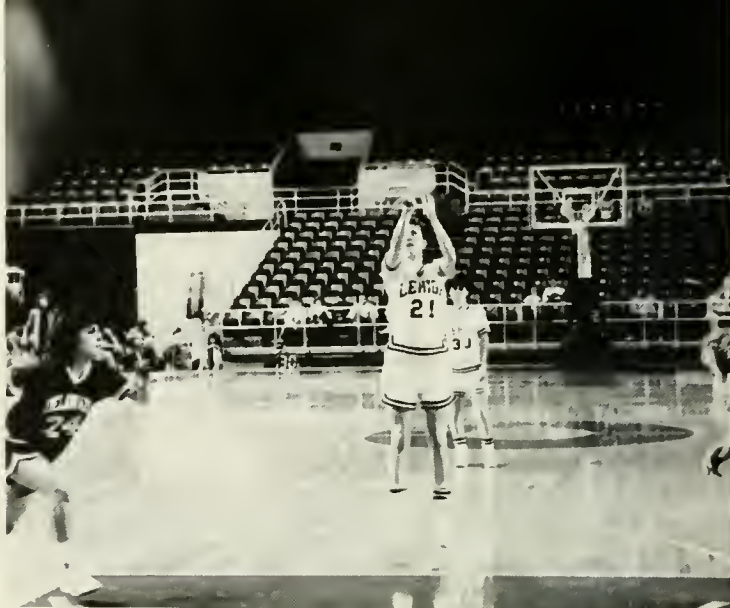

Senior Todd Eardensohn takes third in the slalom. Todd had an excellent season, but ended on a down note with a recurrent knee injury. The club did extremely well this year taking fourth which qualified them for the regionals. The club races in the National Collegiate Skiing Association with such other colleges as Princeton, Rutgers, Montclair St., and Lafayette. The men's club won all four of their tournaments, and the women's club finished fourth overall. Junior Regina Borgia finished second overall in her first year in the club. Freshman Peter Karaketie was a standout this year taking third overall in the league. Amongst seniors, besides Todd, the team is also losing Todd Schanzlin and Nicole Sordi, three valuable members of the club. The ski team has been around for seven years and is going strong. All are welcome to try out for the team, although competition is very tough. Next year, look for the team in the regionals once again, as they have a strong and young team.

The men's swim team enjoyed an excellent season finishing with a 9-2 record during the winter season. The team finished fourth overall in the ECC tournament, with many individual first place victories.

Pictured are several members of the Lehigh University Men's Swim Team, who enjoyed an excellent campaign this season. Led by twin brothers Paul and Dave Littlefield, Jeff Roddin, Jeff Bannick, and Dean Manning, the Engineers stormed to a 9-2 record for the regular 1989-1990 season. Paul Littlefield of Englewood, New Jersey, took 19 first place finishes, including the East Coast Conference 200 free championships, while brother Dave was a winner 10 times. Both brothers concentrated mainly on freestyle competition. Jeff Roddin, of Woodhaven, Michigan, grabbed 16 first places including seven each in 200 IM and 200 butterfly events. Jeff Bannink of Holland, Michigan, won nine including the East Coast Conference 1,650 crown in freestyle, while teammate Dean Manning of Glastonbury, Connecticut, captured eight in diving. Four-time victors were Peter Duggan of North Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, three of them in the 50 free; Steve Hatkin of Hamden, Connecticut, in the 200 breaststroke; and Eric Fauerbach of Columbus, Indiana, three of them in the 200 backstroke. Matt Goodrich of Glens Falls, New York, and Bill Mueller of Blue Bell, Pennsylvania, each won a pair of freestyle events. Tim Abbott of Southampton, Pennsylvania, won twice in the 200 breaststroke and Bill Smith of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, won once in freestyle. Many of these swimmers, along with Vince Tsai of Yardley, Pennsylvania, Shane Geunes of Pennsburg, Pennsylvania, and Glenn Neufeld of East Windsor, New Jersey, also helped post 15 relay victories including the East Coast Conference 800 freestyle championship with a team comprised of Roddin, Bannink, and the Littlefield twins. The Engineers, who were coached for the first year by Chris Marshall, defeated Gettysburg, Rider, Johns Hopkins, Delaware, Towson State, Rutgers, East Stroudsburg, Lafayette, and Bucknell, and finished fourth in the East Coast Conference tournament. The only two losses of the season came against Fordham and Drexel.

The pressure is on for this Lady Engineer as she releases a high arcing free throw in an effort to help the Lehigh University Women's Basketball team to a win against conference rival Delaware University. For their strong efforts, the Lady Engineers were rewarded with a solid 21-8 1989-90 season.

Lehigh University skier Tiffany Kuzon plants her pole to change direction as she negotiates her way in between many obstacles on the way down the snow-covered mountain. Tiffany is in her first season as a member of the 1989-1990 Lady Engineers ski team.

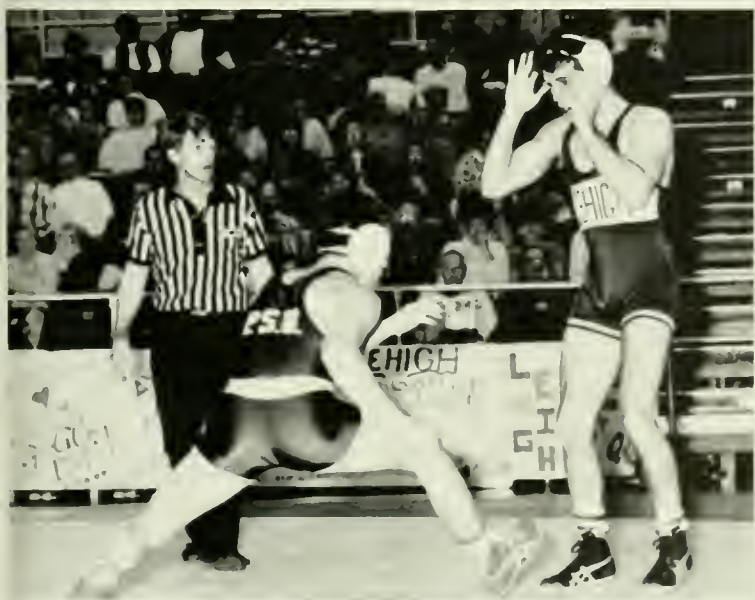

Mens basketball player, Bob Krizansky has been an excellent asset to this years team. Not only was he a high scorer, but he is considered one of the Engineer's heroes. In the first two games of the ECC's against Bucknell and Drexel he helped score 45 points. Krizansky was also named ECC player of the week. He was an important part of the team's success this year.

"Whether it was through breaking a school record or reaching a personal goal the track team was successful and committed."

Swim Coach Chris Marshall talks to Sharon Reitz. Marshall who graduated from Lehigh in 1988 has been an essential addition to the Lehigh University's swim team this year. The team members describe Marshall as, "very supportive both in and out of the water. He is an outgoing person who is extremely enthusiastic." Coach Marshall gives a positive outlook for the swim team's future.

Matt Ruppel put together the finest season in fifty-one years of Lehigh University wrestling during the 1989-90 campaign. He finished with a 37-0-1 mark, climaxed by the NCAA championship at 190 pounds. He became the first Lehigh wrestler to win a national title at 190 pounds. He now holds the school record for most victories in a year, bettering the old mark of 32.

The 1990 Lehigh Engineers softball team had a banner season. They challenged their opponents in many meets.

Though all the girls are especially talented, Lehigh softball fans saw a rising star this season with pitcher Jennifer Frame. This sophomore has given Lehigh a glimpse of what looks like a promising career.

She has helped the team succeed in numerous games. Her teammates agree that she is the bright spot for Lehigh.

Last season Jennifer Frame had the best record on the staff as a freshman (6-4 with a 3.05 earned run average.)

Commenting on a disappointing game against LaSalle University, Frame said, "They (LaSalle) hit the ball very well. They were very aggressive at bat, and that put us in a hole right away. Being the home team, we really weren't expecting them to come out so strong."

Giving credit to her fellow teammates Frame said, "We did a really good job of coming back from the first game. We could have just folded, but our caliber of defense was much better, and we almost pulled it out."

"We had a couple of errors toward the end, but that didn't really cause us to lose the game," Frame added.

Frame turned in a good performance, as well, in a softball game against Bucknell. The sophomore pitcher allowed the Lady Bucknell Bison's just five hits. Her record fell though to 2-6.

Frame said, "We played good defense." Bucknell was able to score without the benefits of any hits, however. A disappointed Frame walked two batters, and they both scored on wild pitches.

Frame could not lead the Lady Engineers into action all by herself. The girls enthusiasm and teamwork is what allows them to be as victorious as they have been in the past.

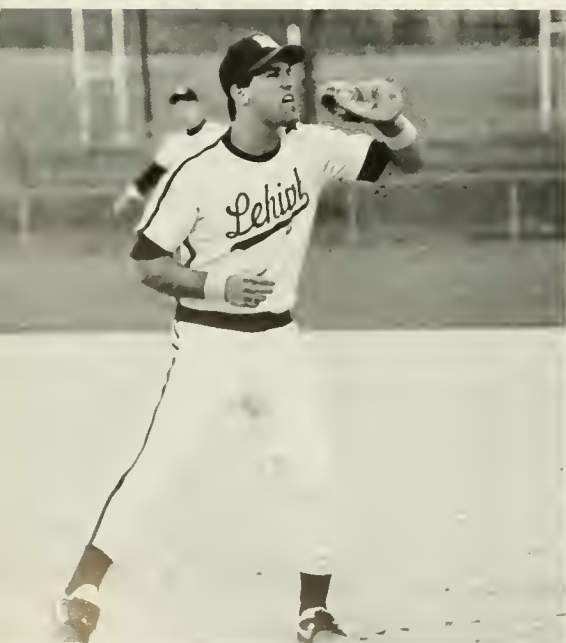

Using their experience and leadership to help guide the new talent of upcoming freshman, the upperclassmen are truly stars. They include Senior captain and rightfielder Terri Ferrari, Senior shortstop Kelly Martin, Senior Lori Getts, Junior second baseman Lisa Mignault, and Junior centerfielder Alicia Zarouni to name a few.

Like the other Lady Engineers, Zarouni feels bad about a lose when it occurs, "We play very well against tough teams, but come up with hard luck losses."

Coach Tammy Danner hopes Lehigh fans will be looking forward to future seasons. You can definitely expect another great softball season to follow with players such as Jennifer Frame on the team.

Junior Ron Reybitz, the starting first baseman for the Engineers, tosses the ball around in a pre game warmup.

Kelli Delaney, a junior, along with sophomore Ann Weitzman, led the Lehigh University women's Lacrosse attack. Kelli was also one of the top scorers in the East Coast Conference. During the game against the University of Pennsylvania, Kelli paced the team with five goals and four assists. This is just a fraction of all she has done for the team.

The LU men's tennis team finished with an even 7-7 mark. The Engineers were paced by underclassmen and will be a force to be reckoned with in the seasons to come.

Senior T. Marc Jones battles with a defender for a loose ball in the opposition's zone. Jones' strong offensive attack helped pace the Engineers.

When the golf team arrived in Vass, N.C. to begin spring preparation for the season, no one dared predict what would happen.

What did happen those three days at Woodlake Country Club wasn't pretty. In fact, the only thing worse than the golf in Vass was the night life. Anxious to start again, the team moved down the road to Charleston, S.C., where Baptist Bible College and the Big South tournament awaited.

Motivated by the inspirational speeches of rookie Coach Kelly "Stogie" Gutshall, the Engineers played three sensational rounds of golf, winning the tournament handily. Off to a great start, the team was ready to go north to battle for the top in the highly competitive East Coast Conference.

Wins over St. Joe's and Drexel got the team off on the right foot. The highlight of the match was a hole in one by Lehigh sophomore "Savage" Thomas Clydesdale. Asked later for his reaction, Clydesdale proclaimed, "it was a pippin!"

With two wins under their belt, the Lehigh golf team, brimming with confidence, won eight out of their next nine matches, including victories over ECC rivals Lafayette, Bucknell, and LaSalle. Leading the way for Lehigh was junior captain Scott "Chuckles" Ferguson and freshman John "fine Young" Logue. Consistently in the 70's the two played their way into the upper echelon of golfers in the conference.

Also playing well for the Engineers were sophomores Clydesdale and Dave "the slasher" Strassburger. Posting scores consistently in the high 70's, the tandem solidified the team's third and fourth seeds. Asked the key to their success, the pair responded, "we owe it all to Logue."

After a strong third place finish in the Patriot League tournament, the team seemed to be on the verge of a breakthrough. From seeds one to seven, the squad was playing good golf. Junior Spud Udell, sophomore Mike "muscles" McGovern, and freshman Sean Markey were consistently throwing up competitive numbers to put the team over the top. It all came together at the East Stroudsburg Invitational, as Ferguson shot a one under par 71 to lead the squad to its first ever tournament victory.

After returning home to thoroughly thrash Eastern powerhouse Villanova at Saucon Valley Country Club, the team set its sights on avenging its only loss to hated Delaware at the ECC championship at Pocono Manor Club.

And the revenge was sweet. The Engineers fought through high winds and drenching rains to win their first East Coast Conference Championship ever by nine shots over Delaware and thirteen over Bucknell. Individual champion Ferguson shot a one over par 73, Markey shot 75, Strassburger shot 77, Logue shot 79, and Clydesdale shot 82 for a net total of 304. The victory marked the climax of a 14-1 season for the team, the best in recent memory.

When it was all over for the golf team, they stopped and reflected upon their remarkable season. It may have been best summed up by Strassburger when he quipped, "we owe our success this season to hard work, late nights, and a very valuable rookie coach with a very cheap cigar."

Outstanding senior pitchers Dave Norwood and Greg Fritz were looked upon for strong leadership and strong performances during this season. Norwood and Fritz, came off of an outstanding season, forming an excellent righty-lefty duo. Both Norwood and Fritz were number one and two in the nation with Norwood posting a .36 ERA and Fritz posting a .47 ERA.

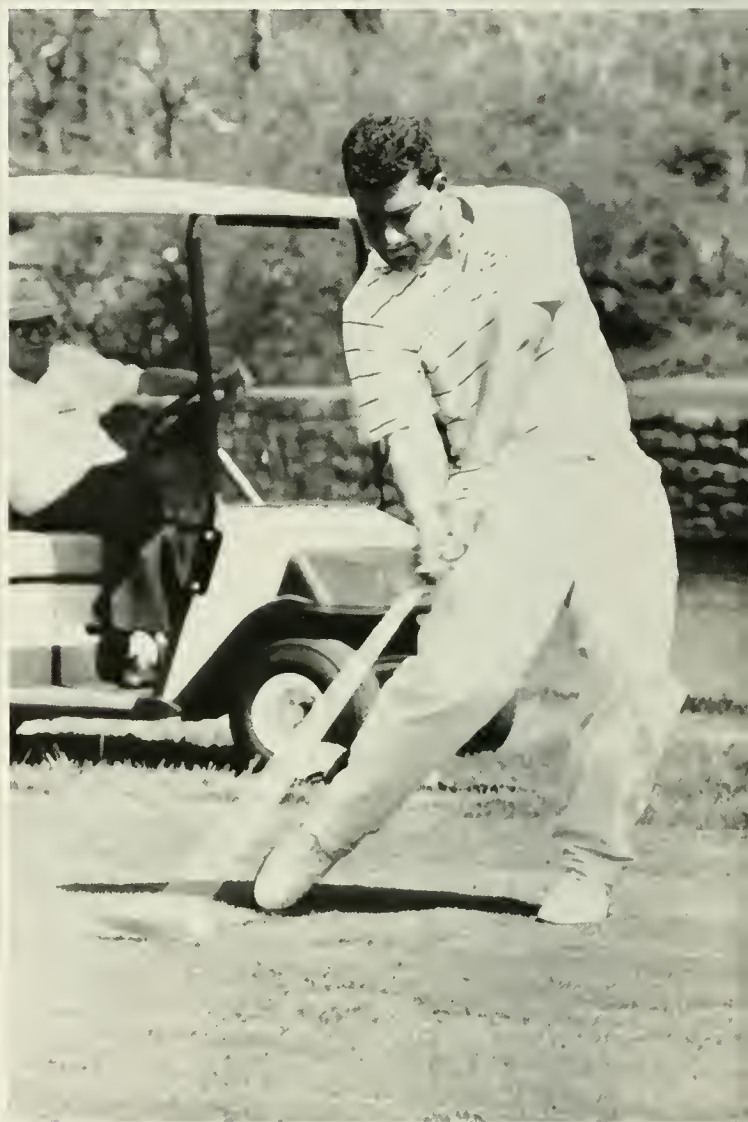

Norwood who was Baseball America's preseason pick as ECC player of the year graduated in January and is doing graduate work at Lehigh. He throws in the mid to high 80s, and says he will never be a power pitcher. He said, "I have good breaking stuff, and can get the ball over the plate consistently, which is the strongest point of my game." Norwood was also voted outstanding moundsman in the Atlantic Collegiate League. He was drafted in last June's free-agent draft by the Cleveland Indians. However, he rejected the offer in order to complete his education. He stated, "I did not spend four years at Lehigh to come up one semester short. I was drafted in the late rounds, and I believe it would not be beneficial to leave school now." Norwood does plan to pursue pro ball in the future. Senior catcher Anthony Mirando said, "Dave and his control will be the cornerstone of our successful season."

Fritz too, plans to keep up his baseball career. Although he feels he has a slim chance of getting drafted he plans to play in summer leagues. Fritz was very optimistic about this season. He stated, "We have a lot of experience coming back. This is the best team I have seen since I've been at Lehigh." Fritz was third in the conference in ERA last year however, he feels this year is his best year. He threw very well, had more playing time, and had a stable position in rotations. He was also the number two starter all year. Commenting on his performance this season Fritz stated, "I think I did alright. I came into senior year wanting a good season and personally, I've pitched the best I've pitched in all four years. Fritz is both enthusiastic and hopeful about the Lehigh baseball team. He says what he has learned the most from his baseball experiences at Lehigh is, "Being able to take tough situations with a grain of salt. We haven't had a winning season since I've been here. I put up with the bad and have hope to pull through in the end."

Both Norwood and Fritz will be missed next season. Their outstanding careers at Lehigh however, shows promising success for their future endeavors.

Sophomore David Strassburger lashes one down the middle at Saucon Valley Country Club against arch rival Villanova. Strass played at the number four position for the Engineers this season.

Marty Droney attempts to evade a check by an opponent from Stonybrook as he fights his way downfield. Droney successfully avoids the defenseman en route to a tough loss.

"I felt like a cornerman at a prize fight," said head tennis coach Dave Shook.

These are words Shook used to describe his role of providing exhausted and injured players with icepacks and water in the courageous effort turned in by his freshman dominated squad at the East Coast Conference tournament.

The netters surprised the field by flirting with the championship crown while battling through excruciatingly long matches in the 90+ heat at the tourney hosted by Rider College in New Jersey.

Overall, the Engineers finished the competition in the very respectable position of third place, 10.5 points behind champion Bucknell and runner up Towson State.

Individually, sophomore Eric Perlmutter turned in a stellar performance in both singles and doubles. He emerged with the gold medal in the No. 5 singles slot and battled hard with freshman Darren Fogel in doubles competition.

The team finished the year with an even 7-7 mark. The young engineers sent a message to the rest of the league that the men's tennis team is back and will be a force to be reckoned with in the not so distant future.

Senior pitcher Steve Bagley delivers a pitch as sophomore shortstop Pete Buckley prepares himself defensively. Bagley helped lead the Engineers in several non conference victories during the season. The right hander has a good fastball, but was most successful with his change of speeds. This not only confused the batter, but as they say in baseball, "it kept them honest." The Engineers finished the season with a 9-14 mark.

The start of the Lehigh women's lacrosse team opened its 1990 season against the University of Virginia. Having to work hard for their shots during the game, UVA still dominated in the end. This seems to have held true through most of the season but they never gave up. They continued to fight throughout the season where they played in games that were considered learning experiences in which the team found out where its weaknesses were. Next year, with a good deal of underclassman as rising stars, they can use what they have learned to their advantage. The team was aware of how tough the Engineers schedule was this season. No less than six top-20 teams were Lehigh opponents by the end.

The 1990 team consisted of eleven returning letter winners with Anne Weitzman, Wendy Brookes, and Krista Groman as the top three scoring threats and senior captain Kim Brower. Having lost two all-conference stars, Coach Jackie Keeley hoped to fill the void from a crop of promising freshmen. Coach Keeley was in her first year as head coach of Lehigh. She was a two-time All-American performer at Ursinus and participated in the 1989 World Cup Tournament along with assistant coach Jill Johnson. Wendy Brookes was quoted as saying early in the season, "We are lucky to have someone like Jackie Keeley as our coach because of her own experience. She is so knowledgeable about lacrosse, I feel as if I have learned so much from her already."

One of their most exciting games of the season was their victory over Colgate. During this game, the Engineers had a miraculous comeback during the last five minutes of the game. Kelli Delaney pulled the team within one goal with only 4:50 minutes remaining. Krista Goman then scored to even it out with only 13 seconds left. She then scored the winning goal with only one tick remaining on the clock. Krista Groman and Anne Weitzman each had four goals, while Kelli Delaney, Wendy Brookes, and captain Kim Brower had two apiece. The Lehigh Engineers stunned the Colgate squad in the end.

Samantha Heymen, a freshman member of the team, said that throughout the season she saw a lot of teams problems that had to do with individual's mental attitudes. It seemed that most of their loses were due to the members not having their whole total concentration on the game. She saw a big turn around of this problem during their game against Hofsta. For this game the team had to travel about five hours in ninety degree weather and also in traffic just to get there. By the time they arrived the team put mind over matter and ended up killing their opponents. This was a great victory for the team and put them on the right track for the rest of the season. The Lehigh Engineer team is looking forward to the seasons to come with all their newfound experience and their new coach. Best of luck.

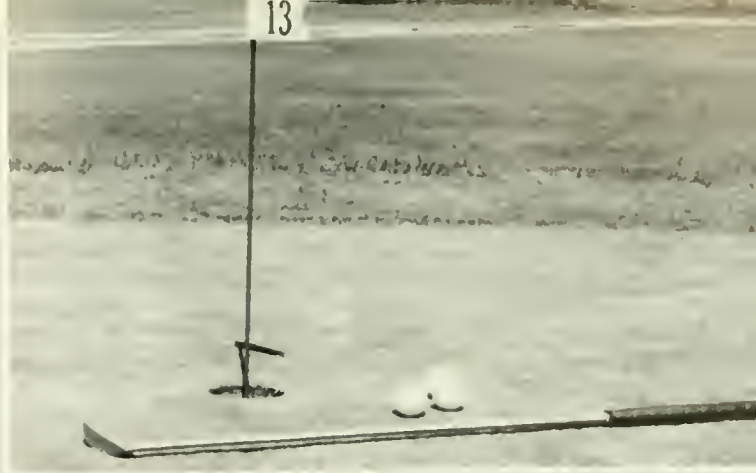

Captain Scott Ferguson prepares to tee off with assistant coach John Smeaton in the background. "fergie" was a key to the Engineer's success this season. He went on to become the ECC champion.

The men's tennis team this year was a freshman dominated squad. They only had four lettermen returning and rebuilding was one of their major concerns at the beginning of the season. The team stayed close to the top competitors and made a strong showing in their tournaments throughout the season.

Number thirteen was not an unlucky omen as Lehigh's golfer's had the most successful season in the school's history. They were victorious in 12 of 13 matches and were able to avenge their only loss at the East Coast Conference Tournament with a win over Delaware.

Jeff Haber cradles downfield as he prepares himself for a shot. Although the lacrosse team struggled this year, Haber's offensive talents were a bright spot on the team.

Lehigh's track and field coach John Covert had plenty to worry about going into this Spring's season. His team was young and lacking in competitors in a few events. While the men's squad lacked experience, Covert was concerned that the women's team that set three school records lacks depth.

To much of Covert's avail this young and up-in-coming team performed impressively. Freshman Cliff Cutter ran an East Coast Conference season-best 21.9 in the 200 and was tied for third with a 10.9 in the 100. Another bright spot was rookie, Hassan Young, who placed no. 2 in the 400, having clocked a 49.0.

The Engineer's success did not end with these two rookies. In fact, this is only where it began. Sophomore Steve Yaniga lead the hurdling crew with a season best 54.7 in the 400 intermediates. Also posing as a threat in the ECC's were Dave Culhane in the long jump, and two seniors Rob Wainwright and Adam Bennett both of which competed in the pole vault.

On the women's side Coach Covert's fears lied in the teams depth. In fact, Covert said, "we're still scratching to fill up all the holes and striving for the depth that makes a good team."

Unfortunately, Covert had to deal with these leaks. The women's team was lead by junior Susan Jindra, Graduate student Ayres Boswell, freshman Jenny Lee, Sophomore Deanne D'Armiento and senior Nancy Sayre.

Covert has high hopes for these performers as they battle through a tough schedule enroute to the ECC Tournament.

Both squads struggled this spring but are looking forward to next season when some promising recruits put on the Brown and White.

Rob Varano Signs With Bengals

Lehigh wide receiver Rob Varano got a tryout with the Cincinnati Bengals as a free agent and participated in their minicamp in Ohio. Varano, a graduate student was contacted by Bengals' receiving coach Tom Hutchinson after Cincinnati chose wide receivers for their fifth and 12th picks in the National Football League draft.

"I found out when the receiving coach called me and they made me an offer. It sounded good and after discussing it with my agent I began making arrangements. I had talked to them (the Bengals) before the draft and they had told me they were interested. They didn't know how the draft would go, but otherwise they said they liked my speed and game. The offer wasn't totally out of the blue," he said.

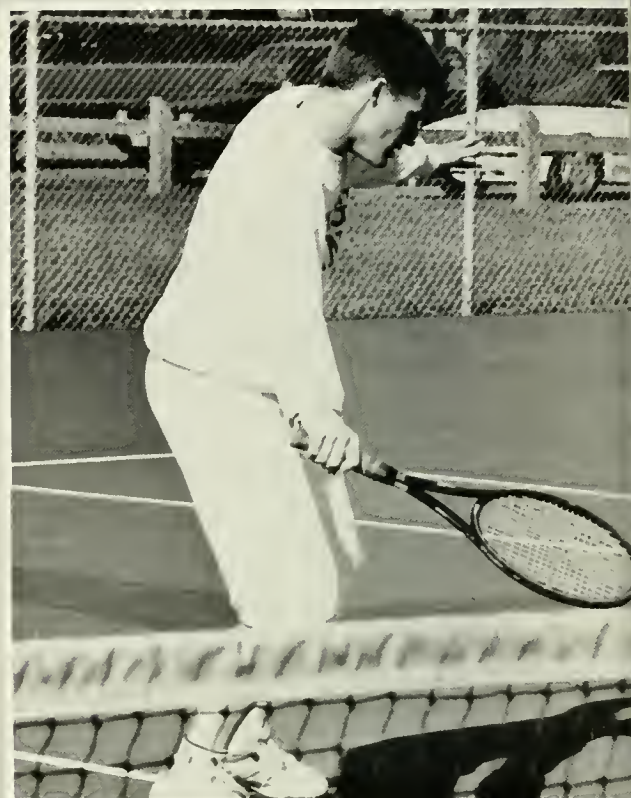

Varano, who donned number 88 for the Engineers, was voted second team All-American for the 1989 season after catching 78 passes, setting a Lehigh record and tying an '87 Patriot League record. Varano gained 1,133 yards and scored seven touchdowns on the season.

The only other Lehigh player with more receiving yards in a single season was Steve Kreider of the 1977 Division II champions. Ironically, Kreider went on to play for the Bengals after graduating from Lehigh.

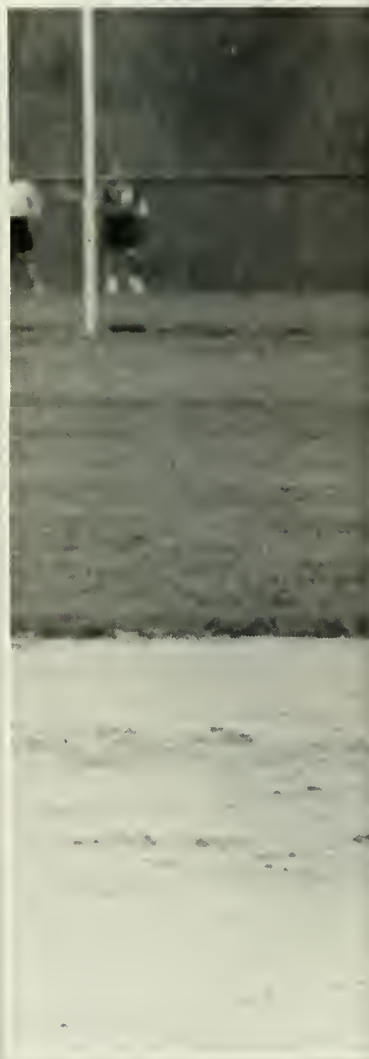

"I realize it's a long shot but nobody has given me the opportunity to go this far," Varano said. "I'm very glad to have this chance."

Congratulations to the Lehigh men's tennis team for placing fourth in the first Patriot League Tennis Tournament held in April. Four of the players made it into the semi-finals in the singles competition.

Kelly Martin, the short-stop for the Lehigh women's softball team, is shown after throwing the ball to first base in a try for the third out. The softball team didn't have a very successful year, but they look forward to next season.

Freshman John "Fine Young" Logue belts a drive down the middle against East Stroudsburg. Logue will be of great help next season, as the golfers try to defend their ECC title.

Senior midfielder John Novack and Jeff Haber fight for possession of the loose ball following a face off. Next year the team looks to rebound after a disappointing season.

Sophomore Eric Perlmutter strokes a backhand from the baseline. Perlmutter played third singles and first doubles this season en route to the East Coast Conference tournament.

Sophomore Pete Buckley takes in-field practice before a home game. The baseball team began the season playing against stiff competition in Florida. The team started off the season on a tear and evened out towards the end.

Living On Campus

Campus living is something every Lehigh Student has in common, at least for their freshman year. Everyone remembers moving-in day, checking out the dorm room with mom and dad. "This is it? Is it really this small? You mean I have to share this closet with my roommate?"

Of course we all learned to adjust with the help of our gryphon, and many of us came to love our little rooms as well as our roommates.

When the time came to say goodbye at the end of freshman year, we said we were glad to be out of there - we were on to bigger and better rooms. But perhaps inside we know we'd miss that little room, our first try at dorm living.

Whether we lived in Centennials, the Quad, M & M, or Taylor College, we came to know the advantages of residence hall life - gryphons to help us out, a meal plan to feed us, maids to keep our new homes clean and orderly.

Living on campus keeps us in touch with university life and closer to our friends. If we were lucky enough to get housing in Trembley or Brodhead as upperclassmen, we benefited from the advantages of university housing while getting a taste of the independence of apartment life.

Living Off Campus

The "real" world. Many Lehigh students living off-campus get a taste of it as upperclassmen before graduation, when all students must face living and working on their own. The switch from dorm-life to off-campus housing involves both positive and negative aspects which must be considered before the decision is made.

The most positive factor influencing the move from M & M to Montclair is privacy. Typically a group of about five students share a three story house, giving them the opportunity to socialize or to seek refuge in their room as they choose. The study atmosphere also plays a large role, as a house is usually much quieter than a dorm hall.

Another plus is the new opportunity to cook one's own meal. Many students choose to combine the meal plan with their own menu, as eating on campus allows them to maintain contact with university life.

Living off-campus does have its down-falls. Along with the absence of maids and gryphons comes the responsibilities of cleaning and paying bills. It is hard to imagine just how much those utilities add up to, but off-campus students quickly learn. The somewhat painful responsibility of budgeting money and maintaining an entire house is slowly learned throughout the year.

Another disadvantage is that off-campus students are somewhat separated from the university. Informational notices and party signs posted in most dorms are often unseen by those living off campus.

Despite the negatives, living off campus is an overall great learning experience leaving the student with many good memories and a small but meaningful taste of the "real" world.

Just sit right back and you'll hear a tale
A tale of four years spent
At Lehigh University, the home of wasted rent
The school extorts all kind of cash
From students and their folks
Five clueless lads began that year to find it's all a hoax
The president was way too short to justify his cost
If not for second mortgages,
Our schooling would be lost
Our schooling would be lost
The boys set down in the mist of this depressing smelly slum
With Joey B., and F. Scott too
Adam B. with his wife, the artsy Tim, with Jeffrey and Ampersand*
Here at the DMO house.

"Satisfy your thirst for the best"

We began in the halls of lower cents, picking up the little Roser from Dravo during our brief stint in M&M. After our wild days at the Palladium, opening nights off-Broadway, Amtrak to Florida, Jungle parties, and love triangles, squares and circles, we settled down at 421, the home of the pinkmobile, in the summer of '88. Through the years we've been 5 little sisters, commando women or, as we affectionately call ourselves, Troop 421. We've been called other things (Greg D.), but we'd rather ignore them. We usually can be found at Chi Phi, the snack-bar, or with the 3rd ionizer in the lounge. Our favorite activities include shoe-watching, discussing shower times, Cheers, Bundy's, the Ho, housedinners, potpourri fights, sunning on the roof, making up new names for each other (Nellie Olsen, Tiny Tim, Woo, Joan Baez, half-pint, olive oil, kiss & no tell, pseudo - - - -, jailbait, the mumbler, Accounting Goober twins, Miss Malaprop) and hiding blow bear. We will never forget the formals, our parties, dodie's soup & stew, why men are - - - -, the red kimono & pink parka, our adventures in London, Key West & Acapulco, 4 in one night, thursday night pub nights of the past, Greek Week '88, the ankle belt, 21st birthdays, x-mas trees, active joe, the bouncing pygmies & beach balls, sleeping on cold noodles, jody jokes. Some memorable quotes—"come see my posters" "all we did was talk" "our alarm didn't go off" "Wenchita" "who are you and why are you here?" "my jaw hurts" "we kicked" "- - - -'s on the phone, are you home?" "I must say . . ." "I want to calculate" "Recycle." Some aspirations: S—astronaut; W—Dean of Students; K&J—PW partners; T—a job. Dreams: W—someday we'll go to Mardi Gras; S—someday slutwench will die; K—someone who appreciates red hair as much as she does; T—finding someone your own age; J—a dishwasher for everyone. A final thanks to our friends, parents and Chi Phi Brothers and Little Sisters for making it a fun and memorable 4 years.

Living In A Fraternity

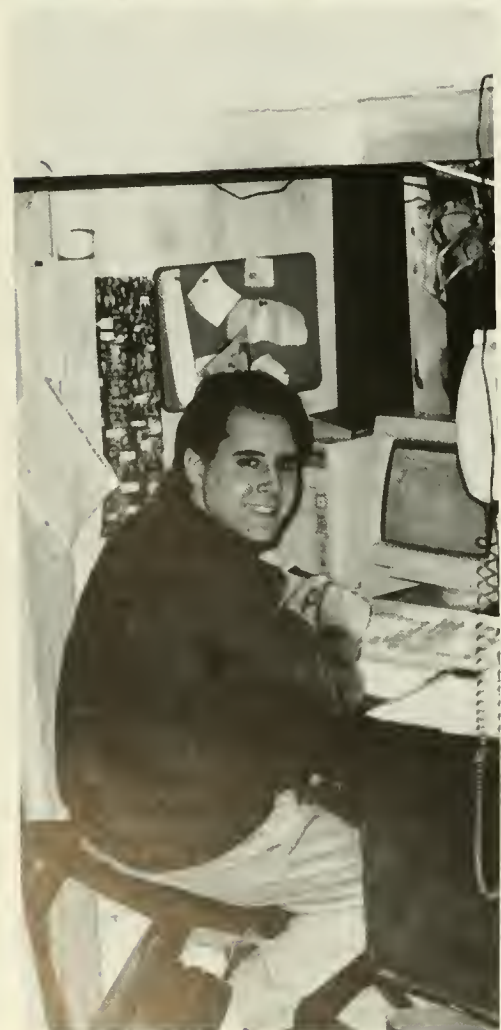

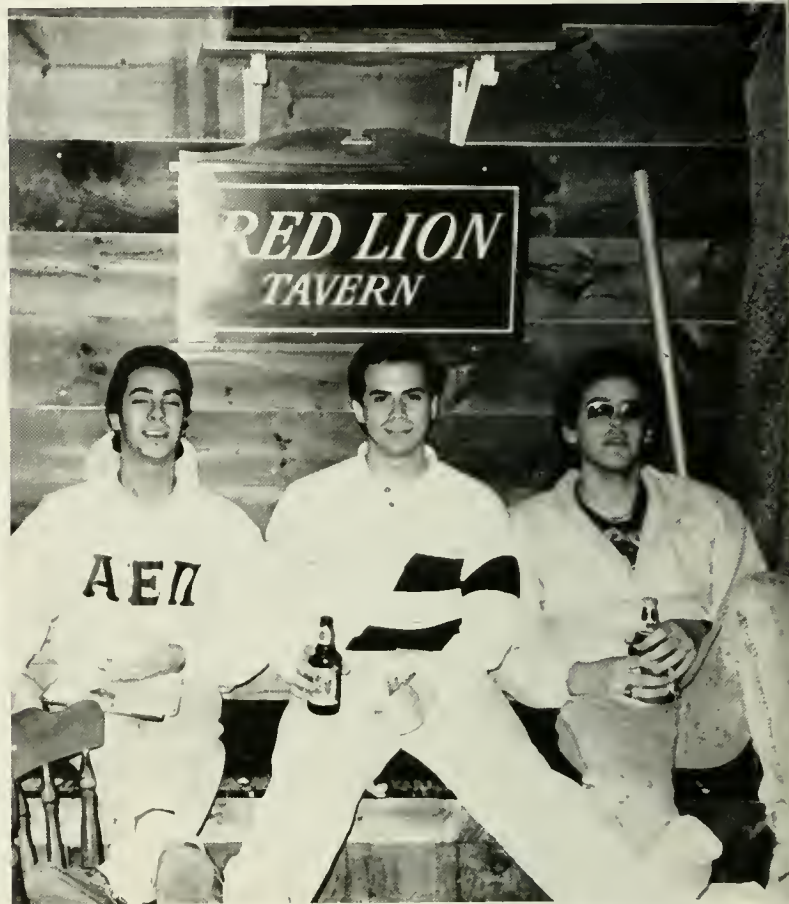

Most men find Greek life to be an attractive lifestyle because fraternity houses can offer so much more than a dorm room or even a house off campus. All the comforts of home are prevalent - meals are cooked and served to fraternity brothers right in their house, cable television, phones and computer jacks are accessible in every bedroom, and many houses have pay TV channels, free weights, a pool table, and a computer.

Perhaps the most attractive reason to choose living in a fraternity house is the huge extent of social activity centered around the Hill. But there is a deeper reason which makes it the right choice for many men - the existence of a close, family-like atmosphere which makes the fraternity members brothers as well as friends.

Living in a house adds a new meaning to college life. A pledge or brother learns responsibility to himself and to the other members in the house. Fraternity members find that living with so many different people from varied backgrounds enhances the special bond that exists between them.

Living In A Sorority

The women involved in Lehigh's Greek system say sorority life is one of their most memorable and rewarding experiences in college. The special ties between the sisters is what sets the sorority house apart from ordinary dorms, and really turns the house into a home.

Sorority women are required to live in their chapter house for one year, usually when they are sophomores. Pledges and new sisters find this a time to really become close with the older sisters and each other and to learn the give and take of sorority life.

When asked what they liked most about living in a sorority, most women will agree that it is a place to be yourself, a "home away from home" where the friendship and love between the sisters can not be replaced.

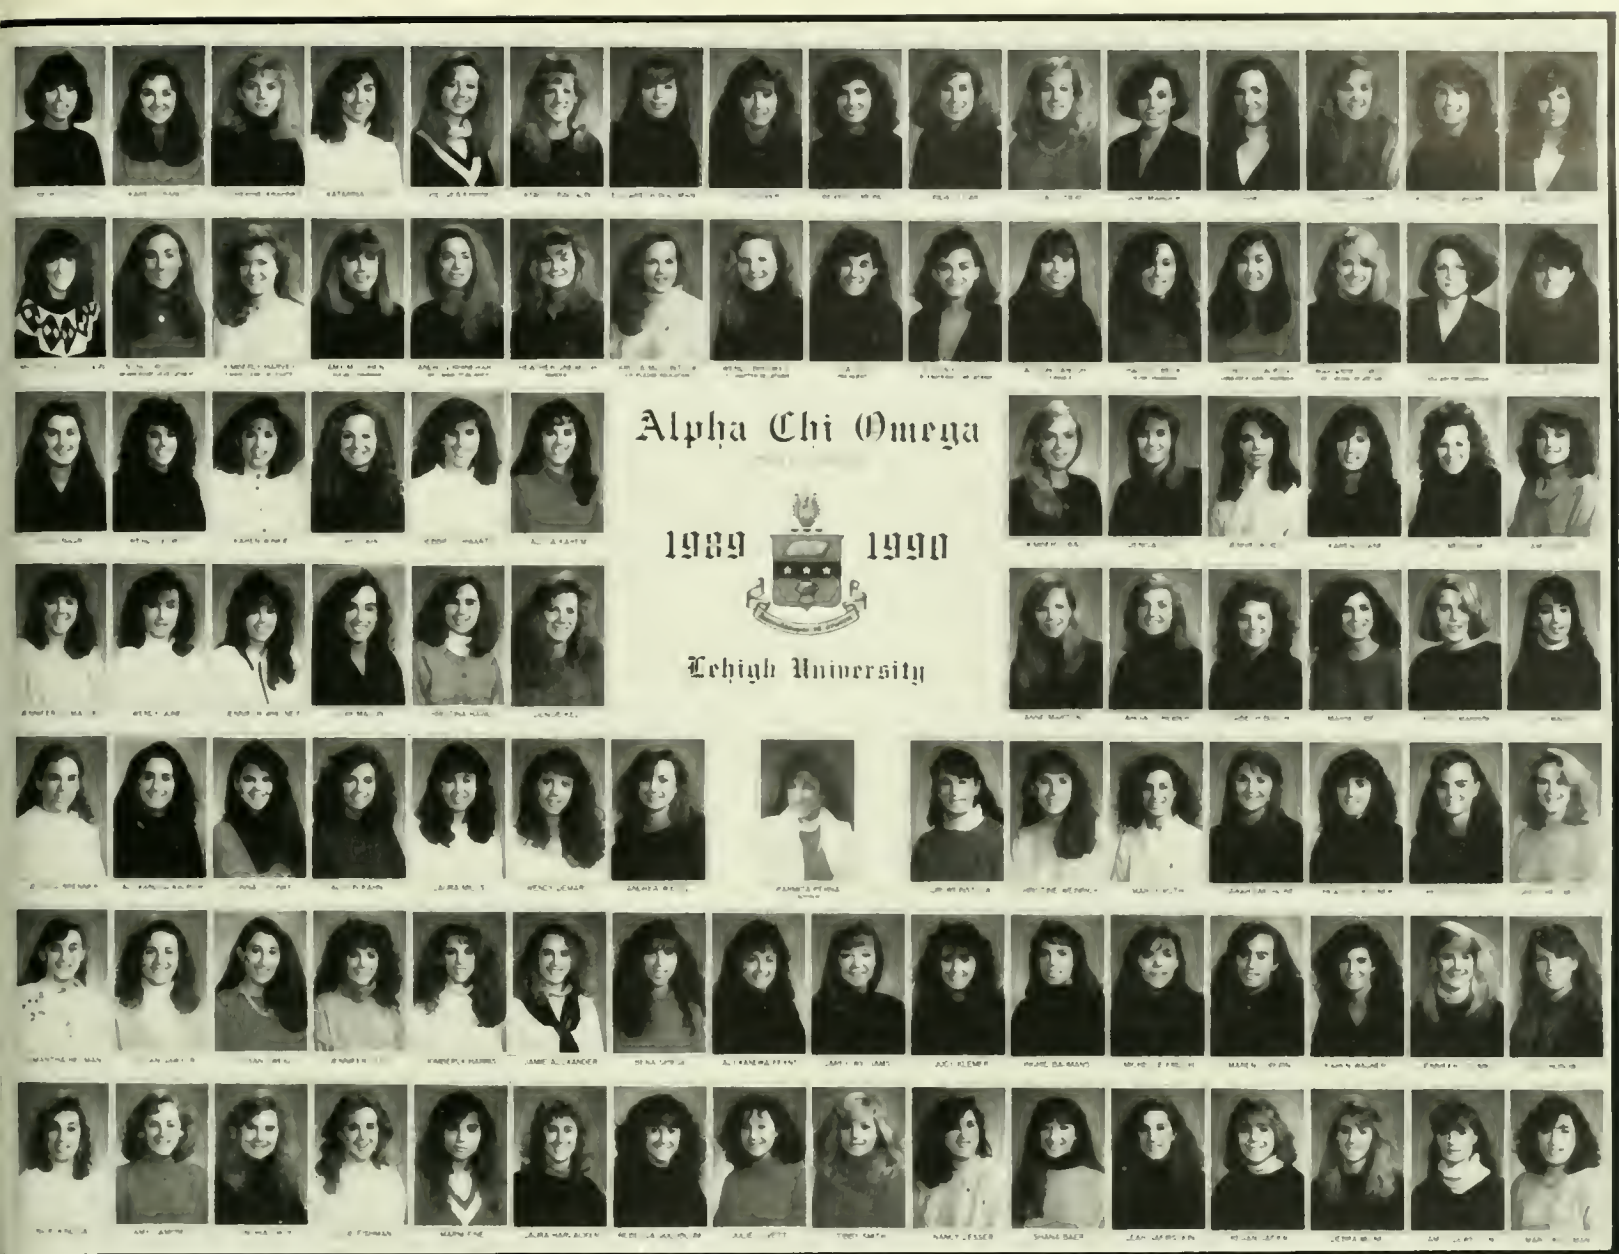

After graduation the chapter house takes on a new role - a place to come back to. Sisterhood is for a lifetime, and whether an alumna has been out of school for one year or ten, she can always return to her sorority house and be welcomed by her sisters.

In Closing

Sometimes, you find yourself doing something you never imagined. That's how I feel as I wrap up the 1990 Epitome. When I came to Lehigh, I never thought I would end up being the editor of the yearbook my Senior year.

Lehigh is constantly changing, and the Epitome has captured those changes through the years. This year's book is special to those of us graduating because it symbolizes the end of our Lehigh experience. The 1990 Epitome shows us the way Lehigh is now and yet helps us to remember the way it was when we first came here.

Many hours of hard work and dedication were put into making this yearbook the best that it could be. The numerous editors worked tediously to piece together the memories of the past year. I hope that each of you is as proud of it as we are and that you enjoy it as much as we will. We have tried to capture the special qualities that Lehigh offers and leave you with a lasting memory of this unique experience.

Finishing this book is what I consider a great accomplishment. I complained constantly throughout the year to anyone who would listen, but only because I wanted the 1990 Epitome to be the BEST. I hope that each of you likes what you see, for it was done for you.

Nancy Howard
Editor-In-Chief
The 1990 Epitome

Colophon

Volume 114 of The Epitome, 1990 edition, the official yearbook of Lehigh University, was printed by Jostens Printing and Publishing Division, State College, Pennsylvania, using that offset lithography process. The paper is primarily #80 Gloss with black ink. Color pages used #110 Kromkote paper. Cover: The cover, made of a Maroon material with black Cord grain, contained a gold foil embossment of the Linderman Library of Lehigh University. The cover was designed by The Epitome and drawn by Jostens.

Headlines and Copy: Century Book Condensed typeface was used for the majority of the book. The index was done using Benguiat Book typeface and the advertisements used various typefaces. Body copy was predominately set in 10 point while captions used 8 point. Headline size varied throughout the book. Color: All separations were performed using Hell-laser scanners from color prints. A second color, Maroon, was used in the features section.

Photographs: Photographs are the work of The Epitome and The Brown and White staff photographers. These photographers are: Teresa Bzdek, Beth Easley, Jodie Goodman, Adam Griff, Nancy Howard, Sarah Jones, Ken Kantor, Tom Kostas, Jeanne Leggett, Charalambos Marangos, Judy McGrath, Kathryn Messina, Whitney Rearick, Lauren Shedlin, Jason Stanford, Chris Takayama, Andrea Trapnell. Senior portraits, as well as sports and graduation candids, were taken by Merin Studios, Philadelphia, PA. Athletic teams were photographed and supplied by Ryan Studios, Bethlehem, PA. The fraternity and sorority composites were taken by Fraternal Composite Services, Utica, NY.

The closing poem was written by Nancy Howard, editor of the 1990 Epitome.

Thanks

Corey Abate: Once again, someone is unknowingly coerced into becoming Editor. You will do a fantastic job next year so don't worry too much. If I can handle it, anyone can! Thanks for all your help and support throughout the year. IT'S DONE!!!!

Laura Schifflin: Thanks for keeping the business end in good shape. You did a great job with both banquets and still managed to keep it under the budget.

Lisa Silver: You were kept pretty busy throughout the year with all the "Ads For Grads" and you did an awesome job as Sales Manager. We're actually moving those old books off the shelves! Thanks for all your help!

Ken Daub: You were one of the most determined members of the staff, and you managed to pull in those ads for us. Good luck as Business Manager next year - I think you'll do an awesome job.

Adam Griff and Chris Takayama: A million thanks to the two of you. You did an incredible job and took some outstanding photos. The yearbook wouldn't be possible without the dedication the two of you showed this year. Adam, I hope you continue the good work next year. Chris, thank you so much for always being there when I needed someone to talk to.

Susan Marra and Nancy Fitzgerald: Once again the Living section has proved to be the largest in the book, and you two did an AWESOME job with it. Thank you for always getting everything done on time. Sue, your three years of dedication have been great; you were one of the most reliable members of the staff. Nancy, sorry the computer hated you so much, but now you never have to type in another blurb! Thanks for all your hard work.

Jamie Wallace and Beth Easley: Many thanks to the two that had to get to work before anyone else. Jamie, thanks for your hard work and determination to get things done on time. Beth, good luck with the section next year. I hope it goes as smoothly as this year.

Beth DeMarte and Chris Martin: I don't know how the Activities section ever got done, but it did. Beth, thanks for all your hard work. Good luck next year, I'm sure you and Corey will do a fabulous job.

Meghan Rowe and Andrea Trapnell: Your ideas for the Features section were terrific and I'm sure it will come out looking great. Thanks for pulling it all together once again.

Teresa Bzdek and Melissa Moore: The most tedious is always saved for last and once again the Senior section is last. Teresa, thank you for all your hard work throughout the year and for pulling the senior section together.

Josh Levine, Jeff Maxon, and Andria Jacob: The Sports section has always been rather unique and this year was even more so. Josh and Jeff, you two did a great job making the layout design work for your section. I really think it will look terrific.

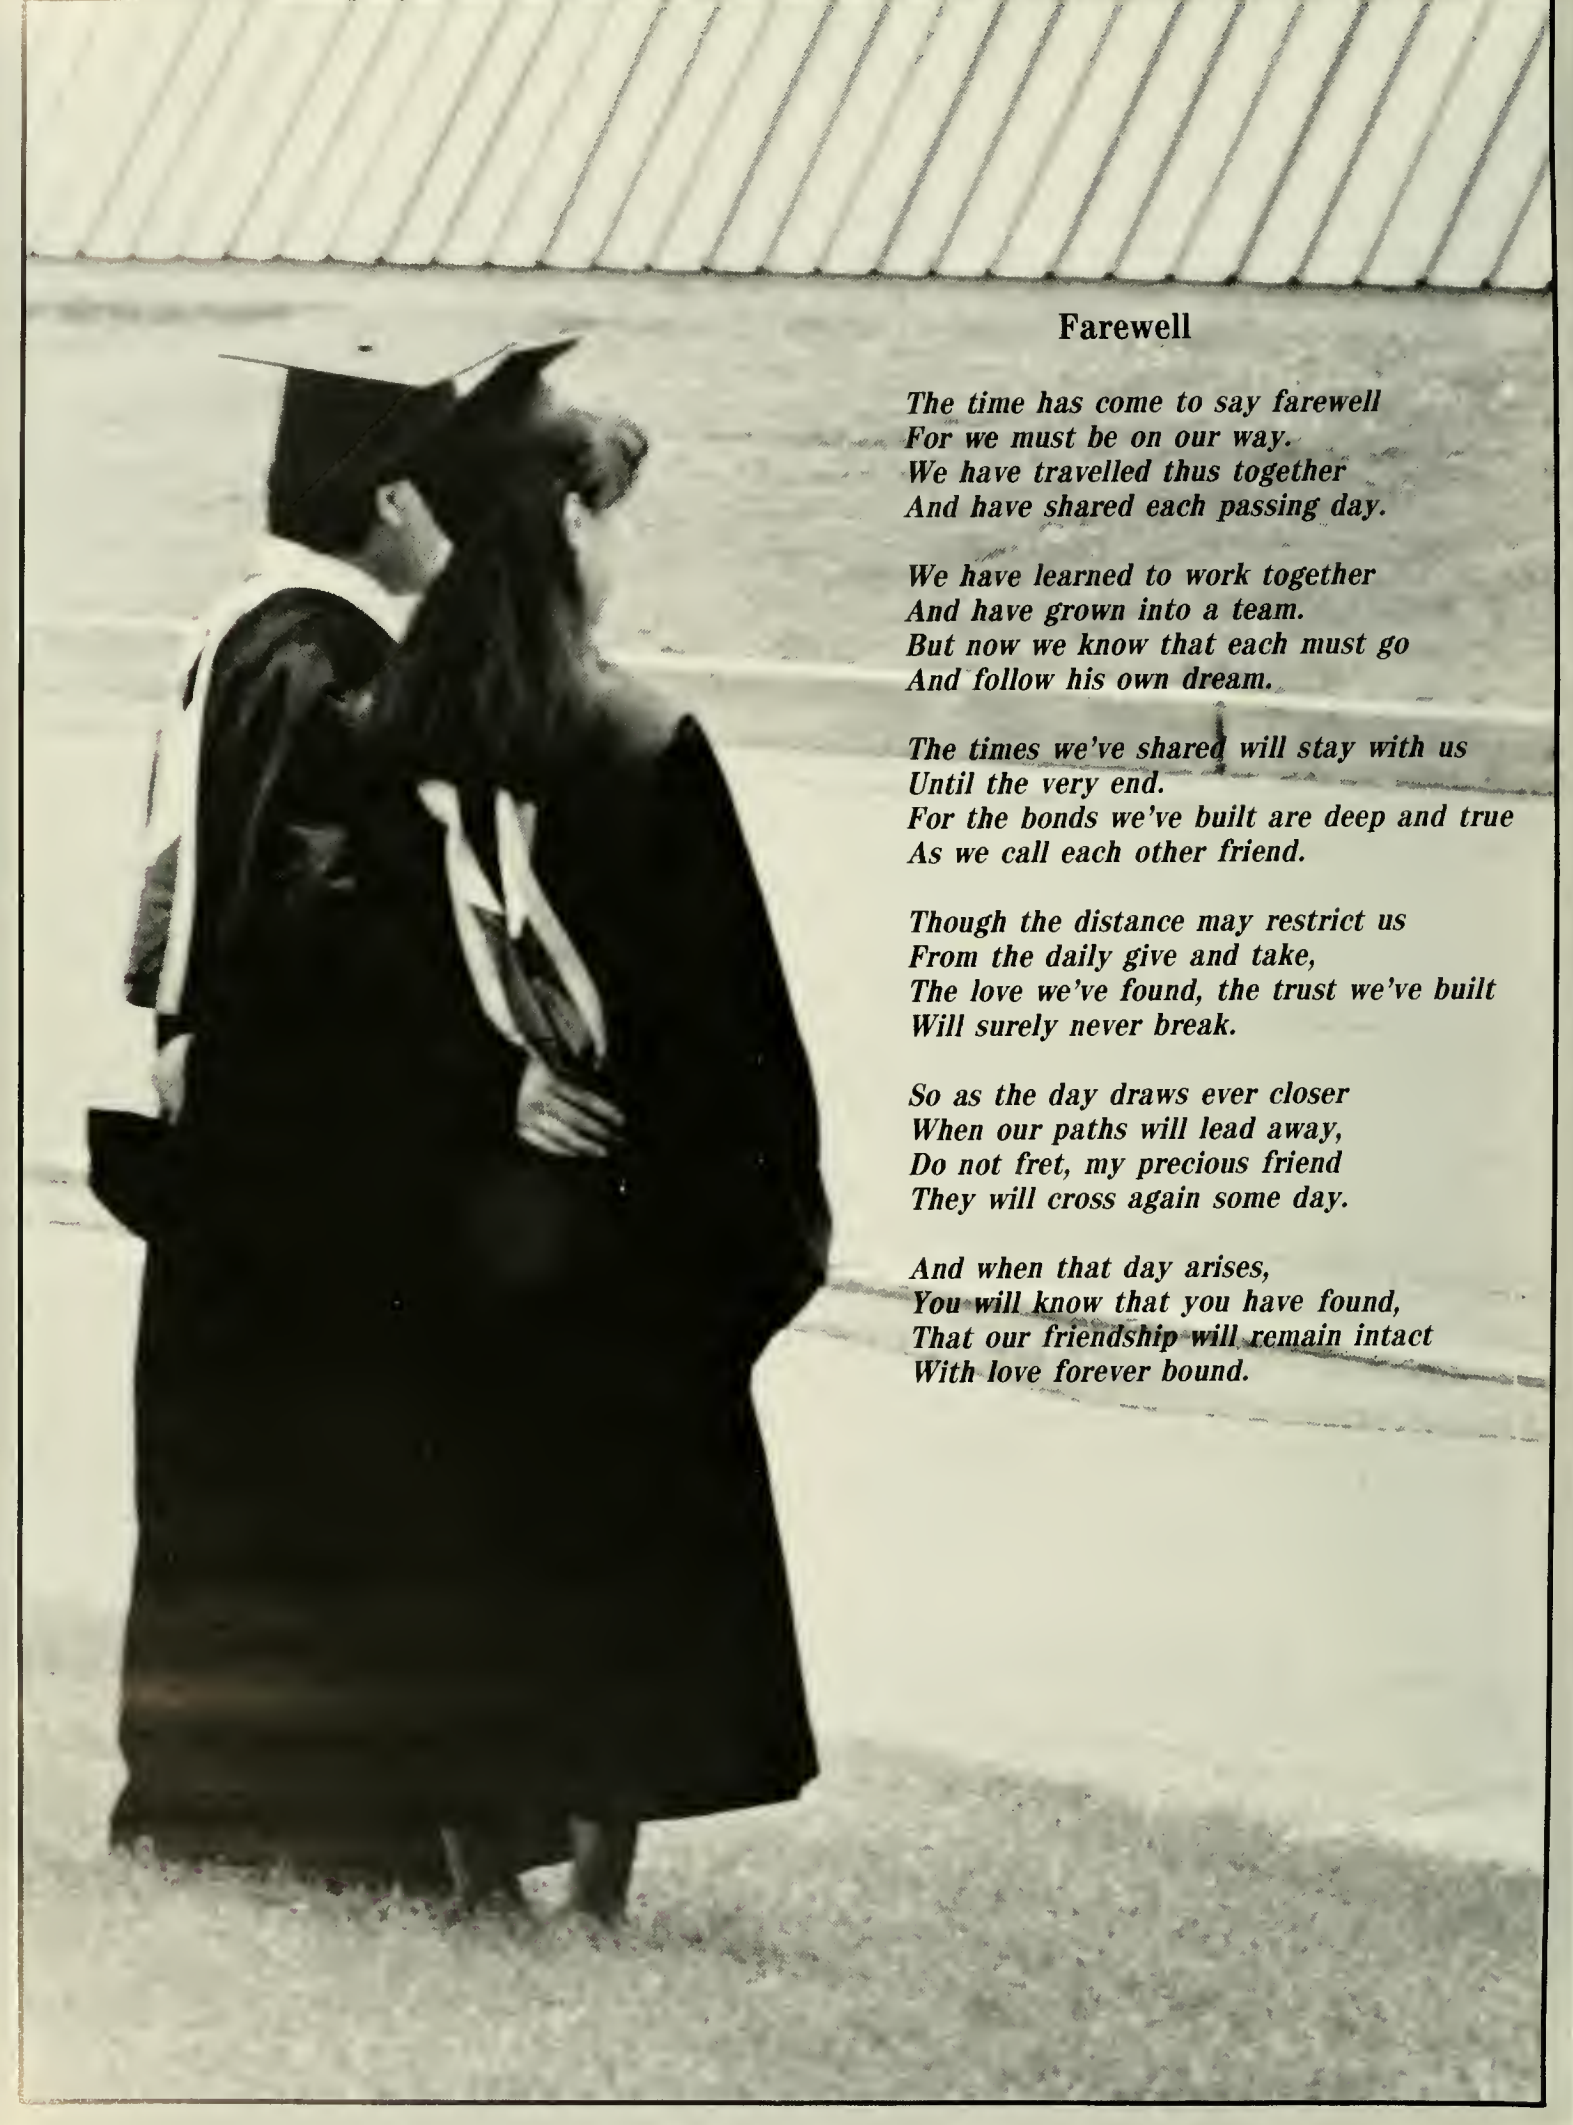

Steve Merin and Merin Studios: Many thanks for helping us meet our deadlines by always getting the photos back promptly. Steve, thanks for all the help with the sports photos. I really appreciated the extra support you gave us.

Phil Klein: Thank you for always offering your ideas and assistance. It has been a pleasure working with you this past year. I think we put together another fine Epitome with the help of Jostens. Many thanks.

Professor Gorney: From the new cover design to the addition of pages, you were always willing to let us make the 1990 Epitome the best that it could be. Thank you for all your help. I hope next year is a little less hectic and that the computerized book gets under way.

Pam Mongi: I don't know how you kept dealing with those labels, but thanks for getting it all together for me. Your help this year has been much appreciated. Thank you for always having a minute to help me.

Linda Lipko: Whenever I needed an answer, I knew you could help me. Without your guidance and support, I don't think this book would have gotten done. Thank you for the many hours of hard work and dedication you put towards the Epitome.

Farewell

*The time has come to say farewell
For we must be on our way.
We have travelled thus together
And have shared each passing day.*

*We have learned to work together
And have grown into a team.
But now we know that each must go
And follow his own dream.*

*The times we've shared will stay with us
Until the very end.
For the bonds we've built are deep and true
As we call each other friend.*

*Though the distance may restrict us
From the daily give and take,
The love we've found, the trust we've built
Will surely never break.*

*So as the day draws ever closer
When our paths will lead away,
Do not fret, my precious friend
They will cross again some day.*

*And when that day arises,
You will know that you have found,
That our friendship will remain intact
With love forever bound.*
